POET'S CORNER.

A GHOST PLAYER.—A BALLAD.

BY G. SAXE.

Tom Goodwin was an actor man,
Old Drury's pride and boast
In all the light and spritely parts
Especially the Ghost.

Now Tom was very fond of drink,
Of almost every sort—
Comparative and positive,
From porter up to port.

But grog, like grief, is fatal stuff
For any man to sup,
For when it fails to pull him down
It's sure to blow him up.

And so it fared with ghostly Tom,
Who day by day was seen
A swelling till (as lawyers say)
He fairly filled a skin.

At length the manager observed
He'd better leave his post,
And said, he played the very deuce
When'er he played the Ghost!

'Twas only t'other night he saw
A fellow swing his hat,
And heard him cry, "By all the gods
The Ghost is getting fat!"

'Twould never do, the case was plain,
His eyes he couldn't shut,
Ghosts shouldn't make the people laugh,
And Tom was quite a butt.

Tom's actor friends said ne'er a word
To cheer his drooping heart;
Though more than one was burning up
With zeal to "take his part."

Tom argued very plausibly
He said he didn't doubt,
That Hamlet's father drank and grew,
In years, a little stout.

And so, 'twas natural, he said,
And, quite a proper plan,
To have his spirit represent,
A portly sort of man.

'Twas all in vain; the manager
Said he was not in spirit,
And, like a gen'ral, bade poor Tom
Surrender up his spirit.

He'd do perhaps in heavy parts—
Might answer for a Monk,
Or porter to the elephant,
To carry round his trunk.

But in the Ghost his day was past—
He'd never do for that;
A Ghost might just as well be dead
As plethoric and fat!

Alas! next day poor Tom was found
As stiff as any post—
For he had lost his character,
And given up the ghost.

[Correspondence of the Agitator.]

FROM A WELLSBORO BOY.

OSKALOOSA, (Wis.) Sept 5, 1871.

Last night there was such a racket that I found it almost impossible to write a fashion, and dropped it in the office this morning. Minnesot is my ideal of beauty; not beauty of the tame kind, but beauty that ever varies. And for wild, grand scenery, nowhere east of the Rocky Mountains do I believe the scenery can be compared with that along the St. Croix river. There are some quite pretty scenes along the Red river of the North and the headwaters of the Mississippi, but none that can be compared for an instant with the scenes along the St. Croix. It would do your soul good to travel in that section of country. One would need only a small knapsack and pocket compass; but you might add a double barreled rifle, and then take the stage from St. Cloud to Sauk Center, and from there to Alexandria, the county seat of Douglass co., forty miles from Otter Tail city, on Otter Tail lake. Otter Tail city must be a flourishing place by this time. There were two log houses and the inhabitants talked of a saw mill, when I passed through. From Alexandria, one could strike across the country to Otter Tail lake, and be right in the hunting country, where game is so abundant that the Indians from the Red river of the North and eastern Dacota spend weeks every year hunting there. North of Otter Tail lake are the salt springs of Minnesota, and 25 miles north from them commence the highlands of Minnesota, a range of elevated hills running east and west nearly or quite across the State. Still north of the highlands is the great marsh, extending to the boundary line on the north. It is impassable in summer, but in December teams can pass over safely. It is caused by the overflow or back water of the Lake of the Woods. This is the Paradise of the Indian. Here he can hunt and fish while the squaw attends to the minor duties, such as gathering the wood, cleaning the game, and cooking and in fact everything which by the whites is considered as belonging to the lords of creation. I must say Mr. Indian is a pretty "honary" specimen of humanity. Some of the Eastern philanthropists could see the Indians on the move, with the squaw hitched between two poles, and camp kettles, tepee cloth and papooses fastened to the poles, I am afraid their sense of propriety would be properly shocked; and then, when camp is pitched, to see the noble Lo lie back in the shade while the squaw pitches the tent, gathers the wood, builds the fire, brings water and cooks,—"oh, yes!"—nothing like being among them to find out their noble qualities. And then to be out on the frontier with the wife and little ones, miles from any settlement, at midnight, hear the war whoop, and awaken to find the house attacked by fifty or sixty painted "ahem"—warriors; the next morning a few smouldering embers, a man, tomahawked and scalped, lying among them, and the wife and little ones—God only knows where! Oh, yes, all of this is calculated to bring the two races into a way of living quietly and peaceably together. If they ever do create a disturbance up in that section, there will be a deal of extra traveling, and a good many Indian ponies will be missed from their lodges.

