CASTELLAR ON LINCOLN:

I wish to present you another example of a decided purpose to accomplish gradual abolition, which was forced to conclude by immediate abblition. I refer to the example of America. " The puritans are the patriarchs of liberty; they opened a new world on the earth; they opened a new path for the human conscience; they created a new society. Yet, when England tried to than any other store in this vicinity, which i subdue them and they conquered, the republic triumphed, and Slavery remained. Washington could only emancipate his slaves. Franklin said that the Virginians could not invoke the name of God, retaining Slavery, Jay sald that all the prayers America sent up to Heaven for the preservation of liberty, while Slavery continued were mere blasphemies. Mason mourned over the payment his descendants must make for this great crime of their fathers. Jefferson traced the line where the black wave of Slavery should be quickly, have marked them at small profits stayed.

Nevertheless, Slavery increased continually. I beg that you will pause a moment to consider that man who cleansed this terrible stain which obscured the stars of the American banner. I beg that you will pause a mok ment, for this immortal name has here been invoked for the perpetuation of Slavery. Ah! the past century has not, the century to come will not have, a flyire so grand' because as continued the years especially. a figure so grand, because as evil disappears heroism also.

I have often contemplated and described his life. Born in a cabin of Kentucky, of parents who could hardly read; born a new Moses in the solitude of the desert, where are forged all great and obstinate thoughts, menotonous like the desert, and, like the desert, a full line in stock, and at such low prices that sublime; growing up among those primeval forests, which, with their fragrance, send a cloud of incense, and, with their murmurs, a cloud of prayers to heaven; a bontman at 8 years in the impetuous current of the Ohio, and at 17 in the vast and trangull waters of the Mississippi; later, a woodman, with ax and arm feling the immemorial trees to open a way to unexplored regions for his tribe of wandering workers; reading no other book than the Bible, the book of great sorrows and great hopes, dictated often by prophets to the sound of fetfers they dragged through Ninevel and Babylon; a child of Nature, in a word, by one of those miracles only compréhensible among free peoples, he fought for the country, and was raised by his fellow citizens to the Congress at Washington, and by the nation to the Presidency of the Republic; and when the evil grew more virulent, when those States were dissolved, when the slaveholders uttered their war cry and the slaves their groans of despair-the woodcutter, the boatman, the son of the great West, the descendant of Quakers, numblest of the humble before his;conscience, greatest of the great before history, ascends the Capitol, the greatest moral hight of our time, a idstrong and serene with his conscience and his thought; before him a veteran army, hostile, Europe behind him, England , favoring the South, France encouraging reaction in Mexico, in his hands the riven country; he arms two millions of men, gathers a balf million horses, sends his artillery 1,200 miles in a week from the banks of the Potomac to the shores of Tennessee; fights more than 600 battles; renews before Richmond the deeds of Alexander, of Casar; and, after having emancipated 3,000,000 slaves, that nothing might be wanting, he dies in the very moment of victory like Christ, like Socrates, like all redeemers, at the foot of his work. His work! Sublime achievement! over which humanity shall eternally shed its tears, and God his benedictions! [Great applause.] - Tribune.

TEMPERANCE AND PAUPERS. - About thirty years ago a few citizens of New Braintree, in Massachusetts, met together and resolved that the best interests of the town required a tavern in which spirituous liquors should not be sold, as the fact was patent to all that too many of the young men in the place would congregate at the "village inn," and were forming habits of social drinking. After talking over the importance of the matter, and satisfying themselves that the enterprise they proposed would not prove a paying one, they subscribed, some $7,000, built a hotel, furnished it, and engaged a landlord to run it free of rent. Soon after this reform, the people of the fown came to the conclusion that it was an unprofitable business to farm out the poor of the town, as had long been the practice, to the lowest bidder, and at a town meeting they voted to buy a poorhouse farm, and put the poor at work. This was also carried into effect. Twenty-five years have passed away and going to that quiet, thrifty town not long ago, this stage driver said to us, on passing the " poorhouse farm," "There is a funny place," "Why so ?" we asked. "Because, it is a poorhouse farm, and not a pauper in it. And I suppose the reason is, some thirty years ago a tempérance tavern was started here-no liquors have been sold, and there is no drinking, nor drunkenness, and not a pauper in the town,"

Do the best we can, we must not expect every one to be friendly to us; for some will hate us because others love
