FRANCO-PRUSSIAN WAR NEWS A dispatch from Berlin gives these particulars concerning the battle of Weissenburg: We have wou a brilliant but bloody victory. The left wing was the attacking body, and consisted of the fifth and eleventh Prussian corps, with the second (Bayarian,) This force carried by an assault, under the eyes of the Prince Royal, the fortress of Weissenburg and the heights between Weissenburg and Geleburg.

Douay's division of Marshal M'Mahon's corps was aplendidly defeated, being driven from its camp. General Dougy himself was killed. Five hundred prisoners were taken; none of them were wounded. The Prussian Gen. Kirchback was slightly wounded. The Royal Grenadiers and the 50th regiment of the line suffered heavy losses."

Later accounts give the following particulars of the taking of Saarbruck:

The French made some prisoners, but captured no caunon. They lost 40 killed and 60 wounded. The French force in the battle was estimated at 30,-000 men, and the Prussians at only 6,-000. The artillery wou the fight. There was but little infantry and no cavalry engaged. Three companies held their ground against the French until the latter's force had fully developed its strength. The small force of the Prussians then retired."

mans then retired."
The following official dispatch (Fr/h) was published concerning the great battle at Welssenburg Aug. 6:
"General Headquarters, Metz, Aug. 7, 8:30 a.m.—The concentration of the troops continues without obstacle. All active hostilities seem to have ceased. The 3rd corps was engaged at Eorbach supported by only two divisions from other corps.

The combat begun at one o'clock, and at first appeared to be of little impor-tance; but soon large masses of troops diffden in the woods attempted to turn our position. At five o'clock the Prussians appeared as if they had been repulsed and had given up the attack; but a fresh corps arriving to the assis-tance of the Prussians from Werden, General Fressard was obliged to retire. To-day the troops which got separated yesterday are concentrating around "In the buttle near Fretchmeiler Marshal M'Mahon had the support of flye divisions of Gen. Fallly's corps. The details of this battle are still very vague. After the battle these divisions were unable to join their corps. It is said that many cavalry charges were made. The Prussians had mitrailleuses which did us much harm."

King William sends the following dispatch to the Queen: Good news. A great victory has been won by our Fritz. God be praised for his mercy. We captured 4,000 pris oners, 30 guns, two standards and six mitrallleuses. M'Mahon during the fight was heavily reinforced from the main army. The contest was very severe, and lasted from 11 in the morning until 9 at night, when the French retreated, leaving the field to us. Our losses were heavy."

The following is the proclamation of the Empress of the French, is sed after the defeat at Weissenburg:
Frenchmen: The opening of the war has not been favorable to us. We have suffered a check. The Press says: "The German left wing, under the Crown Prince, Frederick William, far from being crippled by the losses of their first victory at Welssenburg, as reported in the French bulletins, pressed forward to meet M'-Mahon's advancing line. A conflict took place on Saturday at Worth, 12 miles southwest of Weissenburg, resulting in a decided victory to the Germans, the French retiring from the field in a very demoralized condition, to Bitche.

On Friday, the German rightey ing began a forward movement from Preves and Spirlouis, capturing Sherek, oh the Mosella just opposite the south corner of the province of Luxemburg, and the extreme northern point of the common frontier of the belligerent powers, beyond which territory of neutral powers is unavailable for military operations, Saarbruck was retaken on Saturday after having been destroyed by the retiring French -an act of shameful vandalism, which may provoke fearful retaliation upon French property in the coming Prussian Invasion. Forbach was also the scene of a heavy engagement, resulting in the defeat of the French on Saturday. Meanwhite, the German left wing pushed M'Mahon with heavy loss through-Haguenau.— This Freuch corps is also reported as having been cut off from the base of concentration of the French army at Metz. The retirement of the French. has, in several instances, been accompanied by serious demoralization, the soldiers throwing away their arms and equipments, in order to expedite their

Under date of the 5th instant, says the Tribune, Gen. Steinmetz telegraphs the following in regard to the contest between Von Gogben and the French under Gen, Frossard; "The fight was opened on our side by the 14th division, which was subsequently reinforced by artillery and cavalry. A fierce and bloody struggle raged along the line between Saurbruck and Forbach, lasting until night. "The lieights of Spicheren were carried at the point of the bayonet, and the enemy thrown back on Forbach.—Meanwhile, our fitteenth division had advanced from Vochlagen, taken Rossel, and reached Forbach, it with the sel, and reached Forbach at nightfall, when the broken divisions of the French army were being driven upon that point. Here the baggage and camp equipage of two divisions, and many prisoners, were taken." Gen. Colson, M'Mahon's chiefofstuff, was shot in the battle of the 8th. Metz was immediately put in shape for a vig orous defense. The Prussians were en route for Metz the next day after the

TOWARD PARIS.

Last week we merely mentioned that great battle had been fought on the Moselle, in which the Prussians were victorious. It was a series of engagements, lasting through three days, and resulted in such a defeat of the French gent description of the conflict; for it must be remembered that the news we have is that only which the telegraph brings. And here we wish to express our admiration for the enterprise and liberality of the New York Tribune in laying before its readers such full telegraphic accounts of the war, as appear in its columns from day to day.

