

PARIS, "CITY OF LIGHT," IS NOW SHROUDED IN GLOOM

Paris, Jan. 20.—Last night Paris definitely abandoned its title of "The City of Light," and assumed a shroud of mourning. According to police regulations, emphasized by official visits to all business houses, no unshuttered or uncurtained windows are allowed to give light, no cafes or shops may brighten the sidewalk with gas or electric radiance. Even windows overlooking courtyards must be shaded, while the west boulevard pavements reflect but faintly a few occasional lamps.

The public takes the innovation calmly. Since the beginning of the war Paris has been rather contemptuous of Zeppelins. Consequently no one seems alarmed by the latest measures, which are considered simply precautionary, uninspired by definite official knowledge regarding contemplated attacks.

The "Temps" prints a letter by d'Estournelles de Constant, saying: "I have read in the press obscure accounts of a meeting at Berné held by a committee of peace societies. It is interesting to note that none of our compatriots took part, while if the Belgian Senator, La Fontaines, presided, it was certainly to combat their object, as he regretted their initiative."

STOKER'S EFFORTS WON THE CHASE OFF FALKLANDS

London, Jan. 20.—Captain J. D. Allen, of the cruiser Kent, which sank the German cruiser Nürnberg off the Falkland Islands, describes in a letter to a friend how the Kent chased, engaged and sank the Nürnberg. He says: "It was a single ship action, as there was no other ship in sight at the time. The chase began about noon and the action at 5 p. m. After a sharp engagement, in which the Kent was struck by no fewer than 36 of the enemy's shells, the Nürnberg sank at 7.26 p. m."

The Nürnberg was a faster ship than the Kent, but I appealed to the engineers and stokers to do all in their power to catch her, and finally they responded to my appeal. The Kent went faster and faster, until she was making 25 knots, more than a knot faster than she had ever gone before.

We came nearer and nearer, until we got the Nürnberg within range of our guns. Soon our shells began falling thick and fast around her and she was struck many times, until at last she was in flames. The enemy continued firing their guns until the ship was sinking and as she disappeared below the surface some of the brave men on her quarterdeck were waving German flags.

The captain's letter expresses regret that he was able to save only twelve of the Nürnberg's crew, owing to the heavy seas and ice cold water.

The Nürnberg was rated at 23.5 knots and the Kent at 21.7 knots. The Kent surpassed the German ship in armament, having 14 six-inch guns. The Nürnberg had 10 four-inch.

NAMES FOR SAYRE BABY

Contest Suggested to Select One For White House Infant

Washington, Jan. 20.—Suggestions that President Wilson's grandson, the child of Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. Sayre, go nameless until contests to choose a name can be held in various parts of the country began arriving at the White House yesterday, and caused amusement among members of the President's family.

The President is reluctant to have the baby named after himself because the child "would have troubles enough of his own to bear." He told callers that a family council on the subject was held at the White House yesterday, but no decision was reached. Francis Woodrow Sayre was the name most frequently suggested.

FINDS WIFE'S BODY IN CHEST

Woman Missing Since Monday, Police of Pittsburgh Say Case Has Some Queer Angles

Pittsburgh, Jan. 20.—Huddled in a crouching posture, the body of Mrs. Minnie Hunter, 39 years old, missing since Monday afternoon was found by her husband, Frank A. Hunter, at noon yesterday, when he lifted the lid of a cedar chest in their home at 5266 Hillmes street. Dr. J. O. Donaldson, who was summoned, said the woman had been dead about twenty hours. Hunter and his son had slept near the chest Monday night without a suspicion as to its contents. According to the report of Deputy Coroner John Orr, Mrs. Hunter's death was caused by suffocation.

She was last seen alive at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon by Mrs. E. J. Umstead, a neighbor, who talked with her in the Hunter home. Frank A. Hunter, Jr., a son, returned from school shortly after 4 o'clock and found the house empty. Hunter, who is general manager and part owner of the Hunter Saw and Machine Company, returning home at 9 o'clock, was told by his son of Mrs. Hunter's absence. Supposing she had gone to a social gathering or was visiting friends, he went to bed.

