The Bargain Editor:
Dear Sir—
The habit of saving is an asset of inestimable importance to anyone. Saving, whether of talents or riches, is only right and just when that which is saved is put to the best use possible so as to earn legitimate increase.
John Wanamaker, we are told, began his business career as a peddler of shoe-strings; yet we may be sure that advancement to his present state of usefulness and wealth was won only by wise and safe investment of capital for increase of business, advertising, free delivery, etc. All this would have been impossible without a first investment, no matter how small.
The Commercial Bank offers inducements to all to make an initial investment. How many will see in this the best bargain, i. e., the first step toward future prosperity whether as great as that of Wanamaker or only equal to that attained by thousands of others?

Finds $150 Pearl in 90c Meal
Chicago, Jan. 6.—A man who said he was Maurice Goldblatt, No. 4833 Prairie Avenue, a violin instructor at the Chicago Musical College, telephoned a local paper that he had found a pearl valued at $150 while eating oysters in a restaurant on Wabash avenue. He said his dinner cost 90 cents, so he made a profit of $149.10 and got his dinner for nothing.

the "perfectly fitted pair of glasses for defective eyes at reasonable prices," as advertised by L. A. Faunce.
The eye is one of the most wonderful organs of the human body; the abuse of which is not the least uncommon. Sight is conceded to be the most precious of all the senses, enabling one to enjoy all the beauties of nature in their various forms, and is rarely, if ever, appreciated to the fullest extent until one is deprived of the use thereof. Therefore I firmly believe that a pair of lenses, "perfectly fitted" by a man of the ability and experience of Mr. Faunce, which tend to preserve so
