SOCIETY FOLK PLAN FOR ANOTHER QUAINT CONCERT

Elaborate Arrangements Started for Charity Affair in Easter Week—Wednesday Club Holds a Delightful Concert This Morning

At a meeting held last evening at the home of the Misses Pearson, 503 North Front street, a committee was appointed to arrange a benefit concert, an "Old Folks' Concert," which will be given Easter week in the Technical High school auditorium under the auspices of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. It is planned to devote a part of the proceeds of the concert to the Harrisburg war and home relief fund.

The society gave a "Grandmothers' Concert" in the Technical High school on a previous Easter Monday night and the affair proved such a success and so delightful in every way that many requests were made for a repetition. The participants in the "Grandmothers' Concert" were prominent men and women of the city and the members of the younger social set. The debutantes of that season took a conspicuous part in the cast and will do so again this year. The music, costumes and scenery were very beautiful and all of the colonial days. The concert was held in the setting of the parlors of an old colonial mansion and the guests spent a delightful evening singing the pretty, quaint ballads of long ago, sewing carpet rags and knitting the while. The choruses also were the old-fashioned ones and thoroughly enjoyed by the large audience.

The committee is planning to have the concert this year along similar lines, but on a much more elaborate scale, and no pains will be spared to make it even more delightful than the previous one.

The following were appointed to have charge of the preliminaries: Chairman, Miss Mary Harris Pearson; music, Mrs. David Watts, Mrs. Carl Ely and Mrs. Philip T. Meredith; decorations, Mrs. Charles A. Kunkel, Mrs. Durbin; publicity, Miss Amelia Durbin and Miss Bashore, costumes, Mrs. David Watts, Mrs. Carl Brandes Ely, Mrs. Meredith, Mrs. Kunkel, Mrs. McAllister, Miss Katherine Irwin, Miss Kelley, Miss Bashore and Miss Durbin. Programs and tickets will be in charge of J. Clarence Funk and John Olmsted.

Any amount raised in excess of $600 will be given to the Harrisburg war and home relief fund.

Wednesday Club Concert To-day
"Music of the North American Indian and Its Influence Upon American Composers" was the topic of discussion at the working musicale of the Wednesday Club held in Fahnstock hall this morning. The program included the following:

- (a) "From An Indian Lodge," Op. 51, No. 5, MacDowell, (b) "An Indian Tale," Op. 62, No. 6, MacDowell, Miss Shively; (c) "The Surprise Call," Op. 13, Harris; (d) "Ichibusshi," Op. 13, Arthur Farwell, Mrs. Hall; (e) "American Indian Songs," Op. 45, Cadman; (f) "From the Land of the Skyblue Water," Op. 1, Hear a Lover's Flute; (g) "The Moon Drops Low," chor.; (h) "Lullaby of the Red Man," Loomis; (i) "Music of the Calumet," (b); (j) "The Silent Conqueror," Mrs. Henry; (k) "Prayer to Wakonda," (b); (l) "The Chattering Squaw," (c); (m) "The Thunder God and the Rainbow," Mrs. Weaver; (n) Pueblo Indian corn-grinding songs, Natalie Curtis, Mrs. Hull; (o) "Wah-wah-ty-see," Cadman; (p) "Ghost Dance of the Zunis," Carlos Trover, Miss Lerner; (q) "Traditional Zuni Songs," Carlos Trover, (r) "Zuni Lullaby," (b); (s) "The Surprise Call," Mrs. Hertzler; (t) "Indian Suite," Op. 48, in five movements, MacDowell, Mrs. Rhodes and Miss Laverty.

A general concert of the club will be held on Thursday evening, December 17, when a program of Christmas music will be presented. Members will be privileged to invite guests to this concert.

Mrs. A. M. Paget Hostess
Mrs. A. Maxwell Paget entertained at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Baum, Wormleysburg, Monday evening, the members of the Wednesday Afternoon Embroidery Club, and their husbands.