The eastern part of the State, above St. Paul, is a pretty poor farming country, compared with the balance of the State. From thirty miles north of St. Paul to lake Mille Lac, the country is very poor for the small grains; but it is a splendid grazing country, and large herds of cattle might be pastured with but little trouble. From Mille Lac lake, east, the pine timber region commences, and extends to the highlands on the north, and into Wisconsin on the east; but it is of small growth compared with our timber in Pennsylvania. West of the Mississippi, and east of Otter Tail lake, is quite a heavy body of pine of very large growth, owned principally by St. Paul and St. Cloud firms, who have some quite large mills situated in the southern edge of the timber. I don't think there is much of a market yet, the country is too thinly settled, or was when I was there; but is probably better settled now, since the railroads have commenced extending their lines north of the western extremity of lake Superior; and northwest are the gold and silver mines, of which there was so much talk three or four years ago. The principal mines, and also the richest, are on an island in one of the small lakes in that region, the name of which I do not remember. The quartz is the brown, the gold very fine, and scattered throughout the rock in minute particles. The other specimens of quartz are the grayish and white, with pieces as large as the end of the finger interspersing the rock in clusters. The latter are gold and silver mixed, and three years ago they were not very successful in separating them. Professor Tyndal's process I believe was the most successful of any, but all processes that have been discovered, thus far, are expensive, and in some cases so much so that however easy the mineral may be to reach, the expense eats up the profits. It is different with lead or copper ores. If lead, all that is necessary is to dig it out, raise it to the surface, melt and run it into bars; and, if copper, the process is somewhat similar. When lead contains silver, it is easy to separate it, and with trifling expense.

There have been some very rich lead mines discovered in Wisconsin lately, both in the southern and northern parts of the State. Those in the northern part are said to be rich in silver; those in the southern are very pure lead.—There are two kinds of lead mines; one where the lead runs in sheets, and the other where the lead is found in openings in the rock. Sheet lead is'nt considered worth working, unless quite thick, but openings always, unless below the water level, which in the mineral district of Galena is 180 feet. Sheet lead must be followed through solid rock; openings, on the contrary, are followed through earth, between the rock. Every man who can raise fifty or sixty dollars can become a miner, with a fortune in prospect; and with this prospect in view, hundreds enter mining every year, and come out minus. Where one makes a lucky strike, thousands don't make a cent; and where, among the lucky ones, one is ever good for anything but mining the balance of his life, hundreds are worse than useless.

ADVICE FROM NASBY.

WHAT THE DEMOCRATS MUST DO TO SUCCEED THIS FALL.

CONFEDRIT X ROADS, Aug. 29, 1871.

Ez I am the only Democrat in this deestrict who is goin' to run this year ez I should like to see it. It will take the closest kind uv figgerin, and the best management in the world, to make a success; and I really don't know as it can be done at all. There aint much sense in our leaders. Tweed's stealin in New York, though not more in quantity than I spose he really wanted, was done too openly for the good uv the party elsewhere; and besides this there aint that unanimity and general oneness uv sentiment in our ranks that there had ought to be this year. The fact is the Democracy comprehends too much—it hez too hefty an assortment uv principles for any one party to swing. I hev spent many anxious hours on the question uv meeting this trouble, and hev at last decided on a system uv work which, if followed out faithfully, may give us the success we hope for.

