HUMBUG.

It should seem that humbugs have become so common, of late, that no one could be found who would be misled by them; but they assume so many forms, and, withal, are so ingeniously gotten up in some cases, that many are deceived and made to suffer by them .-The strangest thing of all is, that being bitten once does not seem to satisfy those whose inclination is to go out after such things. Some like to be humbugged: they acquire a reputation for it, and are sought out as easy subjects. We have noticed this in the matter of patent rights, which mean, according to the experience of many of our citizene, patent cheats and humbugs. If a man buy one patent right, some good friend sends the next traveling agent who deals in such wares to him, that he may be sold again; and hagenerally is "sold," before he gets through with it. The patent right business is a confidence game; in most cases. Two or three well dressed, gentlemanly appearing "sharpers," who ought to be making State prison chains in the penitentiary, come into town, with a carriage and two, put up at the best hotel, make the acquaintance of some well known citizen, induce him to give his note for the right of some township; with the understanding that it is a mere and have bought them to sell in order to do this trap to catch the unwary, and that the note shall be given up as soon as the bate is taken, and then go about entrapping all they can secure, by means fair or foul. They play the game so nicely, that it is not strange some are cheated by it. It is unnecessary for us to go into the particulars-numbers of our patrons in each township have had experience in this matter, and we refer those who desire further information to of all kinds are cheaper than they have been in them. It may be said, generally, that ten years especially. he who has learned to shun all these humbugs, has come cheaply by his knowledge, if it has cost him no more than a hundred dollars. If the first hundred is not sufficient, opportunities will not be wanting to make it any multiple of that amount, to the extent required to teach the lesson thoroughly. overy lady can afford a new dress. There are various kinds of humbugs

-lotteries, gift enterprises, quack medicines, and false adornments of femi-.ine beauty,-but we do not intend to speak of these now. One of the latest is set forth in the following circular, received a few days we have a complete assortment and CHEAPER THAN EVER DEFORE. Our stock of ago by several of our citizens: ESTERMED Sin:—Being in want of a shrewd and trustworthy agent in your locality, I have selected you in preference to a number of others. You were recommended to me by a traveling agent for a large commercial house in this city. He is a very intimate friend of mine, and has accumulated an immense fortune in the business neounniated an immense lecture in the business tor which I desire your services. Were it not for him, I should not repose such confidence in you. Now to business: I have on hand a very large quantity of $1, $2 & $5 U.S. Trea'y notes. (Queer.) I deal in nothing but first clads work, and you may depend upon it that every one of my bills is as well executed, both in the engraving and printing, as the bills which are issued by the Treasury Department; consequently you run no freasury Department; consequently you run no more risk in passing them, than if you were passing genuine money. My bills have been presented to bank officials, and they have almost invariably pronounced them genuine. They are printed on first class bank note paper, are cor-rectly numbered, and the printing cannot be exoelled. I put the bills up in packages containing different amounts. The price of a $500 package is $100; price of a $1,000 package, is $200; price of a $5,000 package, is $1,000. But, in order to give you a fair show at the start, I will not require more than one-quarter of the money down, cash. Therefore, if you wish a $5,000 down, cash. Therefore, if you wish a $5,000 package, you will have to pay but $250; for a $1,000 package, but $50; and for a $500 package, only $25. If you do not wish to send your money in advance, I will send the stuff to you by express, and you can pay for it in the office when you receive it. (C. O. D.) If you wish it sent by express, I will assuredly pack it in such a way that no one can possibly suspect the contents of the box. I am an old hand at the business, and I can manage everything to mislead a way that no one can possibly expect the contents of the box. I am an old hand at the business, and I can manage everything to mislead the shrewdest persons. When I send you a package by express, I will write to you by mail to let you know that I have sent it. In conducting a business of this kind, we must use great caution. Therefore, whenever you write to me, send your letter by express instead of by mail; and, to avoid suspicion, say that the letter contains money—naming any small amount you like. You will not be suspected in sending me a letter by express. I have no other agent anywhere near you, and it would be impossible for my name to be known to the express agent. Endeavor on all occasions to send communications by express, even if you have to ride many miles to an express office. If you can spare time to come on, do so; I would much prefer a personal interview. Then you can examine everything to your satisfaction, and be assured that all my representations are correct. If you come on, you will have an opportunity to go through the stock and select whatever denominations suit you best, and whatever quantity you can dispose of conveniently. My standing in New York is very high. Therefore, when you come into my private office, no one will dream what is the nature of your business. You will be as age as if you were going into a first lease place on Broadway. Were it otherwise, I should not ask you to come on. I wish one thing to be understood very distinctly; that is, I will not deviate from the terms I have given you. I will not give credit to a greater extent than three-fourths. I wish it to be distinctly understood that I deal on the square, and that I mean business. I have unbounded confidence in you, and from representations made to me, I believe that you will not honorably with that I mean business. I have unbounded confidence in you, and from representations made to me, I believe that you will act honorably with me; and if you fulfill my expectations, you containly will never have occasion to regret it. I think I have said sufficient. But I must warm you to keep this matter of profound secret. A fortune is in store for both of us; and if yone an manage to keep a still tongue all will go well. I want the following instructions strictly observed. If you remember them, no mistake will occur.—If you come on in person, or send a reliable agent to me to examine the stock, call at my private office, No. 52——— street, room No. 5, up stairs. Business can be conducted here secretly and safely. But if you send me a letter, or money by express, direct it to my other place of business. nes, by express, direct it to my other place of bu-siness, as follows:

JAMES A. HOLT,

116, _____ st., N. York City.

Rather ingeniously done, isn't it? It is printed in script, and several interlineations are made, to give it the appearance of genuineness. No doubt there will be some to respond. If there should none of the "queer" ever come back, all such would be most fortunate; but it might prove yet a greater humbug, if it should come according to promise, and the receivers should wind up their 'kqueer" experience in the penitentiary. To give away $25, or $50, is account; but to give it for $1,000 of this "stuff," places one in a worse fix, for it tells tales and brings to grief. Beware of humbugs.

A lady had been cautioning her son, a bright, affectionate little boy, in the matter of taking cold. "You know, my child," said she, "I can't help being anxious and troubled about you when you are ill. Ah! Freddy, you have little idea of the feelings of a mother," "No, mother," replied the
