

PLAN TO TREBLE PENN. MILITIA

Washington Writer Says Government Is Considering Big Reservist Force

TO PROVIDE AN ARMY OF 60,000

In This State Alone the Strength of the National Guard Would Be Increased From 10,935 to 42,700 Men, Says Correspondent

A Washington correspondent of the New York "World" sent that newspaper under date of yesterday, a story that the General Staff and War College of the War Department are now engaged in working out a plan for the general reorganization of the land forces of the country, the intention being to provide for the better protection of the United States from foreign invasion in case of war.

It is said that this does not contemplate the increase of the regular army, but will be more directly devoted to the enlargement of the militia forces of the States, and contemplates the creation of a volunteer reservist force to bring the forty-eight state militia forces to 500,000 men who can be made ready for active military duty within two months. The reported plan including increasing the Pennsylvania militia from 10,935 to 42,700 men.

The regular army at present consists of 4,572 officers and 88,444 enlisted men, while the state militia forces show a strength of 128,034 men, of which 93,277 are actually available for military duty. The increase contemplates a development of the militia to about five times that of the number available to-day.

For a Permanent Training Camp

"It is the purpose of the Government to invite the cooperation of the States," says the "World's" correspondent, "in an effort to encourage a greater degree of interest in the development and efficiency of this branch of national defense."

"One of the details of the new plan contemplates the establishment of a permanent training camp in each State during a period of from four to six months every year. These are to be run on a uniform schedule of training to conform to the methods of the regular army."

"With this end in view, the condition of the citizen soldiery of all the States has been looked into and estimates made of the increases that will be necessary to bring them up to the desired strength of 500,000, which, with the regular army, would make available within sixty days a well trained fighting land force of approximately 600,000 men."

Under a tentative estimate prepared by the officials showing the present militia force of each State and the force under the proposed reorganization, Pennsylvania is shown to have at present a force of 10,935, which will be increased to 42,700, one other State surpassing it, New York with 64,700. It is estimated that of the 93,000 available militiamen at present only 70,000 would be actually ready to be graduated into the regular army.

The building up of efficient reserve forces (the State militia) may engage the attention of Congress when it meets a week from next Monday. That will depend on the decision of the President and Secretary of War as to the advisability for directing the attention of the lawmakers to the matter in their annual messages.

WANT WOMEN MUMMERS, TOO

Committeemen Will Seek to Interest Them in New Year's Parade
The Harrisburg Mummer's Association at a meeting in the Mayor's office last evening decided to hold a mass meeting in the near future to which women will be invited. This, it is believed, will stir up interest in the coming New Year's parade and it is hoped that some women clubs will be formed to enter the line of march.

A request has been made by the theatre interests to change the time of the parade so as not to interfere with the matinee performances on that day. This request has been turned over to the parade committee for consideration.

RUSSIA SAYS NOTHING OF ALLEGED GERMAN DEFEAT IN ITS OFFICIAL REPORT

Petrograd, Nov. 28.—The following statement from the Russian general staff was made public here last night:

On the left bank of the Vistula our troops, advancing from the lower part of the Buzura river have reached Gombin. In the center of the battle line we captured the town of Brzeziny and the villages in the valley of the Mroga river. In some places we dislodged the Germans by bayonet attacks. Our offensive in this region continues.

"Between Brzeziny and Głowno our cavalry succeeded in several charges against the German infantry. During the retreat of the enemy we captured a number of field guns, some with their guns complete. We are computing the number of prisoners captured. Among the German troops we pushed back from Rzgow and Tuszyn toward Brzeziny was a division of the Prussian guard."

"In the region of Szierz and Strykow we attacked the Germans toward Loidz. Between Szierz and Złunska Loza some German troops are still holding themselves in their trenches. In general between the Vistula and the Warta the fighting is favorable to our guns."

hamedans the world over to rise to arms against Great Britain and to other members of the Triple Entente. Thus far there have been no indications that the proclamation has led to uprisings affecting British interests elsewhere, although on several occasions there have been reports from Berlin of dissension in the ranks.

The destruction of a German battleship is reported in Paris. The Wilhelm Grosse is said to have been sunk by a mine in the Baltic, but there was no confirmation of the report.

An official communication from the Russian army to the Caucasus tells of further heavy fighting by the Russians which have invaded Turkey, but gives no indication of the outcome.

The situation in Russian Poland was as much of a mystery as ever. Private dispatches from Petrograd make further statements that Russia has overwhelmed the Germans, but they are not confirmed officially. Grand Duke Nicholas, the Russian commander, reports successes in several engagements, but says nothing to indicate that the decisive blow has been struck.

On the western battlefields there was continued calm. The British fleet is said to have resumed bombardment of German positions on the Belgian coast. Along the front the fighting apparently was limited to small skirmishes.

He is a graduate of the William Penn Charter School, Philadelphia, class of 1898, and since that time, with the exception of three years when he was in the employ of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railroad Company, he has been employed by the Pennay.

At the Photoplay

An unexpected business meeting prevents Brown from attending a Tango Dansant at Harmony Hall, with his wife, and she, greatly disappointed, goes to her mother's for the night, leaving the house in care of Mary Jane, the maid. Percy, the grocer's clerk, calls on Mary Jane, his sweetheart, and is royally entertained by her at the Brown's expense.

Brown finds the pair drinking punch. Percy sees him coming and beats it, but is caught by Mrs. Brown and the policeman. Mary Jane, light-headed from the punch, greets Brown affectionately and makes him drink some. Brown is taken home by his indignant wife, and poor Mary Jane, with no money, no position and scorned by Percy, feels her entertainment "has proven a pretty costly affair. Adv. ***

When Captain Sorcho comes to the Orpheum next week, he will actually bring with him a small ocean, a battle ship, some mines and other submarine contrivances, and according to advance reports he will give a most interesting, thrilling and pretentious vaudeville production.

During the morning the notes, exhibited behind the glass at the receiving desk, and on occasion passed out beneath the iron grating for some equivalent, attracted a great deal of attention, and the demand for copies has been brisk. The crisp new bills depict Lincoln and Jackson, Columbus discovering America and the landing of the Pilgrims, and scenes typical of agricultural and industrial life.

The Federal Reserve notes will be used concurrently with the other bank notes now in circulation.

CAPITOL HILL

Winding Up the Finances
Monday will witness the ending of the fiscal year, and the State's financial officers are engaged in preparing the figures to show the receipts and expenditures of the various funds. Already there are thirteen on the list that were continued from this month, and four more applications have been received, two of them from murderers who want their death sentences commuted to imprisonment for life. This will be the last meeting of the present Board, and the impression is that it will lean to the side of mercy, being near to Christmas time.

planning to raid their henery, which is situated on the opposite side of the road, directly in front of the house. Their suspicions were excited by reason of their hearing a team stop in front of the farm house and seeing the driver leave the wagon and move about with a light. Rupp, armed with a revolver, had not gone more than twenty feet from the house when members of his family heard several revolver shots.

A minute later a brother found Rupp breathing his last. In the interim the supposed chicken thief had returned to his team and started down the road toward Harrisburg at breakneck speed. The Harrisburg police apprehended Morgenthau on the Walnut street bridge over the Susquehanna river an hour later.

In the duel with Rupp, Morgenthau was shot through the wrist and the blood from the wound aided the police in his capture. The injury was dressed at the Harrisburg hospital and the man was brought later to the jail here, where he has since been confined.

Morgenthau's victim was widely known throughout the Cumberland Valley. He had an extensive dairy business and attended markets both here and in Harrisburg.
