DR. BRUMBAUGH'S AIM FOR SCHOOLS

Candidate Tells of His Ambition to Make Them Even Better in This State

POINTS TO NEED OF BETTER ROADS

Republican Gubernatorial Nominee in Johnstown Speech Makes Clear His Position on Important Campaign Issues

(Special to the Star-Independent.) Johnstown, Pa., Oct. 12.—Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, Republican candidate for Governor, in a speech here on Saturday said in part: "In presenting to you the issues of this great campaign, I should like to first of all to make perfectly plain to you that I am not a seeker of office in the ordinary sense of that term. I do not crave the honor of the position, great as is that honor, for the good people of this Commonwealth have already been more than generous to me. Nor do I desire to have in my hands the disposition of the patronage of the great office. "I am conscious of the fact that, reduced to its last terms, my opposition is struggling for this patronage in order that there may be built up here in Pennsylvania a machine out of harmony with the traditions of our people and foreign to the whole trend and development of our Commonwealth. Anyone who seeks office solely for the purpose of distributing patronage is unworthy to hold office in Pennsylvania, but I do desire to serve the people of this State in a larger way than I have done in the past, for the simple and sole reason that I love the State well enough to give myself in every way I can to a continuation of the splendid history of this State and the enlargement of the outlook of its goodly people. If I did not believe that there are still better things in store for Pennsylvania than she now enjoys, I would certainly not seek the office. Moreover, it is my honest conviction that my many years of service, and my acquaintance with the common people of Pennsylvania, and my sympathy and understanding of their problems, give me the training and insight necessary to render a satisfactory service to our people.

His Work in the Schools

"For a generation I have wrought in the schools of this Commonwealth as teacher and superintendent, as college president and university professor, as lecturer and author, as a member of the State Board of Education and the College and University Council. It has been my rare privilege to teach the whole educational problem in this Commonwealth in a practical way, and I should like to have an opportunity to put that experience into a practical and enlarged educational opportunity for the children of this Commonwealth. "Here in Johnstown, as much as anywhere in the Commonwealth, you have endeavored to fit your school system to the needs of your industrial community. You have done well, and your schools rank among the finest in the State. Good as they are, I believe that in a certain particular I can help to make them better by placing an increased emphasis upon the practical aspects of your school training in order that you may still more skillfully the young people of the community in an increased vocational efficiency. "Also, I am convinced that the public school buildings in our cities as well as in our rural communities should be open day and night for every legitimate use of the people of the community. Here the people should gather to discuss important questions, to hear good lectures, good music recitals, and all other forms of entertainment that will add to the intelligence and the social uplift of the community. Our school plan and our superb teaching force constitute an asset of tremendous importance to the uplift of our whole people. "Here also the school system could so inter-relate itself with your great industries that the transition from school life to toil could be made gradually and not abruptly as now. Here, under conditions that are ideal, could be developed a great system of continuation schools, open to the young people who have already gone to work and to which for part of their working days they could return for increased intellectual guidance and discipline.

Need of Good Roads

"For all that splendid program that looks to the betterment of our people, and which reflects itself in a finer home life and better educational opportunities for childhood and a wider spiritual enjoyment of our churches, I stand committed, and to it I shall devote all my energies. I submit that no party anywhere in the country can offer with the assurance of its successful accomplishment a more progressive platform of remedial legislation than this. "I also wish to have it understood that I believe it is right that the next Legislature should pass a resolution submitting to the people the question of whether or not women should vote in Pennsylvania, and also whether or not alcoholic liquors should be licensed in the several counties in Pennsylvania.

For all these things which I have submitted in my primary platform I still stand and shall stand to the end because I believe that the people of this State are with me in the judgment that the day has come when the conservation of the human life in this State is the prime obligation which its officials should consider. "Surely Cambria county needs better roads than it has. Its growing population, its multiplying industries, its constant need of transportation are unquestionably evidences that everywhere throughout the county, as well as in the State at large, that there should be well-built, wisely-maintained highways, which, first of all, should be so constructed as to make it easy for the products of the farm to be brought to the markets and market stations of the world, and that in the second place should facilitate the quick transit of our people from one point to another in the dispatch of their daily duties.

Favors a Civil Service

"I am absolutely in favor of this and shall insist that the coming Legislature shall make large appropriations—as large as the resources of the Commonwealth permit—for the building of good, honest roads in Pennsylvania. Money so used must bring back to the people dollar for dollar in roads that we invest in taxes, and these roads must be supervised when constructed and kept daily in good repair by men who know how, and not merely by men who, by reason of the accident of politics, would seek to live upon the public treasury without rendering an adequate service for the money they receive. "I should favor indeed a wise State civil service which would include in its provisions these officers who would have charge of the highways of Pennsylvania, for the highways are not political entities—they are economic necessities."

THREE CANDIDATES HEARD IN FIFTH STREET CHURCH

Dr. Brumbaugh Preaches Sermon to the Rev. Mr. Hart's Congregation—McCormick and Pinchot Discuss the Local Option Issue

Speeches by three candidates for high offices, Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, Republican nominee for Governor; Vance C. McCormick, Democratic nominee for Governor, and Gifford Pinchot, Washington party nominee for United States Senator, were delivered yesterday at the rally of the Fifth Street Methodist church, of which the Rev. B. H. Hart is pastor. Dr. Hart had advertised the appearance of the candidates, who spoke at different meetings, his announcement being that they would speak on "the moral issues of the campaign."

and the Roman influence with the teachings of Christ in the Sermon on the Mount, which appealed not to the reason alone, or to the feelings, but to the will power of humanity. Dr. Brumbaugh declared that life is measured by deeds and that no man can be a Christian by subscribing alone to dogmas of faith, but only by doing as he is taught by the sayings of Christ. "The doctrine of service," he said, "was the fundamental principle of Christ's life and teachings."

Enumerating the foundations upon which the power of Christ rests, he reviewed His power of purpose, preparation, presentation and personality, and drew lessons from each of these four sources as illustrations of the possibilities of the Christian life in men.

Mr. McCormick, during his talk on local option, painted a word picture of two parades in a street, to illustrate the stand a good citizen should take on the moral issues involved in the campaign. Both parades, he said, were preceded by banners, bearing the inscription, "local option." Behind the one banner marched men in whose party platform was no line relating to local option, the saloonkeepers, brewers and distillers. Behind the other were anti-saloon men, the church members of the forces that have been fighting the liquor interests.

Mr. Pinchot at the night service said that the Christian people are a unit in their attitude on the drink habit and that it would be eliminated in Pennsylvania within a few years. "The church of Christ," he said, "needs now the spirit of our Master when He took the scourge and drove the money-changers from the Temple."
