In the number for January 19, appears a letter taken from a French paper, addressed "To citizen Bunnaparte, General in Chief of the army of Italy," on the subject of Aertel Navigation, by Campenas, Hydraulic Engineer. This enthusiastic Frenchman claimed that he had discovered a plan to navigate the air, with much greater safey than it was possible to traverse the ocean. He ad written a book of 400 pages on the subject. Is claimed that he could carry Buonaparte and two hundred more, and said : "I myself will be the pilot."
