SUNDAY CLOSING UP TO CHURCHES

Stough Tells Ministers This Morning That He Will Not Urge Matter Further

MAKES MENTION OF ELECTION

William S. Essick Will Be Toastmaster at Banquet in Evangelist's Honor To-morrow Night—Business and Professional Men to Speak

At a conference between the Rev. Dr. Henry W. Stough and the pastors of co-operating churches held this morning at the Market Square Presbyterian church, the evangelist told the ministers that he would not urge further the matter of closing the churches Sunday mornings.

Dr. Stough expressed the hope that all would be united in the co-operating ministerium throughout the campaign, and promised that to the extent of his power he would endeavor to prevent misunderstandings and resultant strife.

Calls Election a "Farce"

The evangelist made a brief but very emphatic statement regarding yesterday's election. He told how he had visited polling places and found drunkenness, and mentioned the names of county officials whose actions he considered improper.

Last Night's Sermon

Despite the fact that it was election night, nearly 7,000 persons heard Evangelist Stough at the tabernacle last night. Among his striking assertions of the evening were, that persons who must cough in the audience should buy cough drops, that he had seen "judges of election so soured they could hardly count the votes."

of dry rot to-day, that the church which doesn't bring souls to Jesus Christ should be turned into a hay shed, and that religion has gone to seed in a lot of churches.

Speakers Chosen for Banquets

William S. Essick has been chosen toastmaster for the banquet to be given Dr. Stough to-morrow evening at the Board of Trade building by business and professional men of the city.

LATE SUMMARY OF WAR NEWS

London was silent to-day regarding the naval engagement off the Chilean coast Sunday. The American ambassador at Santiago, its official spokesman, confirmed the German official press reports of a German naval victory in which five German vessels were sunk or put out of action three British warships.

It is reported that a Japanese-British fleet that had been operating among the islands of the Pacific started south to attack the victorious Germans. Wireless communication between the British cruiser Monmouth was sunk, the cruiser Good Hope put to flight when apparently in a sinking condition and the Glasgow driven into a neutral port.

There is no change on the extreme north of the battle line in Belgium and France, according to the French official statement issued this afternoon. The allies claim progress between Dixmude and the Lyse and to the east of Leuven.

ALLEGED GERMAN RETREAT IS PLEASING NEWS TO PARIS

Paris, Nov. 4, 6:55 A. M.—What the Belgian official communication designated as the "precipitate retreat" of the Germans before the advance of the allies of the Yser river in Belgium was pleasing news to Parisians to-day, even though previous developments had given the hope that this soon would be the case.

The significance of the move is the chief topic of discussion. Opinions differ somewhat as to the import of the withdrawal of the Germans who, in falling back, it was stated, suffered considerable losses.

There is also much speculation as to the destination of the Germans as the Belgian communication merely stated that they were retreating towards the east. The fact that the allies retained in this section the positions they occupied the day before would seem to indicate the Germans had not been pushed very far.

General Berthaut, the military critic, in his comment on the news, did not regard the retreat as a well-defined victory for the allies. To him it appeared more like a falling back as the result of exhaustion and because the Germans found it impossible to remain longer in the inundated country.

MOVEMENTS OF THE ALLIES

Described in Report Made Public by Belgian War Minister. Havre, Nov. 4, via Paris, 4:10 P. M.—The Belgian Minister of War to-day made public an official report received by him from Brussels, on the Belgian coast, half way between Dunkirk and Ostend, the text of which is as follows: "Detachments of allied troops which to-day pushed ahead as far as Lombaertzde on the Yser front below Schoorbaek, failed to discover any of the enemy. Only small detachments of artillery still remain in the direction of Westend and to the northeast of Schoorbaek."

Francis Bacon

The death of Francis Bacon was caused by his devotion to the cause of research and scientific investigation. During one of his excursions to the country he conceived the idea that animal substances may be preserved by means of snow. He procured a fox and conducted the experiment himself. A severe cold was the result, and in his already enfeebled condition he was not able to withstand it and died of what we now know as bronchitis, April 9, 1626, aged 65, at the home of Lord Arundel. He was buried in St. Michael's church, St. Albans.

THE EXPLOITS OF THE GERMAN CRUISER EMDEN IN THE BAY OF BENGAL AND DESTRUCTION SHE WROUGHT ON MADRAS

THE EMDEN PREPARING TO FIRE A BROADSIDE AT THE BRITISH MERCHANTMAN, THE DIPLOMAT

THE HARBOR OIL RESERVOIRS MADRAS, TWO OF WHICH ARE BURNING

The first warning of the Emden's presence off Madras on the night of September 22 was conveyed by the use of her searchlights, which located the huge petroleum tanks adjoining the harbor. She immediately fired on them with her 4.1 guns and ignited two of them. These blazed furiously until after noon the next day. Nothing could be done to subdue the flames, which fortunately did not spread. Meanwhile the Emden had several more oil reservoirs, some being riddled with shot from bursting shrapnel.

THE EMDEN WITH THE CAPTURED GREEK MERCHANTMAN, THE PONTOPOROS, EMPLOYED AS A COLLIER IN ATTENDANCE

The British merchantman Diplomat was sunk by the Emden during the course of the German cruiser's depredations in the Bay of Bengal. It took five shots to sink her. The above illustration, which was taken from the deck of the Kabinga, shows the Emden preparing to fire a broadside at the ill-fated vessel.
