STOUGH ASKS FOR MAYOR IN PULPIT

"I believe everyone should think well of the city in which he lives," said he. "When you think any other place is better for you, move out. You are living here because you think that Harrisburg is the best place in the world for you. This city is your educator, the trainer of your morals. You get all you know and have from this city's libraries, its schools, its churches and its saloons. You need to do your best for Harrisburg. People are never any better than the city in which they live."

Relation Between "But" and "Butt." After the investigators had praised the situation of Jericho, they changed the trend of their remarks with the introduction of the conjunction "but," which gave the evangelist opportunity to enlarge on the uses to which that word can be put. He gave a laughable demonstration of the alleged way in which women gossip at meetings of "the ladies' think society," telling all the good things that happen to know about their neighbors, and then bringing in the "but," and "butting" until their neighbors are all "butted."

People will see the nicest things, declared the evangelist, and then will but, but and butt. After successfully imitating a goat in action he told what he had overheard a woman say about his preaching, which ran like this:

What Woman Said of the Preaching "It was thoroughly disgusting to me. I hated the way he treated our poor ministers, especially. It all seemed so much like a regular circus to me, and really, it was worse than many moving picture shows I have been to. Oh, I was so shocked. I never got to go back to that tabernacle again—until to-night."

The preacher then drew a comparison between "a little stinking stream called Linn run, in an Ohio town, which gathered up all the filth from manure piles, breweries and mills, and which the natives seemed to enjoy smelling," and "the streams of wickedness you have right here in your city, gathering up all your filth, which you like to smell. I tell you Harrisburg stinks to Heaven to-night."

The first "Linn run of Harrisburg," he mentioned was "Sabbath desecration," and he declared that Sunday has become a day of pleasure instead of a day of worship, church members deserting pews to go picnicking, boating and motoring. He next spoke of "the stream of intemperance," and began a rapid fire which carried him some distance from his subject.

Tuesday's Election Discussed

"Your business men like the smell of that nasty little stream, the stream of the most despicable liquor traffic, the standing disgrace of the hour," you citizens of Pennsylvania, church members deserting pews to go picnicking, boating and motoring. He next spoke of "the stream of intemperance," and began a rapid fire which carried him some distance from his subject.

What you voters did yesterday means that for the next few years liquor holds high carnival in Pennsylvania. You have voted for your booze government and I hope you get your bellies full of it. Oh, I never speak in Hebrew or Latin when I'm talking stuff like this.

Same on you. Down on Market street yesterday, where your face is as clean as it is anywhere, your election commissioners took the votes of citizens in homes where death and damnation are dealt out. My God, isn't it awful. In the rear of one of the saloons I saw your county coroner stick his mug in a door. Now, you preachers can at least say "satan" once in awhile, and I'll grab a fresh one.

Infant Drunk Election Night

"Let's look at the tragedy of the thing. A friend of mine was called into a house last night, after the election, where he found the head of the family staggering about drunk, the wife prostrate on a bed, drunk, two children under 10 years of age also drunk. That a 21-month-old baby, dead drunk. That man, that personal liberty did to that man and his family. He had vowed he would get on a big drunk until Wurttemberg was elected, and that he would make the whole family drunk. At this moment the baby is hovering between life and death, from the effects of the raw whiskey that was fed it."

"God help me to do my duty in this light. Some of you sleep here go out and knock me, when I'm standing for virtue, womanhood, manhood and childhood. For God's sake bury your little superficial criticisms."

"The stream of immorality" was the next brought under discussion. The evangelist said that the streets of Harrisburg are filled with "nasty, vile lit."

HOW FRENCH PEOPLE CURE STOMACH TROUBLE

A household remedy of pure vegetable oil, and said to possess wonderful merit in the treatment of stomach, liver and intestinal troubles, has been introduced in this country by George H. Mayr, who for twenty years has been one of the leading down town druggists of Chicago and who himself was cured by its use. So quick and effective is its action that a single dose is usually enough to bring pronounced relief in the most stubborn cases, and many people who have tried it declare they never heard of anything to produce such remarkable results in so short a time. It is known as Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy and can now be had at almost any drug store. It is now sold here by Geo. A. Gorgas, 16 North Third street and Pennsylvania Railroad Station. Adv.

MUCH ADLER-I-KA USED IN HARRISBURG

It is reported by Geo. A. Gorgas, druggist, 16 North Third street and Pennsylvania Railroad Station, that much Adler-I-ka is sold in Harrisburg. People have found out that ONE SPOONFUL of this simple buckthorn bark and glycerine mixture relieves almost ANY CASE of constipation, sour or gassy stomach. It is so powerful that it is used successfully in appendicitis. ONE MINUTE after you take it the gasses rumble and pass out. It is perfectly safe to use and cannot gripe. Adv.

the girls who trade their virtue for a coin and are to-day poisoning our young manhood." He said he was tired of the little criticisms that have been made about his methods, "while the city is going to Hell."

Churches Called Dead

"Your churches here are dead," he shouted, moving rapidly to and fro. "Your preachers resort to moving picture shows and all sorts of fuss to get the platform in evidence, distressing the people, yet the best moving picture shows you can produce are yourselves. Your churches are dead, dead, dead, plucked up by the roots, twice dead, thrice dead."