It seems that the movement of the Prussians under Prince Frederick William, the son of the Prussian King, and heir apparent to the throne, against the French at Weissenburg, was entirely unexpected. No patrols brought the that the utmost confusion prevailed at first, and in the end the French were obliged to give up the place. This they did not do, however, till the battle had been long and carnestly contested.—

Then followed Worth and Hagenau, the French. The field was desperately by men who are not subject to the incontested at every point. The French. crown hung, it might be, upon the event of these first great conflicts. Victory was needed to make Napoleon an object of worship, not for his name alone. but for the genius of a Bonaparte. He had taken the field in person, though defend the flag of France. I adjure all good citizens to maintain order. To agitate, would be to conspire with durence. The terrible Klu Klux organical and the effect excitement reigned in Paris, and the effect was in full operation in some of the restriction of the structure of the restriction of the party strength of course the smoultane. The war was to perpetuate the dynasty every one would come under its bau.

A lot of land in Farmington and Middlebury seems to be even more true politically was a fit successor in the person of the south by Jeromo Prutzman, and west by A. J. Prince Imperial? He writes the Empress Regent of the "tranquility" of the Prince amidst a shower of bullets, one of which the future Emperor picked up, as a first trophy of the war which was to make him Emperor in fact, and of the weeping of the heroes of many a hard fought battle, at the so great coolness of their future sovereign ! --Three days' fighting, and this young hero is heard of in Paris, where the emeute is so imminent, and the disgust of the people so great, that he betakes himself to London, as a place where the demand for "tranquility" is not at the present time so great. Well, all this is nothing; but the situation at Paris is far another thing.-Instead of crossing the Rhine and carrying the war into Germany, Napoleon finds his army, under the venerable FEITABLE. M'Mahon, bent in the center, and broken on the right, himself a fugitive, out of communication with his greatest to establish himself at Chalons as the headquarters of his defeated army, not more than 100 miles from Paris. And Paris? What is Paris but a sleeping yolcano, liable to emit a flame at any moment, which shall glow throughout monarch who leads the French armies to defeat? No matter who the man: the French cannot brook defeat—they are so full of elan, that they suffer terrible pains under the travail of invasion and conquest by their enemies.-This is the unreason of all peoples, under the madness which war engenders.

The Prussians are said to be massed around Metz, intent on giving battle. They do not halt to make repairs, or make shoes, as M'Clellan did at Antietam. They march to battle. Think of 800,000 Prussians in arms and giving battle to the French on their own soil, within a month! And this is the war that was needed to unite the French people to the Empire under Napoleon! The hour looks dark, for France; and for the France which Hugo in exile for his liberalism represents, we have sympathy: for the Emperor who stole a throne under the disguise of a great name, pretendedly devoted to Republicanism, we have a supreme contempt. He has done many great, some good deeds-that is, the man, Louis Napoleon. But he represents a power which crushes Liberty out and grinds down the poor for personal and aristocratical ascendancy. The French people are rising-have she cannot conquer France. More than this: she should not. "On to Parls" is easier said than done. The Prussian Generals are true and tried; but they who lead the advance are young and ardent, compared to those of the French. No doubt other great battles will soon be fought; and it should seem that Prussia must be victorious and dictate Cleanse the Blood.

WITH corrupt or tainted Blood you are sick all over. It may burst out in Pimples, or Bores, or in some active disease, or it may merely keep you listless, depressed and good for nothing, (But you cannot have good health while your blood is impure—Ayer's Sarsaparilla purges cut these impurities; it expels disease and stimulates the organs of life into vigorous action. Hence it rapidly cure a variety of compliants which are caused by impurity of the blood, such as Scrofula, or King's Evil, Tumors, Ulcers, Sorce, Eruptions, Pimples, Blotches, Boils, St. Authony's Fire, Rose or Erysipelas, Totter or falt Rheum, Scald Head, King Worm, Cancer or Cancerous Tumors, Sore Eyes, Female Diseases, such as Retentles, Irregularity, Suppression, Whites, Sterility, also Spiphills or Veneral Diseases, Liver Complaints, and litart Diseases. Try Ayor's Sarsaparilla, and see for yourself the surprising activity with which it cleanses the blood and cures these disorders.

During late years the public have been misled by large bottles pretending to give a quart of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been fraids upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any; Sarsaparilla, but often no curitive ingredient whatever. Hence, bitter disappointments has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market; until the name itself has become synonymous with imposition and cheat. Still we call this compound, Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the lead of obloquy which rests upon it. We think we have ground for believing it has virtues which are irreslistive we know how to produce, and we have reason to believe, it is by fair the most effectual purifier of the blood yet discovered.

Dr. R. W. Carr of Baltimore, says:

I inke pleasure in recommending your Resautts as a very powerful alterative. I have seen it used in two cases with happy results—not have seen it used in two cases of secondary apphilis, in which the patient pronounced himself cured after having taken his bottles of your inediction. The other is a case of scroular of long standing, which is rapidly improving, under its use, and the indications are that the patient will soon recover. I have carefully examined the firmula by which your your Rosadulis is made, and find it an excellent compound of alterative ingredients.
