SOUND UNDER WATER

It May Be Used in the Future to Measure Ocean Depths. Alexander Graham Bell, the inventor, told a class of young students at Washington recently about putting his head under water and striking two stones together beneath the surface.

"It sounded as if a man were hammering for all he was worth at my very ear."

Next he sent a boy a mile away to strike the stones, and "the signals came perfectly clear and distinct."

In these little facts, and the other fact that sound goes over 5,000 feet a second through water to its 1,000 feet through air, lay for somebody the germ of the submarine bell signals used on ships.

Now, in exploring the earth's surface as it lies under deep waters, a great deal of time and labor are expended merely in ascertaining the depth.

"Why," asks Professor Bell, as reported in the "National Geographic Magazine," "should we not send down a sound instead and listen for an echo from the bottom?"—thus accomplishing in four seconds a work now taking sometimes more than four hours.

And we should learn by the shorter method something of the nature of the things below: "A flat bottom should yield a single sharp return, whereas an undulating bottom should yield a multiple echo, like that heard when you fire a pistol among hills."

The Only Really Illustrated Bible

Heretofore the word "illustrated," as applied to a Bible, meant merely a few allegorical "pictures" of Biblical events taken from any source and "conveniently" placed in any part of the books, merely as embellishment inserts, but not directly alongside and explanatory of the verse intended to typify or make plain; but our publishers, at an outlay of $50,000, prepared accurate illustrations DESCRIPTIVE of the VERSE which they accompany, and placed directly next to the verse of the scene described—the only place it can be looked for or found quickly, the only place the illustration is a help to you—making this the FIRST and ONLY complete ILLUSTRATED Bible.

$50,000 Spent For Illustrations

Both Catholic and Protestant Editions presented under the same terms as shown in the free certificate printed elsewhere.

More than 600 beautiful art pictures, by the world's greatest artists, are printed with the type matter, where they at once explain the subject which they accompany. These magnificent illustrations alone cost $50,000. In addition thereto are full-page plates of the world-famed Tisot collection in colors. These beautiful color engravings are also carefully selected, with the object of further making plain obscure passages in this greatest of all Books. It can truthfully be said that never before have illustrations so vividly portrayed their subjects and embodied in them the spirit of living reality.
