ASKED TO GIVE HER HUSBAND

That Is What Mrs. Maud E. Heyne Charges in Suit for Separation

New York, Dec. 10.—A remarkable complaint was filed in the Supreme Court in a suit of Mrs. Maud E. Heyne for separation from William M. Heyne, head of the foreign collections department of the Equitable Trust Company, member of the board of governors of the local chapter of the American Institute of Banking and writer on financial subjects, in which she alleges her husband has abandoned her and her three daughters.

Mrs. Heyne says she lived happily with her husband until August, 1913, when he called her and their three daughters into the parlor of their home in Rutherford, N. J., and said to her: "Maud, I have loved you devotedly until the last two or three years. Now I have some one else. I want you to be a woman for once in your life and make my getting away easy. I want a divorce."

Mrs. Heyne says she was stunned by her husband's announcement and when she recovered she replied: "I will make it possible. I married you because I loved you."

Mrs. Heyne alleges her husband then became angry and created a scene before their children. He packed up his belongings and as he left the house he said to his daughters: "I am going away. Do you wish to live with me or with your mamma?" "With mamma," the children replied.

Mrs. Heyne says her husband then told the children: "You can call me up at Ann's," by which, she says, he meant the home of Mrs. George D. Ware. The complaint states that the eldest of the three daughters is Mildred, 16 years old, who is deformed and requires constant care. The others are Ruth, 14, and Marjorie, 11 years old.

Mrs. Heyne says her husband now allows her only $2 a week for each of the children and gives her nothing. "I will not have any money for you until we are divorced," she says. "I suggest we start proceedings immediately." Mrs. Heyne says her husband told her:

They never received the policies.

Another scheme charged against him was to take victims to a manufacturing plant on a Sunday, tell them that he was one of the owners of the plant and then sell them an interest in it, promising huge profits.

PLANNED 3 DEATHS

Harvey Burkhart Foiled in Attempt to Enact Triple Tragedy

Allentown, Pa., Dec. 10.—A sensational near-triple love tragedy occurred here yesterday, and Harvey E. Burkhart, a stonecutter, 25 years old, the principal actor, therein, was committed to jail yesterday morning to await the result of injuries he inflicted on Mrs. Jeanette Hall.

Armed with a hunting knife with a blade six inches long, Burkhart called at the Hall home to find the husband at work and another man there, Drygor Rydberg, an Armenian. He jumped at her, inflicting deep gashes in her neck and right hand, before the Armenian, after a desperate fight, managed to disarm him.

Neighbors called the police, and Motorcycle Officer David hustled Burkhart to the lockup.

The knife thrust in the woman's neck is dangerous, but not necessarily fatal, but the surgeons fear her neck will be permanently stiff.

That there was not a double murder and suicide was due to the quick action of Rydberg. Burkhart left a 30-page letter detailing his woes, saying he would kill Mrs. Hall and Rydberg and then put an end to himself. In his letter Burkhart says he met Mrs. Hall last Christmas eve.

Through her musical talent Mrs. Hall won a scholarship at the Ithaca Conservatory. She went there about a month ago to continue her studies, but returned in a week.

FOREST EXHIBITS AT SHOW

Specimens of Timber Trees of New Mexico and Their Uses at San Diego Exposition

Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Part of the government's exhibit for the Panama-California exposition at San Diego leaves Washington this week. This portion has to do with the national forests of New Mexico and will be shown in the New Mexico building, the exhibit having been prepared in co-operation with the State Board of Exposition Commissioners of that State. The material also shows specimens of the principal timber trees of New Mexico and their uses.

Other exposition material is to leave soon for San Francisco, where it will form a part of the Panama-Pacific exposition. Part of this is being prepared through co-operation between the forest service and the United States Civil Service Commission. The commission passes on the qualifications of all candidates for positions in the forest service, testing the fitness of those who wish to become forest officers through outdoor examinations in riding, surveying, timber estimating and similar matters as well as by more conventional methods; its exhibit will illustrate the duties of these officers.

Co-operation also exists in the preparation of exhibit material, between the forest service and the bureau of education. This shows how forest subjects are used in the public schools, in connection with nature study, commercial geography, agriculture and the like. One of the exhibits is a display made by the normal school pupils of the District of Columbia, in which a number of those who are studying for teachers' positions entered a prize contest on tree study. Each of the contestants prepared a separate exhibit showing the life history and the products of individual trees, such as white pine, hickory, or sugar maple.
