Military Reservists

Military Reservists A foreign nation in time of war cannot compel its subjects, living at the time in another country, to return for military duty. It can call upon them to return, but in the event of their refusing to do so it would be helpless in the case. A foreign nation, for in-instance, could not forcibly seize its subjects living in this country and take them out nor could this country force them out, nor could this country force such subjects to depart.-New York Mecklenburg-Strelitz has American.
