ORTHODOX CHRISTMAS WILL EVANGELISTIC CAMPAIGN BE OBSERVED TO-MORROW

Many Barbecues Can Now Be Seen in Many Persons Attended Meeting in the the Foreign Sections Where Hoss and Sheep Are Being Prepared for Big Feasts by Foreigners To-morrow

Great preparations are now in pro-gress for the annual observance of the Greek Orthodox Christmas, which occurs Greek Orthodox Christmas, which occurs to-morrow. The foreign sections along South Third street and on the West side was redolent to-day with appetiz-ing odors of roast pork and sheep and a careful estimate of the carcasses pre-pared for the feasts to-morrow placed the number at 150.

result that the meeting last evening, held in the United Brethren church, was largely attended.

The evangelist used as his theme last evening "A Tragedy in Four Acts," which he outlined as follows:

"The great study of mankind should be the study of lafe," that life is a tragedy from the cradle to the grave, that history is made up of it, that the Bible is a book of tragedy from Genesis to Revelation, citing the tragedy when Adam and Eve in the Garden of Eden, sinned and were driven from it; —at he said, was the first great tragedy. Then came the tragedy of the deluge, which he portrayed vividly. Then the tragedy of the crucifixion, but the most wonderfully portrayed of all was the "Fest of Belshazar," with the handwriting on the wall.

A booster chorus of over 100 voices A booster chorus of over 100 voices was organized yesterday afternoon among children whose ages ranged from 7 to 14 years. The Rev. Mr. Hillis and Mr. Reden held a meeting in the High-spire schools yesterday, at which time the latter sang several solos. The Rev. Robert W. Runyan, of the Vine Street Methodist church, Harrisburg, attended the meeting last night and offered the closing prayer. At the Bulgarian-Orthodox church the Christmas observation will open with mass to be conducted by the Rev. Nicola Avloff at 5 o'clock in the morning. The observation will continue for several days and special masses will be held on Friday morning at 8 o'clock and on Saturday morning at 9 o'clock. The Bulgarians and Macedonians on the West Side expect to make the New Year celebration bigger this year than at any time previous in the borough and last evening an invitation was sent to discovery of the fire and which was loud enough to awaken the neighborhood, is a puzzle to Fire Chief Kindler, although he believes it may have been caused by gas escaping from the jet which the older Mrs. Blair tried unsuccessfully to light.

Woman Shows Heroism

In her bed in the hospital this morning the older Mrs. Blair told how the fire started. She became ill during the night and rising from her bed obtained a match. In striking it the hearl flew off and started a fire in the carpet of her room. She tried to stop the blaze with her hands and feet which were terribly burned. When rescued later ther clothing was afire. She was unconscious when the rescuer reached her.

The younger Mrs. Blair was awakened by the smoke and went from her own room at the front of the house, in the second floor, to the rear where the crackling of the flames could be heard plainly through the closed door. She opened the door and went into her mother-in-law's room but the smoke drove her away. Going to her son's room on the same floor she wrapped the boy in a blanket and carried him through the smoke-filled halls to the front porch. There she met Chaud Lontz, who was just returning from turning in an alarm from Sixth and Mahantongo streets. She shouted:

'Mother is still up there.'

Lontz followed her directions and went to the second floor. The elder Mrs. Blair had made her way out of the burning room and along the hallway to the foot of a flight of stairs leading to the third floor where she fell, exhausted and overcome by smoke. Guided by the daughter-in-law, Lontz carried the burned woman to the front porch. She was revived in the air and was later carried across the street to slightly injured by falling plaster in the Blair home.

Explosion Shakes Row

When the firemen responded to the call the upper floors of the Blair home were a mass of flames and the other houses in the row were in grave danger. Water streams were used immediately and the Blair home was flooded. Some of the heavy furniture on the first floor, including a plano, were saved by neighbors. Mr. Blair, who is a brakeman in the Harrisburg yards of the Pennsylvania railrond, was at work when the fire started. His loss, he said this morning, will reach $1,000.

The principal loss to the adjoining houses was from the water, which damaged the carpets to some extent. The explosion which knocked plaster from other houses in the row, bulged the tin roofs over the row of houses, in some places as much as two feet. The loss on the buildings will be more than $1,000 and the contents of the two houses adjoining the Blair home, make up the rest of the total loss of $3,000.
