PRODUCTIONS OF ASPHALT

Decrease in Natural Supply but Big Increase in Manufactured
 Washington, D. C., Oct. 20.—Although there was a decrease in the production of natural asphalt in the United States in 1913, including all the varieties of natural asphalt and asphaltic sandstone and limestone, there was a far greater corresponding increase in the output of manufactured or oil asphalt, according to the United States Geological Survey. Oil asphalt obtained as a residue from the distillation of Mexican Gulf, and California asphaltic oils, and even from those of the Middle West, is becoming more and more available. There is correspondingly less interest in the development of new sources of natural asphalt.

U. S. FOREST SERVICE NOTES

Cinders From Burning Trees Carried a Distance of Twenty Miles
 As many as 72 different kinds of wood were used in the manufacture of umbrella handles, canes and whips in this country.

Authentic records show that cinders from a forest fire in the tree tops in Northern Washington this fall, were carried a distance of twenty miles.

According to the latest available figures, Pennsylvania stands fifth in the production of wood pulp and is second to West Virginia in the amount of shags and other sawmill waste used for public Maine stands third.

The better wood engravings are made almost exclusively of boxwood and the large blocks are made of small pieces glued together. The engraving is done across the end of the grain. Japanese wood prints, on the other hand, are made on lengthwise sections of cherry wood parallel to the grain.

Throughout the national forests the rangers are posting the roads with permanent guide signs which tell distances and directions, especially at forks and cross-roads. The signs are usually put up in the winter when other work tends to be light. On some forests the rangers go on snowshoes, dragging loaded sleds and nail the signboards to the roadside trees.

AN UNLUCKY BRIG

Once Abandoned, the Marie Celeste Came to a Bad End
 There are few people who have not heard of the case of the American brig Marie Celeste, which in 1872 was inexplicably abandoned in calm weather off the Azores by a crew never after heard from. Few, however, know that it ended its career many years later at the hands of the barrator.

On its last voyage it cleared from Boston for Port au Prince, Haiti, ostensibly with a cargo of valuable general merchandise, insured for $30,000. When within a few miles of its destination it went ashore near Miragone and became a total wreck. The captain, Parker, promptly sold the cargo, sight unseen, to American Consul Mitchell for $500. Mitchell saved it at some trouble, but lived to wish he had not.

When the underwriters' agent arrived on the scene to investigate, he found several funny things about the cargo. One case shipped as cutlery and insured for $1,000 contained dog collars worth $50. Barrels supposed to contain expensive liquors were full of worthless dregs, a consignment of salt fish insured for $5,000 was rotten, and other articles mentioned in the bill of lading proved to be in keeping.