MASS OF PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

On Face. As Big as Peas. Remedies Didn't Seem to Help. Suffered Terribly. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Trouble Gone.

315 Wayne Ave., Ellwood City, Pa.—

"At first my face became rough all at once and before many days it was a mass of pimples and blackheads. I tried so many remedies that I didn't know what to do. The pimples looked as big as peas. They would stay on my face a few days and then I would squeeze them out with my fingers. By doing so matter after matter, a blackhead would come out and after that it would heal up, then it was the same thing over again. Remedies didn't seem to help me any so I gave up trying and all that time I was suffering terribly. I was ashamed to go out my face looked. After about three months of suffering I read an advertisement about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a sample of each which proved great. I bought some and in four weeks my trouble was gone. It took three cakes of Cuticura Soap and three boxes of Cuticura Ointment to cure me." (Signed) Miss E. Smith, Jan. 29, 1914.

Samples Free by Mail

In purity, delicate medication, refreshing fragrance, convenience and economy, Cuticura Soap and Ointment meet with the approval of the most discriminating. Often successful when all else fails. HOUSEWIVES SHOULD BUY CHICKENS UNDRAWN

U. S. Government Tests Show That Undrawn Chickens Keep Much Better Than Those That Have Been Fully Dressed

Washington, D. C., Dec. 9.—The poultry handling specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture are urging housewives to buy their chickens undrawn and with their heads and feet still on. An undrawn chicken they say shows its lack of freshness or its unfitness for food much more clearly than does a fully dressed bird, in the dressing of which certain significant signs can easily be removed by the crafty poultry dresser.

Moreover, by actual government tests as reported in circular No. 70 of the Bureau of Chemistry, fully drawn poultry with head and feet removed, decompose the most rapidly, while undrawn poultry keeps much better than does poultry either wholly or partly drawn. This is because once a chicken is opened for cleaning, the delicate tissues in it are open to the bacteria of the air, which multiply very rapidly and soon destroy the flavor of the chicken, even if they do not bring about actual putrefaction. The undrawn chicken is far less likely to be contaminated in this way, as the outer skin is a protection against the inroads of such bacteria.

When the feet of chickens are removed, the housewife loses one of the easiest methods of determining whether the bird is young or old. Young chickens have smooth, clean feet and shanks. Old birds have scaly, rough legs and buttons or spurs. The head of a dead chicken gives very clear indications of staleness. The head of a chicken that is not fresh will show a greenish color below the bill, sunken eyes, and a darkening or discoloration on the neck, all of which indicate decay.

Eliminate Entrails Withdrawn
The housewife should require that the entrails of a chicken be not drawn, or at least should have the butcher draw them in her presence. Moreover, the entrails of the chickens often show diseased conditions that are not evident after the bird is fully drawn.

The appearance of the entrails will help her to tell whether the chicken is fresh and whether it has been properly handled. Entrails in a good chicken should be almost empty, round, firm in texture, and showing little red veins here and there. If the intestines are full, the bird was not starved for twenty-four hours before killing, as it should have been, or else sand was fed to it to increase its weight and work a fraud on the buyer. If the animal heat was not removed quickly and completely, the roundness of the intestines will be lost and the folds of the intestines will stick together. There also will be an undue amount of sliminess and an unpleasant odor which is not found in a properly chilled bird. There is, of course, always some odor when the body cavity of a bird is opened, even if it is just killed, but this odor is quite different from the pronounced smell which comes with decay. An unscrupulous dealer can not foist bad birds on the housewife who dresses the chickens herself and knows how to interpret what she sees and smells.

What the Skin Will Tell
The skin of a chicken will tell the housewife whether the bird has been properly "chilled" or whether it has been "scalded" in order to remove the feathers. The skin of a dry-picked chicken is flexible, translucent, with the feather papillae plainly visible and contains short hairs which have to be removed by scalding. If a chicken has been scalded, the skin is hard, thick, close to the muscles underneath and almost free from these hairs. The skin of a dry-picked chicken which has been chilled in water has lost the powdery look which is characteristic and is shiny, thicker than when air chilled, and it is scarcely possible to see the pink muscles underneath, as one should be able to do. A water chilled chicken is also a fraud to the buyer because it absorbs water, which is charged for at chicken prices.

