NEWS OF STEELTON

TO MAIL CHRISTMAS SAVING FUND CHECKS NEXT WEEK

Holly Embossed Slips Returning to Depositors With Interest Economies of Past Twelve Months Will Be Delivered Soon

Although the Pennsylvania steel works is employing its men on a basis of about 50 per cent. capacity, or less, the borough's outlook for an enjoyable Christmas tide is not as gloomy as it would otherwise appear, for approximately $70,000 will be distributed by the two local banks within the next two weeks.

This large sum represents the Christmas savings funds which were started last Christmas tide by several thousand frugal residents of the borough, and the receipt of the checks, which will be mailed to each depositor from December 10 to 12, will be hailed with glee.

Despite the depression in the steel business this sum represents about 20 per cent. increase over the amounts paid out last year for the same purpose by the same institutions, and indicates that the Christmas savings funds have a strong hold on the residents of the borough.

NEW FORTY-FOUR INCH MILL WAS TESTED ON SATURDAY

Four Large Ingots Were Turned Into Seven-Inch Blooms and the Mill Is the Best Equipped of Any on the Local Grounds

The prediction made last spring when the Pennsylvania Steel Company announced its 1914 improvement plans, that the new chain of mills, since erected in the western end of the company's grounds would be ready for operations early in January, 1915, seems to be as near accurate as it is possible to foretell such events.

The first of these mills, known as the 44-inch mill, is completed and was tested Saturday in the presence of high officials of the company. Four large ingots were rolled into 7-inch blooms, the latter to be used in the merchant mill department.

The powerful mill engines are propelled by steam but electricity is used wherever practicable in handling the finished product. The test was satisfactory and was witnessed by Vice President J. V. W. Reynolds, F. D. Carney, general superintendent; C. P. Tanager, chief engineer; G. W. Greighton, who will have charge of the mill under the rail mill department, and A. F. Nelson, superintendent of the roll department.

The 44-inch mill will replace the slab mill and probably the No. 2 blooming mill in supplying rolled material for other departments. The mill is operated by steam and is more efficient and complete than any rolling mill previously operated in the plant.

THANKSGIVING MESSAGE FROM HUGH CHALMERS

Local Representatives of Famous Car Publish Extracts From Interesting Document Issued by Head of the Chalmers Company

The following extracts from Hugh Chalmers' Thanksgiving message were published by Robert L. Morton, manager of the Keystone Motor Car Company, the local representatives of the Chalmers car:

"It is a mighty fine thing to have one day set apart in this country for the purpose of checking up to see what things we have to be thankful for. Any nation that has time to give one day a year for thanksgiving for the blessings it has enjoyed is bound to be a great nation."

"Thanksgiving Day this year in this country had a peculiar significance. We ought to be thankful that we are at peace with the entire world."

"I don't believe we have done our full duty if we merely sit down and give thanks that we are at peace, or that we have plenty ourselves. I am quite sure we will all enjoy our Thanksgiving at our own family tables, much more if we have the satisfaction of knowing that we have contributed something to those less fortunate than ourselves. There are plenty of opportunities for all of us to give help to unfortunate and suffering people here in our own country; and if we don't know of any here, we certainly have a chance to help the poor people of Europe, particularly the Belgians. Too many people think it is only the business of those with lots of money to help out these good causes. As a matter of fact, it is every man's duty to do his share in matters of this kind. I believe every one of us will have a happier Thanksgiving if we feel that we have done our part in giving something to those not so fortunate as ourselves."

"We also have much to be thankful for in the fact that we have been blessed with wonderful crops, because, after all, we depend most upon wheat, corn and other crops for our prosperity. Providence certainly has been very kind to us in that respect this year."

"We have had some things to disturb us, particularly in a business way. But strong men always turn these disadvantages to their benefit. Some people seem to think that they would get along better if they had no troubles at all. This is not true. Trouble builds character, and every difficulty that forces us to think and to devise some way to overcome it, leaves us all the more stronger for the effort. In my opinion, the troubles we have had in a national business way in this country will turn out to be the best possible blessings we have received."

Out-of-town customers need not wait until they come here personally. Our Catalog (free on request) explains why. Price printed on every article. We buy from manufacturers and can save you the middle-man's profit."