Our speakers must for once inform themselves as to the ishues now before the people. The old speeches which we had in Jaxon's time and which we hev used ever sluce, wont do any more.—We hev got to git up new ones, shure. All our extemporary speeches must be carefully prepared. A carefully prepared extemporary speech is likely to run smoother than an extemporary speech which aint carefully prepared. I allus prepare my impromptoo speeches aforehand. An ablishnist can use the same speech all over the country, but we cant. In view uv the diversity of opinion there is among the Democracy, this year, I would suggest to our speakers in the various sections uv the country, that they observe the following schedule closely:

In New England, advocate the payment uv the bonds in gold, and bear down heavy on them mizable, God-forsaken scoundrels who would impair the nashnel credit by a suggestion uv payin em in paper. Explain to your aujence that payin the debt in paper aint payin it at all. Tell em that paper is promises to pay, and ask em who is to pay the paper, and when! As for repudiators, jush 'em! Pint the finger uv scorn at em. Hold em up to the exekration uv a civilized world. Wind up with an elegant and eloquent tribute to the Pilgrim Fathers. (Poskrip.—In cotton manufacturin towns, advocate a high protective tariff, and show that the Democracy was allus a tariff party. In the woolen towns they dont want tariff so much, and in them draw it mild on tariff. Also, on the nigger question assert boldly that the Democracy acquiesces in the amendments, and would have shed its last drop of blood before any man, white or colored, should be deprived of any rite. Say that perhaps some Democrats mite have been at one time opposed to givin the suffrage to the nig—colored man—but it was because they feared that they wasnt educated up to its proper use. Mem.—In New England be shure to say colored man—nigger, never.

In New York City, denounce with withering invective the bloated cotton lords of New England. Bear down with severity onto the very idea uv a tariff. Assert that the Democracy is for free trade in its broadest sense.—Urge the payment uv the debt in gold, but denounce the nashnel thieves just the same. In New York use the term "nigger" allus, and say that the giving to the ballot to a race so low in intellect, which has not yet emerged from barbarism, is an outrage which no Irishman kin submit to. Bear down heavy onto the nigger, and intersperse your speeches with frequent quotations from the Irish poets. If you wear a green neck tie and carry a short club of black thorn, and have a short, black pipe sticking out uv your vest pocket, it will be all the better. In New York your speech may be mostly devoted to the nigger, and be particular in this connection to allus say "d——d nigger." Pint the finger uv scorn at them which would affiliate them, and wind up with a glowing tribute to New York.

In Pennsylvany, tariff to the hilt, and uv the highest and most effective kind. Speak uv the wealth hidden in her mountains, and the necessity of perfection to develope it. Remind your hearers uv the old cry uv "Polk, Dallas and the tariff uv '42," and denounce the free traders bought with British gold. Pint the finger uv scorn at em, and wind up allus with a glowing tribute to the greatness of Pennsylvany.—Dodge the nigger in Pennsylvany, and the nashnel debt also, for the people are mixed! Its our business before elections to please the people.

In the Northwest accept the new departure, and assert that no Democrat desires to bust the amendments, or has any idea uv any such thing; speak of the colored man as a man and a brother, and refer gratefully to his services in the late struggle for the maintenance of free government. Denounce the tariff (in the rooral districts) as a swindle onto the West for the purpose of building up the bloated manufacturers of N. England and Pennsylvany, and agin them bloated manufacturers pint the withering finger of uv scorn. Conclude with a eloquent tribute to the grandeur uv the Northwest.

In Ohio—mixed. In the northern counties accept the new departure—in the middle and southern oppose it. Be high tariff in the iron and coal counties, and free trade in the corn and wheat counties. Dodge the debt question, and pint the finger uv scorn at them which would drag in irrelevant ishues. Conclude with a glowing tribute to the bigness uv Ohio.

In Kentucky, denounce niggerism in all its forms, and urge repudiashun as strongly as possible. Say that Kentucky will use force, if need be, rather than permit niggers to be on an ekality with white men, and pint the finger uv scorn at them which would degrade the white
