New York, Jan. 6 (Wall Street)—

The only notable feature of to-day's ock market was its refusal to follow the lead of London, where Americans are again lower, with losses of a point more in several of the transcontinual issues. Early quotations were a sixtyre of capins and losses most of the sixtyre of capins and losses most of the sixtyre of capins and losses most of the train there was a frantic rush for the one smoke, apparently oblivious of the d.n.ger of the third rail, toward the two stations. The platforms at these stations were and trampled on. As the work of rescue progressed indications that the number of fatalities would be larger than first estimated.

The tie-up resulting from the fire spread to the Bronx and to Brooklyn and tens of thousands of persons strugboroughs in an effort

The bodies of twenty persons lay on the platform of the Fiftieth street sta-tion an hour after the fire started. The flames were still raging then and there were only estimates as to the number of dead in the cars and along the tracks, Baifled in attempts to reach the victims, who lay close to the burning tracks. Barned in attempts to reach the victims who lay close to the burning cars, Inspector Egan of the Bureau of Cumbustibles, dispatched messengers by automobiles for dynamite. He said that he would use this, if necessary, to rip up the streets and thus afford the firemen an entrance through which they, could work unhampered.

It was shortly before 9.30 o'clock that wisps of smoke began to curl from the manholes along Broadway between the two stations. The spot where the fire burned fiercest was opposite Fifty-sixth street. Hampered in their efforts to reach the blaze the fireman dug into the pavement with their axes. They succeeded in making a hole above the subway at Fifty-third street. From this opening belehed a volume of smoke and flames as if from a crator. Hose was directed through the opening and even hand extinguishers were used.