STOUGH SAYS MEN MUST GUARD SONS

bred. This is true in poultry, cattle, horse, sheep or grains and cereals. The men in lives like this have found by improving the breed that can increase income and wealth. We are raising prize hogs, sheep, horses, prize this and that, but the thing we are forgetting to study is the raising boys.

After quoting statistics concerning the spread of "social diseases," the evangelist made a plea for his audience to stand with him against evil forces, saying that he did not mean his lecture as a condemnation of his hearers, but as an appeal to them.

While Mrs. Stough sang "Tell Mother I'll Be There," hundreds of men crowded into the aisles and in front of the platform, at an invitation from the evangelist. Then there was crying and singing and praying, until Dr. Stough and Prof. Spence, a bartender, who was among the converts, to the platform, when the enthusiasm reached its height in wave after wave of cheering. The men who had come to the front, asking that prayers be offered for them, were given trail hitters' cards to sign, and after much commotion, occasioned by handshakings and greetings, the multitude of men flowed gradually from the building.

2,500 Women Gather
While the men's meeting was in progress at the tabernacle, the women were having their biggest demonstration of the campaign at the Chestnut street hall. There were 2,500 women who obtained seats, and hundreds were turned away. In a room adjoining the hall, thirty babies were cared for by nurses during the meeting.

Miss Spence, whose sermons have been attracting such crowds of women since the opening of the campaign, spoke yesterday on "The American Python," assailing the liquor traffic and soliciting the co-operation of women in the temperance movement.

Temperance Possibilities in U. S.
Miss Palmer declared in the course of her lecture that "America could lead the world in temperance" because of its democratic institutions, and that the people only needed to make up their minds. She told how, in England, measures providing for local option or prohibition must go before the House of Lords, and are there lost, while in the United States the people are supreme and can themselves decide on the question.

Mrs. Stough sang at the meeting and Miss Laura Bullock led in prayer. At Miss Palmer's call, every woman in the audience rose to her feet in a declaration against the liquor traffic. Approximately 800 women then joined the Women's Christian Temperance Union. The demand for membership cards was greater than the supply.

Boys and Girls Meet

The boys and girls met in the afternoon at Fifth Street Methodist church, 700 strong. There was singing by William Webster, the girls' choir and the Campfire Girls. Boy Scouts ushered.

There was no sermon at the tabernacle yesterday morning. Dr. Stough devoted the time to the raising of money for wiping out the budget. In the evening, following continued efforts along that line, the evangelist preached on the text, "For God So Loved the World That He Gave His Only Begotten Son."

Husbands Embrace Wives

There were 76 trail hitters, including in their number many young married couples, several older pairs, and even sweethearts. The testimonies were given by the trail hitters with unusual briskness and apparent sincerity. Women sobbed on their husbands' shoulders, and the men kissed their wives as they held them in close embraces.

To-day was rest day for the Stough party, but a service will be held this evening at the tabernacle contrary to custom. There will be no sermon, but prayers will be raised for the success of the campaign.

W. C. T. U. Night To-morrow

To-morrow night will be W. C. T. U. night, when all women who desire to join the organization will make application at Market Square Presbyterian church, where the W. C. T. U. members will gather prior to the march to the tabernacle. The church will be open at 6 o'clock and the women will leave for the tabernacle at 7.

Miss Palmer speaks at the Enola roundhouse to-morrow noon, and at the tabernacle at 2.30 o'clock in the afternoon. The Booster chorus rehearses to-morrow and Wednesday at 4 o'clock.

November Joe

The Detective of the Woods

By HESKETH PRICHARD

Copyright, 1913.
By Hesketh Prichard

"Oh, no, no, Joe!"
Peterham clutched my arm once more at the sound.

"You're so young, Miss Linda, you don't know. I'd give my right hand to believe I'd find, but I can't. It wouldn't be best—not for you."

November's tone moved me more than Linda's passion. He was a man fighting it out against his own heart. I knew well the power of attraction Linda possessed, but somehow I had not guessed how it had worked on Joe. I had, indeed, been right in so far that he had not dreamed of aspiring to her; nevertheless the episode would mean pain and loss to him. I feared, for many a day.

"Once more I heard him.
"Don't you think I'll be proud every hour I have to live that you were so good to me, Miss Linda? I shan't never forget it."

"Joe, I think I hate you," she cried. And then the quick tap of her footsteps told us she had run into the house.

