ARRANGE ARMY-NAVY GAME

Academies Get 11,500 Tickets Each—Penn Can Sell 7,000 Seats For Charity

Philadelphia, Oct. 22.—At a meeting held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Dr. J. William White, 1819 South Rittenhouse square, an agreement was entered into for the Army-Navy football game for this year.

The agreement was to the effect that the game was to be played at 2 p. m. on Saturday, November 28, on Franklin Field, that each academy should have 11,500 seats (the exact number offered them last year at the Polo Grounds); that each party to the agreement should be at liberty to dispose of its seats as it saw fit, provided that in case of the sale of seats the net proceeds should be divided between the Army and Navy Relief Societies, and that there should be a general committee of supervision, consisting of the superintendents of the two academies and Dr. White.

There will be between 7,000 and 8,000 seats for the University of Pennsylvania to sell for the benefit of the Army and Navy relief funds. The last time the game was played on Franklin Field this sale netted $24,000. This will be reduced to about $15,000 this year because of the increased supply of seats awarded to the two academies.

Why the Minstrels Parade To the inquiry, "Why do the minstrels parade?" John W. Vogel, manager and proprietor of the Big City Minstrels, fifty all told, frankly responded:

"Primarily for the advertisement. Why else should I equip my band and company at such a large expenditure, if the display of the full strength of the company did not count for something? Who first put the minstrels in street parade? That skilled manager and exceedingly clever and original comedian, William W. Newcomb. He used at times to hire band-wagons of local liveries, and 'brass band the towns' as he termed it.

The stage would be much better off, were there more plays like "The Round-Up" which Robert Campbell is presenting this season by arrangement with Klaw & Erlanger. This play, while it enjoys and justifies the reputation of being the most stupendous production on the American stage is at the same time one of the sweetest and most wholesome ever offered for an audience's approval, and its tender and compelling story of the Southwestern border line is told in a delightfully pleasing manner.

Tobacco Important Crop Tobacco is a very important crop on the Hagerstown and Conestoga soils in Lancaster and York counties, and is grown to some extent in Chester, Lebanon, Berks and Dauphin counties.

While alfalfa is grown to some extent in every county, the acreage is low. On well-drained soils two or three cuttings are obtained, giving an annual yield of from three to five tons per acre.

Hagerstown Loam Strongest The Hagerstown loam is considered the strongest and most productive soil of the area. It is devoted mainly to general farm crops.

SOIL SURVEY OF THIS PART OF STATE IS MADE

Report of Government Bureau Emphasizes Importance of Utilizing Ground More Generally for Trucking Crops

Washington, D. C., Oct. 22.—The importance of utilizing more generally the soils for trucking crops is emphasized in the report on the Reconnaissance Soil Survey of Southeastern Pennsylvania made by the Bureau of Soils, U. S. Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the State College, particularly in the vicinity of large cities and mining towns and there are excellent opportunities for extending the industry all along the line.

The survey was made for the purpose of classifying the different soils of the region and to show to what crops they are best adapted and what agricultural methods should be employed. The report is the location and extent of the different types of the thirty-three series of soils found during the survey.

Dauphin County Is Included The area surveyed covers the nineteen counties of Southeastern Pennsylvania, including Northumberland, Montour, Columbia, Luzerne, Monroe, Carbon, Schuylkill, Dauphin, Lebanon, Berks, Lehigh, Northampton, Bucks, Montgomery, Philadelphia, Delaware, Chester, Lancaster and York, with a total area of 10,254 square miles.

Potatoes are grown on nearly every farm in the area, but only on the Berks soils of Northampton and Lehigh counties and in some regions on the Chester soils is this crop an important step in the rotations item or in the farm income. Usually only about enough land is devoted to the crop for home use and possibly to supply the local market.

Potatoes are generally well fertilized but greater diligence in tilling and careful spraying will serve to materially increase the returns.

While alfalfa is grown to some extent in every county, the acreage is low. On well-drained soils two or three cuttings are obtained, giving an annual yield of from three to five tons per acre.

Fruit growing is being developed on the Dekalb soils of the section, and results being obtained. With care and fertilization these soils should give good results with this industry.

The shale, silt loam and loam of the Dekalb series are devoted to general crops with good yields, corn averaging about 50 bushels, oats 40, wheat 20 and potatoes 100 bushels per acre. The soils are generally deficient in lime and respond to applications of manure and the plowing under of green crops.

The Berks soils mapped during the survey are devoted to the general farm crops of the region. Fruit is grown to a considerable extent, apples and peaches doing well.

Hagerstown Loam Strongest The Hagerstown loam is considered the strongest and most productive soil of the area. It is devoted mainly to general farm crops. Corn averages 50 bushels, oats 45 bushels, wheat 25 bushels and hay one and one-half tons per acre.

Lime is needed to obtain the best results with the Conestoga loam. Crop yields are high on this soil, corn averaging from 50 to 60 bushels, wheat 25 to 30 bushels and oats 35 to 50 bushels per acre.

The Chester soils of the section are the most important and extensive series of the Piedmont region of the State. They are extensively and typically developed in Chester and Delaware counties. Drainage conditions are usually good. They are well adapted to general farming and to dairying and give good results with potatoes and fruit, especially apples.

The Penn soils are well adapted to general farm crops, yields on the loam being: Corn 100 bushels, oats 30 bushels, wheat 20 bushels, rye 25 bushels, hay 1 1/2 tons and potatoes 150 bushels per acre.

WOMAN VAIN 2000 B. C. Vanity Box 4,000 Years Old Recovered at U. of P. Museum

Philadelphia, Oct. 22.—That woman painted and powdered 4,000 years ago is shown by a complete vanity box, dated 2,000 B. C., just received at the University of Pennsylvania Museum. It is a gift of the British School of Archaeology in Egypt.
