ON THE RAIL.

BY G. H. CLARK.

I met him in the cars,
Where resignedly he sat;
His hair was full of dust,
And so was his cravat;
He was furthermore embellished
By a ticket in his hat.

The conductor touched his arm,
And woke him from a nap;
When he gave the feeding files
An admonitory slap,
And his ticket to the man
In the yellow-lettered hat.

So, launching into talk,
We rattled on our way,
With allusions to the crops
That along the meadows lay—
Whereupon his eyes were lit
With a speculative ray.

The heads of many men
Were bobbing as in sleep,
And many babies lifted
Their voices up to weep;
While the cinder-dust darkly fell
On bonnets in a heap.

All the while the swaying cars
Kept rumbling o'er the rail,
And the frequent whistle sent
Shrieks of anguish to the gale,
And the cinders patted down
On the grimy floor like hail

When an ideal jar,
A thrice-repeated bump,
Made the people in alarm
From their easy cushions jump—
For they deemed the sound to be
The inevitable trump.

A splintering crash below,
A doom-foreboding twitch,
As the tender gave a lurch
Beyond the flying switch,
And a mangled mass of men
Lay writhing in the ditch.

With a palpitating heart,
My friend essayed to rise;
There were bruises on his limbs
And stars before his eyes,
And his face was of the hue
Of the dolphin when it dies.

* * * * * *

I was very well content
In escaping with my life;
But my multiplied friend
Commenced a legal strife—
Being thereunto excited
By his lawyer and his wife.

And he writes me the result,
In his quiet way, as follows:
That this case came up before
A bench of legal scholars,
Who awarded him his claim
Of fifteen Hundred Dollars.

AGRICULTURE.

WHAT I KNOW ABOUT CALVES.

In these days of telling each other what we know, I will try to tell what I know in the way of not having to wean calves. It is pretty generally understood that Paddy knows the habits of cows as well as any one, for the best of reasons. The plan of the Irish Lord is to keep Pat always a tenant at will; hence he is often compelled to live under the same roof with the pig and the cow. Pat once said to me that a cow should never see her calf. Why so? If she sees it and licks, and it is allowed to suck, it is then harder to learn it to drink. The mother becomes attached to it, and when taken away, she mourns for a long time, during which she refuses to give down her milk, which is feverish and unfit for use. This seemed so very reasonable that I decided to adopt the plan. One trial convinced me that it is the true plan to save the trouble of weaning calves and to keep the mother quiet and in good condition after dropping her calf. When the cow drops the calf, throw a cloth over it and carry it away out of her sight and hearing. She will then not know she had a calf. Milk the cow and offer the milk to the calf, and it will drink at once, simply because it does not have to unlearn the habit of sucking. If a calf should drop in the night, then remove it as quick as possible in the morning, out of sight, and treat as directed. Tying up the calf and feeding it three times a day, is better than twice, as all young animals require food often.

I over after adopted Paddy's plan while I kept cows, or a cow, and would always do it whether I intended to kill or raise the calves, if I had fifty or a hundred head. Those I named it to, and who have tried it once, are so well convinced of its many advantages that they cannot be induced to the "old fogy" plan of allowing their calves to run with and suck the mother three or four weeks, and then have another week's trouble and noise after the calves are taken away.—Correspondent of the Country Gentleman.

A NEW AND INTERESTING DIET FOR COWS.—In a recent article in the London Field on the summer management of dairy cows upon a Danish farm, we read: "To the green food rations a somewhat curious addition is made viz; horse dung and split peas. Mr Schwartz, it appears, had read years ago in some old Swedish muck manual that horse dung, mixed with other provender, might be advantageously used as a feeding-material for cow stock, and noticing that a certain short-horn bull even after a heavy meal would frequently eat the horse dung collected in a corner of the farm yard, it struck him that it might be well to give so palatable an article of dessert a systematic trial as a condiment, if not piece de resistance. He accordingly instituted a series of experiments with the new food, and so satisfactory was the result, that he ended by feeding his cow stock daily as much as eight pounds per head of it, along with the split peas. He found that dung had a favorable effect on the amount of butter in the milk, and peas on that of casein. The cattle, after luxuriating all day in good pasturage, should fall upon the above compound with avidity has surprised more than one visitor to Hofgarten Facts, however, are stubborn things, and Mr. Schwartz, thanks to the introduction of the new feeding material, has even found it possible, on the same acreage (thirteen hundred acres) to keep twenty to thirty more cows than he was formerly able to do and still adhered to his rule of giving them all through the year as much food as they will eat.—The loss which the land sustains in the way of horse dung is more than compensated for by greatly increased dressings of manure from the cow stables."

The opinion is also expressed that even a large addition to his herd might be made by a still larger use of the new provender, horse dung and split peas!

THE FOREST FIRES.—The papers of to-day (Oct. 16) say "the whole West is on fire," from Green Bay to Menomonee, some sixty or seventy miles, Depere, Fort Howard, and Wrightstown are threatened with destruction. Advices from Fon du Lac, Wis., say that reports from the northern districts grow hourly worse. The accounts of suffering are unparalleled. Food, clothes, and money are greatly wanted.—Press.

Ayer's

Hair Vigor,

For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so uncleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

I AM now building at my manufactory, in Lawrenceville, a superior

which possesses the following advantages over all other mills:

1. It separates rye, oats, rat litter, and foul seeds, Canada thistle, from wheat.
2. It cleans flax seed, takes out yellow seed, and all other seeds, perfectly.
3. It cleans timothy seed.
4. It does all other separating required of a mill.

The mill is built of the best and most durable timber, in good style, and is sold cheap for cash, or produce.
