5 STATES QUARANTINED FOR FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

Shipments of Live Stock From Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Pennsylvania Prohibited and Restrictions Placed on Those From Ohio

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—The quarantine of live stock on account of outbreaks of the foot and mouth disease has been extended to cover the entire area of the States of Michigan, Indiana, Illinois and Pennsylvania. In addition, restrictions have been placed upon shipments of stock from Ohio.

The provisions of this quarantine are practically the same as those previously announced for a few counties in Michigan and Indiana. No cattle, sheep or swine can be shipped from these States in interstate commerce, and all feller and animal products of every sort which might possibly convey the disease must be thoroughly disinfected.

The quarantined States are not only prohibited from shipping cattle to uninfected areas, but they cannot even send shipments of stock from one infected area to another.

No cases of foot and mouth disease have as yet been discovered in Ohio, but on account of the fact that shipments from infected areas have been made to this State, it has been found necessary to place practically the same restrictions upon interstate shipments from Ohio as on those from the four other States.

One instance of foot and mouth disease has been found among the stock exhibited at the National Dairy Show in Chicago. In order to prevent the spread of the infection, the other animals are now guarded by sheets saturated with disinfectants and inclosing the stalls, in much the same way as human patients are isolated in hospitals.

Other rigid precautions in regard to the food and bedding of the stock have also been put in force. The Federal authorities in charge of the quarantine are earnestly urging every farmer to report at once any suspicious case of sore mouths and lameness among his stock. This is regarded as absolutely indispensable, if the disease is to be stamped out. Unreported cases of disease may result in spreading the infection over areas which could otherwise be safeguarded. Persons who have recently received shipments of cattle from the infected areas should, at once isolate them. The disease takes only from four to six days to manifest itself, so that this precaution should cause but very little inconvenience.

REPORT ON THE SUBJECT OF WAGES AND HOURS OF LABOR

Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor Announces Information Received From Representative Establishments

Washington, D. C., Nov. 6.—A report on the subject of wages and hours of labor in the iron and steel industry has just been published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the United States Department of Labor, as its Bulletin 151. The report is based on information obtained from the pay rolls of representative establishments in the various industrial centers of the iron and steel industry.

In three departments for which data are presented for the years 1907 to 1912 and in six other departments for which data are presented for the years 1910 to 1912 the average wages per hour and the average full-time weekly earnings of employees were, with few exceptions, higher in 1912 than in any of the preceding years, while the average full-time hours per week were in most cases lower. There was thus an increase of wages and a reduction of hours of work per week in the industry as a whole, though in certain departments the tendency toward higher wages and earnings and lower hours was not constant from year to year.

In blast furnaces the full-time weekly earnings in 1912 were 1.1 per cent. higher than in 1907, 7.3 per cent. higher than in 1908, 8.2 per cent. higher than in 1909, 0.3 per cent. higher than in 1910 and 0.6 per cent. higher than in 1911. In the Bessemer-converting department in 1912 the full-time weekly earnings were 4.5 per cent. higher than in 1907, 14 per cent. higher than in 1908, 7.2 per cent. higher than in 1909, 2.6 per cent. higher than in 1910 and 7.5 per cent. higher than in 1911. In plate mills the full-time weekly earnings in 1912 were 2.3 per cent. higher than in 1907, 8.7 per cent. higher than in 1908, 6.3 per cent. higher than in 1909, 3.8 per cent. lower than in 1910 and 1 per cent. higher than in 1911.

For the six other departments figures are shown only for the three years 1910, 1911 and 1912. In five of these, namely, the open hearth, blooming, plate, sheet and tin plate departments, full-time weekly earnings were higher in 1912 than in either of the two preceding years. In the other one, standard rail mills, full-time weekly earnings were highest in 1910.

There was a reduction of hours of labor between 1907 and 1912 in the blast furnace, Bessemer-converting and bar mill departments and, with the exception of plate mills, each of the other departments of the industry shows a reduction of hours between 1910 and 1912. In blast furnaces the full-time hours per week were 3.9 per cent. lower in 1912 than in 1907, in Bessemer converters 2.2 per cent. lower and in bar mills 1.3 per cent. lower.

In open hearth furnaces the full-time hours per week were 0.8 per cent. lower in 1912 than in 1910, in blooming mills 0.6 per cent. lower, in standard rail mills 4.2 per cent. lower, in sheet mills 1.3 per cent. lower and in tin plate mills 0.1 per cent. lower, while in plate mills the full-time hours in 1912 were 0.3 per cent. higher than in 1910.

In the establishments reporting there was a marked reduction in the proportion of employees customarily working seven days per week. This was made possible by the custom adopted in many plants of making provision to lay off one day per week each employee in the 7-day occupations thus making a 6-day week for those employees. In the blast furnaces the proportion of 7-day workers fell from 97.2 per cent. in 1907 to 82 per cent. in 1912 and during the same period the proportion of such workers fell from 24.1 to 14.9 per cent. in Bessemer converters and from 1.1 to 0.4 per cent. in bar mills. Between 1910 and 1912 the proportion fell from 17.5 to 16.3 per cent. in blooming mills and from 30 to 2.1 per cent. in standard rail mills, while in plate mills there was an increase from 4.5 to 6.8 per cent. In tin plate and sheet mills the number and per cent. of 7-day workers was very small and there was little change between 1910 and 1912.

RAMBAUD GOING TO FRANCE

Head of Pasteur Institute to Use Automobile as Hospital

New York, Nov. 6.—Dr. George G. Rambaud, in charge of the Pasteur Institute here and the husband of Mme. Germaine-Rocha, the opera singer, is making his plans to sail for France some time next month, there to offer his services to the government as an army surgeon.

He expects to ship an automobile to France and if possible to use it as a sort of hospital auxiliary, taking a trained nurse and perhaps another surgeon and traveling from place to place to the lack of surgeons and the need of the wounded may demand.

This plan has been proposed to the French government by Dr. Rambaud through the French Ambassador at Washington and he is only awaiting a reply before sailing.

It was Dr. Rambaud who selected six surgeons for the "Sun" who were sent to France with money supplied by the Duchesse de Talleyrand several weeks ago. All of those surgeons are now working among the wounded either in Paris or in the provincial districts. Dr. Mary Crawford, of Brooklyn, who was one of them has been attached to the American hospital, near Paris.