There was absolute silence for a minute or two. At length Joe sighed heavily and with the slow laborious movement of weakness went to his room.

When all seemed safe Peterham and I stole out of hiding like thieves, and though we exchanged no word, Peterham swore violently under his breath until he shut his office door.

Rather to my surprise November Joe came out for awhile after supper, because he said it was my last evening at Kalmacks. Neither he nor Linda gave any sign that anything unusual had passed between them. Indeed, we were gay enough, and we had Charley Paul in to sing us some French-Canadian songs.

After saying goodby as well as good night to Linda and her father I followed Joe to his room.

"I won't wake you up in the morning, November," I said. "There's nothing like rest and sleep to put you on your legs again."

"I've been trying that cure, Mr. Quarritch, and I won't be long behind you." "Oh, where are you going to?"

"To my shack on Charley's brook. I'm kind of homesick like, and that's the truth."

"But how about Mr. Peterham's wish to give you a start in his business in New York or Montreal?"

"I'm not the kind of a guy for a city. Mr. Quarritch. All the chaps 'd get turning round to stare at the poor wild fella, and I'd sure be scared to sleep in one of them up in the blue sky houses anyway!" He laughed.

"But you would soon be used to city ways and perhaps become rich."

"That was what the milk said to the other: 'Go you to the city and see the sights,' says he, but the other knew the only way he'd ever see the city would be around some lovely gal's neck."

November Joe had no idea how far I could read into his fable.

"And what did the other say?" "Huh, nothing! He just went down his slide into the lake and got chasin' fish, and I guess he soon forgot he missed seein' the city all right."

"And how about you, Joe?" "I guess I'll get chasin' fish, too, Mr. Quarritch."

When I arrived at the depot at Pritansville in the morning, to my surprise I found November Joe there before me.

"Why, Joe!" I exclaimed, "you're not fit to travel!"

"I thought I'd go on the cars with you, Mr. Quarritch, if you'll have me. There's a good many times to change before we get to Silent Water, and I'm not so wonderful quick on my feet yet."

He soon grew strong again, and he wrote me of his trapping and shooting, so at any rate he is trying to forget all that he renounced at Kalmacks. But will Linda have no further word to say? And if she—

I wonder.

THE END.

Suffers Fatal Heart Attack
The shock of going home to her friends proved to be too much for Mrs. Lizzie Drummond, 41 years old, 1318 North Fourth street, who was suffering from chronic heart trouble and as the ambulance awaited at the rear door of the Harrisburg Hospital to take her there yesterday morning, she suffered a fatal attack and died. Mrs. Drummond had been at the hospital five days and at her own request had been allowed to go home.

11 DEAD AND 12 WOUNDED
Toll of Minnesota Hunting Season in Twenty Days
Duluth, Minn., Nov. 30.—Eleven hunters dead and twelve wounded is the toll of this year's hunting season in Minnesota. The period is twenty days and this is the last day. The number of deer and moose killed is the largest in the records of the game warden's department.

Game has been abundant in far-away localities, but scarce where it abounded in former years. Members of the Northwestern Gun Club are considering a number of recommendations for shortening the season of game to ten days.

Piggy Gets His Innings

Even spare ribs, if not too "spare" and nicely craked, can be laid in the roaster and their curving hollow filled with well seasoned bread stuffing and make a pleasing dish. Another way to bake pork ribs is to have them shaped like a crown roast and fill the center with dressing made as for turkey stuffing.

A saddle of pork makes the hand-somest joint of any cut when nicely prepared. Leave the skin on, if you like, score it lengthwise and carve it in the same direction.

Pork tenderloin is the sweetest and most tender of all meat that comes to our table. Its price seems at first glance to be prohibitive. But consider that there is no waste in the tenderloin; no bone, no fat to be discarded, and at once the true price is seen.

The tenderloin is removed in a long firm strip. Slice this cross ways, about two-thirds of an inch in thickness. Flatten each slice with the side of the cleaver or even a rolling pin. Season with sage, salt and pepper and dredge lightly with flour. Broil in a pan with very little fat until brown on each side. Cover and continue cooking slowly until thoroughly done. Delicious cream gravy can be made with the juices remaining in the pan.

The tenderloins may also be cooked in the broiler next the flame as steak is, but the average cook does not control the heat sufficiently well to insure even doneness to the meat without searing it.

To-morrow Smoked Baked Ham.