"What do you church members suppose I want to get people into the churches for, to be like you? Not much. The unsaved can play cards, can tango, and can drink booze from hidden places in their sideboards, without joining churches to do it. Do you suppose I want to ask some people to join your gang? The only difference between a lot of you and the persons outside of the church is that you have your nasty little names on church books, thereby confessing to hypocrisy. You better start acting differently. I don't want the sinners in this town contaminated."

"Oh, she's pinching, I can tell it," he said after a pause, limping across the platform in evident distress caused by tightness of the shoe, "but sit still, and don't rock the boat."

Strawberry Alley "Raising Hell" "Some of you are afraid to call your soul your own," he declared in conclusion. "You've sold out to your political party, sold out to your lodge, sold out to your business, sold out to everything. That gang you supported yesterday laughs and scoffs at you church members to-day."

"You have no religion to spare in Harrisburg. What you do have is all that has kept things going. You sing your beautiful hymns in your finely upholstered pews on Sundays, and think you're doing well. But while you're doing it, down in Strawberry alley they're raising Hell. What do they care for your fine singing down there, as long as you do nothing more than just sing. What we need to do is to get in contact with places of evil. When we do that, we'll save old Harrisburg."

HEIGHT OF WAVES

In Severe Storms the Crests May Mount Fifty Feet

It is only in the imagination of the poets that waves rise "mountains high." The exact altitude and length of waves have been measured with scientific accuracy, and the record waves are carefully recorded. Waves in shallow water are, as a rule, higher than those in open or deep water. The height of a wave is commonly about one-fiftieth its length.

The longest wave on record was 2,500 feet, measuring from crest to crest, its period being about twenty-two seconds. Waves of extreme length are seldom very high. A wave 2,500 feet in length, rising in deep water, will have a height of about fifty feet.

When a wave enters shallow water its crest becomes considerably higher, and one out of forty feet will frequently rise to fifty feet. If it meets resistance, it may be thrown up twice this height.

In severe storms at sea waves rarely reach a height of fifty feet. The average in such time has a period of about ten seconds, which would indicate a length of about 500 feet. Waves with a period of ten seconds have a length of from 150 to 300 feet and a height of thirty-three feet and form a very high sea.—Exchange.

Fully Explained

The colored sexton of a wealthy church had a very peculiar way of finding his domestic income not quite equal to his expenses, he decided to apply for an increase in salary. So he wrote a letter to the committee in charge with this explanation at the close: "It's mighty hard to keep a seak-skin wife on a muskrat salary."—New York Sun.

A BRIDE FROM THE TOMB

Odd Romance of Benedello Marcellio, the Venetian Composer

Benedello Marcellio, one of the most famous Venetian composers, fell in love with a beautiful girl named Leonora Manfrotti, who married Paolo Seranzo, a Venetian noble. She died a short time after her marriage, a victim to the harsh and jealous treatment of her husband.

Her body was laid out in state in one of the churches, and her lover actually succeeded in stealing the corpse and conveying it to a ruined crypt in one of the islands, and here he sat day and night by his lost love, singing and playing to her, as though by the force of his art he could recall her to life.

Leonora had a twin sister, Eliade, who was so like her that the closest friends could scarcely distinguish them. One day Eliade heard a singer in a gondola singing so exquisitely that she traced the gondola to the deserted island, and there she learned later the fate of her sister's corpse and the identity of Marcellio. Aided by a servant, Eliade substituted herself for her sister's body, and when Marcellio returned and called Leonora to awake he did not ask in vain, for apparently she rose alive from the coffin. Marcellio when he found out the delusion was quite satisfied and married Eliade, but his happiness was short lived, as he died a few years afterward.—London Telegraph.

THE LABORER AND HIS HIRE

In London they tell the story of a manufacturer who announced to his hands that if they would attend church at Easter he would see that they were handsomely rewarded. Naturally all hands went to church, and the manufacturer from his pew surveyed the workmen with an air of pride. This, however, was mitigated by the appearance after service of the foreman, who said:

"The men want to know if we come to church again to-night do we get overtime?"

Church—I see crowds in motion on grand stands and similar structures exert a strain equal to about 175 per cent. of their weight.

Gotham—That refers to the times when the home team is winning, I guess.—Yonkers Statesman.

The Hymeli Remedy for Catarrh, Colds and Croup a Most Valuable Discovery

The discovery of Hymeli has made a wonderful change in the treatment of catarrh, head colds, and similar ailments—you simply breathe a medicated air-sing a small inhaler that comes with every complete outfit.

Hymeli is a combination of antiseptic oils that mixes with the air so that its health-giving medication must go directly to the sore, raw, inflamed lining of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes. It almost immediately stops the disagreeable nasal discharges, quickly relieves that choked-up feeling, heals and strengthens the delicate tissues.

The strongest evidence of Hymeli's curative value for catarrh, head colds, asthma, etc., is that your well-known druggist, H. C. Kennedy, sells it under a guarantee to return your money if you are not satisfied. Do not delay treatment for Hymeli is not only harmless but pleasant to use, and nothing to pay if not cured. Adv.
