Without, the blue birds whistled High up in the old roof trees, And to and fro at the window The red rose rocked her bees; And the we pink fists of the haby Where never a moment still, Snatching at shine and shadow. That danced on the latticed sill ! "

Ills eyes were wide as blue bells-. His mouth like a flower unblown-Two little bare feet, like funny white mice, Peoped out from ble snowy gown; And we thought, with a thell of rapture That yet had a touch of pain, When June rolls around with her roses,

We'll measure the boy again. Ah me! iv.a darkened chamber, .With the sunshing shut away, .... Through the tears that fell like a titter rain We measured the boy to-day: And the little bare feet that were dimpled And sweet as a budding rose, Lay side by side together,

In the hush of a long repose! Up from the dainty pillow, White as the risen dawn, The fair litle face lay smiling, With the light of heaven thereonind the dear-litle hands, like rose leaves Dropped from a rose lay still, Never to snatch at the squehine

We measured the sleeping baby With ribbons white ne snow, For the shining resewood easker That waited him bolow ;.. And out of the darkened chamber We went with a childless moan-To the height of the sinles angels Our little one had grown is

That cropt to the shrouded sill!

· How to Carve Meats.

The state of the state of

Carving is a very desirable accom-plishment for both ladies and gentle-men, and should be taught. One can-not learn it by tuition, but by practice joined by a small slice of theory. It is true that the French style of serving, the meat sliced is fast banishing the necessity of carving at the tables of the rich; but in midle life where such elegancies are not practiled, a knowledge af carving should be a part of a boy's or girl's education. How often we hear a person say,"Oh! excuse me. I can't carve. I never tried." Or, if it be attempted, one soon finds himself sailly of all kinds are cheaper than they have been in embarrassed. He grasps the knife and fork desporately; he has learned that a slice of the breast of a turky is a dainty, that a wing is good the second joint, also, and the leg is not so good; but it DRESS SILKS, FRENCH POPLINS, &c. is not an easy task to separate them, and he thinks he would rather chop wood than cut turky. He does hot know that on the back lies a delicious morsel called the oyster, and that the every lady can afford a new dress. side-bones below the second joint are considered titbits. This must be taught hlm. Ladies ought especially to make carving a study; at their own home th task often devolves upon them, and they should be able to perform it with. ease, and not be forced to accept the assistance of visitors, who would probably dread the operation. The platter should be placed so near the carver that he has full control over it; if far, off, nothing cap prevent an ungraceful appearance. A sharp kuife is requisite and a thin and welltempered blade. In carving a turkey, cut off the wing nearest to you first, then the leg and second joint: then slice the breast until a rounded, ivoly shaped piece appears; insert the knife between that and the bone and separate them; this part is the nicest bit of the breast; next comes the "merry thought." After this; turn over the bird a little, and just below the breast you will find the oyster, which you separate us you did the inner breast. The side bone lies beside the rump, and the desired morsel can be taken out without separating the whole bone. Proceed the same way with the other side. The fork need not be re moved during the whole process. An experienced carver will dissect a fowl as easy as you can break an egg or cut a potato. He retains his seat, manages his hands and elbows artistically, and is perfectly at ease. There is no difficulty in the matter; it only requires knowledge and practice, and those should be taught in the family, each child taking his or her turn. Chickens

The Farmer's Scourity.

and partridges are carved in the same way. - Hearth and Home.

The high prizes of life are not offered to the farmers-not one in a thousand acquires a princely fortune by the cultivation of the soil. This isso well understood by the shrewd men who "will be rich," that almost every man of them avoids farming as by instinct. But there is another side to this subject, which is full of interest and instruction.

Almost every farmer who has average health and industry, acquires a competence, and an independence. Four out of five of all the families to which the Ohio Farmer is welcome, will furnish proof of the assertion, that men begining with nothing but vigorous industry and an unsulfied name; -have; within the last twenty years, risen to the possession of comfort and abundance. The exceptions to this remark are few, and can be readily accounted for on the most obvious principles. Now set down against this the fact, which the last thirty years have developed, namely, that out of every ten of all who engage in trade fail in business, and farmers have abundant reason to felicitate themselves on their position and its bless-

Where the farmer exercises care and prudeuce, and does not go out of his business to make money, he is quite beyoud the reach of bankruptcy. We have taken some pains to learn the actual condition of the farming 35,000 ROLLS of WALL PAPER interest in the region of our circulation, and it is our belief that nearly every serious case of embarrassment has arisen from one, or both of the two following causes: Farmers have purchased faster than necessity required, or prudence than necessity required, or prudence than necessity required. permitted: or they have gone beyond their busines to engage in speculation more or less remote from their work as farmers; when they have become commercial men, they have incurred the risks of commerce, and these risks should not be set down to the account of agriculture: for where farmers have kept aloof from these they have avoided his that they have established a those entarglements which have been the 'lion's net!' to so many men.

We invite the attention of our young We invite the attention of our young men to these facts. They are worthy of the most thoughtful reflection. Other professions are always growded to over professions are always crowded to over flowing, very few succeeding in them. The present commercial derangement is scattering the fabrics built on hollow credit, while the farming interest passes comparatively unscathed. - O. Farm. - Wellsboro, May 25, 1870.