Yesterday morning Hunter on awakening found that his wife was not at home. Thinking that if she had gone out she probably would have taken her furs with her, Hunter went upstairs to the bedroom of his son where the cedar chest was kept, lifted the lid and found the body of his wife fully dressed, face downward and resting on the knees. Dr. Donaldson said Mrs. Hunter had died of suffocation and that from all appearance the death was accidental.

He said: "Mrs. Hunter had a rheumatic heart and I frequently had been called to treat her for this trouble. It appeared to me as though she had been stricken with heart trouble and fallen into the chest."

The chest is about four feet long, two feet wide and about three feet deep and has a heavy lid. Mrs. Hunter's furs were in the chest.

Despite the statement given by Dr. Donaldson, the police are working on the case, which they say has some queer angles. The body when found was doubled up in the cedar chest in a position very difficult for a person to assume without aid. Her height was 5 feet 6 inches. The police admit that mysterious circumstances surround Mrs. Hunter's death, but offer no solution of the case.

THE CONTROL OF EDUCATION

County Should Have Supervision to Ensure Improvement in the Rural Schools

Washington, D. C., Jan. 20.—Except for New England, where the township plan works admirably, county control of education is recommended by the United States Bureau of Education as an important factor in the improvement of rural schools.

According to A. C. Monahan, author of a bulletin just issued, the county is the unit of supervision in at least 39 States of the Union, and some form of county control of schools is now found in 18 States. Comparing county control with district and township control, the "county unit seems to have most to commend it," says the bulletin, although the district unit is still the most common form of control for the country at large. The district unit of organization is in practice in 28 States.

Mr. Monahan's investigation shows that county control has been adopted by most of the Southern States, while the district is the unit of organization in most of the States west of the Mississippi river.

In the New England States, where cities and incorporated towns are included in the township, and where the township is the unit of local taxation and local government in nearly all civil affairs, "township control has proved very satisfactory."

Where conditions are not exceptional, as in New England, Mr. Monahan finds that county control recommends itself because it is already the unit of supervision in most of the States; it gives the schools better support by giving the entire county the benefit of taxes paid by corporations such as railroads; it gives the schools better teachers with better salaries; yet the schools are run more economically; it removes the school from unwise local influences and gives opportunity for the selection of teachers from a wider range and upon their merits; it injects business into the management of the schools "with no axes to grind, no favorites to reward, a small board for all schools of the county provides the best possible schools for all the children."

SHORN TWICE IN SLEEP

Girl's Beautiful Tresses Mysteriously Disappear Again

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 20.—For the second time in a year a beautiful crown of hair, grown by Miss Eva Peters, 17 years old, Lehigh and Hickory streets, has been shorn from her head by a mysterious thief, who leaves no tell-tale clues.

Police of this city are at a loss to explain the case. Miss Peters was asleep, as were five other members of her family, including her parents, when the home was entered Monday night and the hair cut from the girl's head.

The condition of the remaining locks indicated that the stranger had made the cut while stationed near her bedroom window ready to escape.

The first time Miss Peters was despoiled of her light brown hair, that reached farther down than her waist, was last summer, and it is now the belief of her family that some one of their acquaintance has been committing the outrages.

THE FAMOUS MEETING THAT SETTLED THE MEXICAN BORDER SITUATION

MEETING AT JUAREZ BETWEEN BRIGADIER GENERAL SCOTT AND GENERAL VILLA

The meeting was held in regard to the situation on the Arizona border, when Mexican bullets were flying across the international boundary line, imperiling the lives of Americans. It was an order from Washington that sent General Scott, commander of the American border troops, to meet the famous Mexican leader, and after a short conference an agreement was settled upon whereby the Mexican troops were withdrawn into the interior of Mexico, avoiding the possibility of any more bullets crossing into American territory. The picture which is shown above was taken immediately after the conference. Major Michie was an adjutant to the American commander. Juarez is the same place where Presidents Taft and Diaz met, where Francisco Madero was installed as Provisional President of Mexico, and where Victoriano Huerta made his headquarters after the defeat of Orozco in the first revolution against Mexico.