Housewives should insist on a dry-picked chicken, because any wetting of a chicken, and especially scalding, lessens or destroys the delicate flavor of the meat.

How to Draw a Chicken

Following are the directions given by the poultry-dressing specialists of the department for drawing a chicken at home:

(1) Hold the chicken by the legs and run it quickly over the flame from a loosely folded newspaper which, for safety, may be laid in a coal bucket or ash tray. This will remove the fine hairs. Remove any pin feathers with the aid of a sharp, small knife blade. The charred hair may be washed off later.

(2) Cut the legs off well below the knee joint. If the legs are cut above the knee joint, the flesh on the drum stick will be pulled back from the bird.

(3) Cut the head off, leaving as much of the neck as possible, then push the skin of the neck back and cut the neck off close to the body. The envelope of the remaining skin gives the dressed bird a neater appearance. The neck bones with the adhering meat make a valuable addition to the giblets. The gullet and windpipe are, of course, on the neck and must be pulled away.

How to Remove Entrails

(4) To remove the entrails, make an incision about 2 1/2 inches in length across the abdomen and as close to the vent as possible. In making this incision, be careful not to penetrate the intestine. Slip the fingers in first, and gradually insert the whole hand through the slit into the body cavity. Work the viscera loose from its attachments by sliding the fingers over the inner surface of the body walls. In this way, after a little practice, the viscera can be removed quickly and easily. The lungs will almost invariably tear, leaving a hole in the vent. To separate it from the kidneys of the chicken, which are two long, dark red bodies lying each side of the backbone and firmly fastened, should be removed in pieces. The rest of the viscera, including the crop which lies far front and just under the skin of the breast, when loosened will come out in a mass through the incision. The intestine is still attached to the bird at the vent. To separate it cleanly, the tube should be picked up just as close to the vent as possible and its contents pushed well back from the vent. Then cut closely around the vent, holding the intestine tightly between the fingers to insure cleanliness. Run a stream of water through the slit into the body cavity in such wise that it flows out through the vent and cleans the short piece of intestine still remaining. Then cut both vent and intestine away, leaving a neat, round hole no larger than is necessary.

Preparing the Giblets
To prepare the giblets, detach the heart, gizzard and liver, taking great care not to break the little green gall bladder attached to the liver, which contains a very bitter liquid which, if allowed to escape, will give a bitter flavor to the giblets and gravy. This gall bladder is so close to the liver that some liver tissue must be cut away, to be on the safe side. The color of a healthy chicken liver may vary from yellow to dark red. To prepare the gizzard, hold it with the thumb edge to the palm of the hand and make an incision the whole length along the thick side, being careful merely to cut through the muscle, but not into the inner sac. Then open the gizzard as you would a pocketbook and remove the inner sac which is full of gravel, if possible without breaking it.

Finally, wash the chicken and giblets in clean, cold water, but do not let the giblets soak in the water, because the finest flavors of the meat and much nutritive material are dissolved in the water.

Once the chicken is dressed and washed, put it at once in the coldest place available and keep it there until it is to be put on the fire. The best way is to dress it just in time to go into the stove.

PYORRHEA ALVEOLARIS

Pyorrhoea Alveolaris is the scientific name given to a destructive disease of the gums and tooth sockets which causes the teeth to become loose. Until recently, when a few well-known scientists announced that they had found a specific for Pyorrhoea, and demonstrated their claims, the terrible disease was considered incurable.

The writer wishes to announce that he is equipped to scientifically treat Pyorrhoea (Rigg's Disease) according to the teachings of the men who discovered the specific, and demonstrated cures. Dr. B. S. Behney, 202 Locust Street, Harrisburg, Pa. Adv.
