BOYS AND PEARS. The power of a boy is, to me, some thing feafful. Consider: what he can do. You buy and set out a choice peartree; you enrich the earth for it; you train and trim it, and vanquish the full line of goods. borer, and watch its slow growth. 'At length it rewards your care by producing two or three pears, which you cut up and divide in the family, declaring the flavor of the bit you eat to be some thing extraordinary. The next year, the little tree blussoms full, and sets well; and in the autumn has on its slender, drooping limbs half a bushel of fruit, daily growing more delicious in the sun. You show it to your friends, reading to them the French name, which you can never remember, on the Liquors before buying elsewhere. label; and you take an honest pride in the successful fruit of long care.-That night your pears shall be required of you by a boy; Along comes an irresponsible urchin, who has not been growing much longer than the tree, with not twenty-five cents worth of clothing on himy and in five minutes takes off every pean, and retires into safe obscurity. In five minutes, the No.37 & 39 Carroll St., Elmira, N. Y. remorseless boy has undone your work of years, and with the easy nonchalancy, I doubt not, of any agent of fate, in whose path nothing is sacred or safe. And it is not of much consequence.-The boy goes on his way,-to Congress or to state prison; in either place he will be accused of stealing, perhaps wrongfully.
