TRAPPING ELEPHANTS In India Tame Animals Aid in Capturing the Wild Ones

In view of the vast strength possessed by full grown elephants, it seems at first sight almost incredible that they can be captured in herds and quickly subdued to the will of their masters.

At the present time, in Mysore, the regular method of capturing wild elephants is for a large number of natives to go into the jungle, some mounted on tamed elephants and many on foot, and to make a great noise and hail-bomb, which results in driving herds of the wild elephants into stockades or often into ponds of water which have previously been surrounded on all sides except at the approaches, by immensely strong palisades. As soon as the herd is opened the passages that had been left open are securely closed and then the trained elephants are brought into play to cajole and subdue the perplexed prisoners.

In Indian elephants are no longer captured, as they still are in Africa, by means of huge pitfalls in the ground. In these traps they are often seriously injured or killed. The Indian elephant is somewhat smaller than the African and differs from it in other ways—as, for instance, in the fact that tusks are possessed only by the males, while both sexes are provided with them in Africa. In general, also, the tusks of African elephants are nearly twice as large as those of their Indian relatives, a single pair sometimes weighing as much as 250 or 300 pounds.—Spokane Spokesman-Review.

INDIAN HOSPITALITY A Brand of Their Own, Not "Stingy Like the White Man"

The early experiences of the white practitioners among reservation Indians make a chapter of encounters with original prejudice not wholly finished. Even his own life was not safe if the doctor ventured too near the borderland of prejudice, and if a death occurred at the beginning of his practice he was likely to be avoided for the rest of his sojourn. Many an Indian came for the first dose and was never seen or heard of afterward—whether death or distaste was the result of his visit, the doctor might never know. Or an entire bottle of cough syrup would be consumed at once, on the theory that if a teaspoonful was good a bottleful would be better.

The constant hospitality practiced by Indians, and the custom of sharing the last crumb, is a phase of the food question difficult to be appreciated by whites. As long as an Indian has any subsistence, his neighbors and friends come a-visiting, to remain as long as the food holds out. To be inhospitable or "stingy like the white man" is an opprobrium which only the hardest Indian can socially survive. This Indian virtue bars the way to an equalization of any distribution of food, and is the cause of many of those cases of "Indians starving."—Southern Workman.

BREAKING OUT OF PIMPLES ON HEAD

Which Itched, Dried in White Scales, Hair Came Out Gradually, Cuticura Soap and Ointment Healed.

318 So. Lawrence St., Philadelphia, Pa. "I had a breaking out on the head. Small pimples came which were very red and itched and I scratched them. Then they dried up into white scales. I thought it was dandruff. When I combed my hair the scales showed up white. My hair came out gradually as the scales dried off. I saw an advertisement of a soap and I used it but found no relief. It caused me to be awake at night for it made my head itch something awful. A friend suggested a cake of Cuticura Soap and some Cuticura Ointment. I sent for a sample which I promptly received, then I bought one box of Cuticura Ointment and three cakes of Cuticura Soap and now I am entirely cured and my hair has come in as well as ever." (Signed) Miss Lydia Lockman, Feb. 18, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail A generation of mothers has found no soap so well suited for cleansing and purifying the skin and hair of infants and children as Cuticura Soap. Its absolute purity and refreshing fragrance alone are enough to recommend it above ordinary skin soaps, but there are added to these qualities delicate yet effective emollient properties, derived from Cuticura Ointment, which render it most valuable in overcoming a tendency to distressing eruptions and promoting a normal condition of skin and hair health when all else fails. Cuticura Soap (25c) and Cuticura Ointment (50c) sold by druggists and dealers throughout the world. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book on skin and scalp troubles. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Identified Observing an unfamiliar shrub by a country roadside, a student of botany stopped to make an examination. "Are you acquainted with the flower, young man?" he asked of a passing yokel. "Yep," the boy laconically answered. "To what family do you think it belongs?" "I don't know," the boy answered, "but I think it belongs to the family of the Puck."

The Decreased Consumption of Coffee has caused widespread alarm among the coffee trade.

"There's a Reason"

Twenty years ago the manufacture of Postum was started in the small white building shown above. The business grew!

Doctors found that coffee drinking was hurting the health of people, right and left.

Chemists analyzed coffee and found this harm was due to two health-wrecking drugs, caffeine and tannin.

People injured by coffee stopped its use and started to drink.

POSTUM

Twenty great factory buildings covering nearly ten acres now surround the little building where Postum was first made, and carloads of this wholesome food-drink are shipped daily to take the place of coffee on the tables of hundred of thousands.

Each cup of coffee carries its dose of caffeine and tannin (about 2 1/2 grains of each) and sooner or later symptoms of poisoning show themselves in headache, biliousness, heart disturbance, nervousness, indigestion, sleeplessness, etc.

Relief generally follows when one quits coffee and uses POSTUM.

Postum, a pure food-drink with a rich Java like flavour, is made of prime wheat and a small per cent. of molasses, absolutely free from caffeine, tannin or any other harmful ingredients.
