FATTING HOGS ON WHEY.

A friend in a neighboring town, seems to have studied the genus hog attentive ly. He has had long experience in fattening them on corn, still slops, and now is very successful on whey. He goes to the cattle yard, in Buffalo, and is careful to select hogs brought from Canada. Ather than the West. He says he wants a rangy muscular shoat—not your short, dumpy, fat pig to feed on whey. He selects from the Berkshire or its cross if he can. The small boned, fat breed get diseased on whey. But the muscular, bony Canada Berkshire, will fatten splendidly, he says, on whey alone in three to four months.

· If a hog can be fattened exclusively on whey, (which seems in his case to be true,)then this certainly is the kind of hog to select. Having been raised on peas and milk, as is the custom in Canada, its bone and muscular system is already developed, and the office of whey DOMESTIC DRY GOODS 13 only to lay on fat. In 1869 he fed five hogs on the whey from eighteen cows for four months, selling them the first of November and clearing $100 over their cost delivered at his farm. He fed more whey, during the same time, to five calves, and although the calves were good, the gain did not exceed $50. The present season he is feeding, on whey alone, nine hogs, bought 10th of May averaging then one hundred and twenty pounds, and will now average three hundred pounds cheh, live weight. He estimates the whey from a cow, in feeding this kind of hog, worth $8 to $10 per season. But this feeding whey alone would not answerfor hogs not already developed in frame and muscle.

RAISING PIGS AND CALVES ON WHEY Calling on farmer L., we found some thue shoats, weighing about one hundred pounds, that had been raised upon whey, with an addition of one pound of pen meal to three gallons of whey. These shoats were a cross of Suffolk with common breed, and appeared as finely developed as any we ever saw, proving that nea meal, in small quantity, supplies all the missing constituents of whey. L , also showed us some fine calves, four months old, raised(after two weeks) on whey and oat meal. They were heifers, and would weigh three hundred pounds. He has a high opinion of whey, but unlike our friend, thinks it should always be fed admixed with nitrogenous food. Every thing about L.'s premises exand reflection. He thinks the farmer's hibited order, neatness and economy. All his plans are based upon knowledge success depends as much upon accurate for Men and Boys, are varied and complete. We brain work, as that of the engineer or master builder. He seems instinctively to know the wants of his animals, and never fails to supply them. The consequence is, he never raises a poor animal, and is never trouble, in his herd, with "horn-ail," or "tail-ail." But there is his neighbor N., who told us that he, had "tried the pesky whey for calves and pigs," and he believes it is" pizen to animals," as it killed three of his calves and" near a'most' killed his pigs; those that wanted to "pizen" their pigs and calves might have his whey. He had tried" ilemeal" to please L., but the calves" rull their inards out on it. Well, it isn't nateral to the call." He knew L.'s calves were "nice and slick," but he believed they had "a darn'd sight more than ile-meal and whey." N.'s cows were spring poor in, July. He didn't see why they should be, but supposed "It was nateral for some cows to be thin when milkin'." Weeds and Canada thistles were going to seed on N.'s farm, he had no time to cut'em But it was often noticed that he could spend nearly all the forenoon going two miles to the cheese factory. He had been beguiled into sowing a piece of corn for green fodder, but a day or two before we saw him, the cows had discovered its tempting greenness and luxurlance, and easily pushed through his false pretense of a fence, and were enjoying it before their time. But good, easy soul! he "did not believe sowed corn amounted to much, arterall. Cows may as well harvest their own corn. It's more nateral-to let the cow get her own cheaper than can be sold by any other firm in livin'.' Now, N. is a representarive Tioga County; further we do affirm that no man man, and his constituents are very numerous. E. W. S.
