FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

Immense Losses Occur in Countries Be Slaughtered

Washington, D. C., Jan. 21 .- Be cause of the prevalence of foot and mouth disease in Europe and South America, importations of live stock are now limited practically to shipments from Great Britain, Ireland and the Channel Isles. Even with these countries trade has been interrapted several times in recent years, for the government does not permit the importation (Chest (it often prevents Pneumonia). times in recent years, for the govern-ment does not permit the importation of animals from countries where the disease exists, and there have been several outbreaks in Great Britain lately.

Up to November, 1906, American ports were open to Belgium and Holland. In that month, however, some sheep were taken into Belgium from France where the disease was quite prevalent and brought the pestilence with them. By the end of the year every province in Belgium was affected. with them. By the end of the year every province in Belgium was affected, and Holland as well. Since that time both of these countries have been fighting the disease but have not yet succeeded in eradicating it.

In Italy, France, Switzerland, Germany and Russia the plague has existed so long and has gained such a foothold that it is economically impossible to fight it with the American methods of saughter and disinfection, for to do so would be to kill a large per-

In consequence, the authorities appear to be making little or no progress in their campaign. The outbreak, for example, which appeared in Germany in 1888, increased steadily until 1892 when it diminished gradually for faw years but again reselled great. States 172,572,000, or between three and four times as many. It can readily be imagined, therefore, what it would mean to the United States if the disease was to gain the foothold here that it had in Germany where, as these figures show, approximately one out of seven of the animals susceptible to the disease was affected. seven of the animals susceptible to the disease was affected.

Since the model.

value of an animal which recovers from an attack, it may be said that on an average this amounts in average this amounts in Germany to $7.00 and in Holland to $10. In this country with its higher prices, the loss is correspondingly greater. If these figures be accepted, it is obvious that the amount of money spent in eradicat-ing the disease became inviging and in ng the disease becomes insignificant in comparison with the loss it causes when

The German government, of course, has not left the disease to itself. The more recent outbreaks it attempted to control by the American method of slaughter, but the pestilence had gained too much headway and was too firmly established in too many portions of the country for this method to succeed, and the slaughter of the infected herds had to be abandoned. It now appears and the slaughter of the infected herds had to be abandoned. It now appears that there is no hope of getting rid of it until the virus has worn itself out. At present it seems that as soon as the animal's period of acquired immunity is over and favorable conditions present themselves, the contagion breaks out with renewed virulence so that the authorities have practically abandoned out with renowed virulence so that the authorities have practically abandoned all hope of controlling it by means of quarantines. One scientist indeed has asserted that unless all the infected farms were absolutely isolated and the movement not only of live stock but of persons absolutely prohibited, the disease could not be stamped out. Such a quarantine is, of course, utterly impossible to enforce. In certain portions of Germany, indeed, the farmers realizing that the disease is inevitable make haste to be done with it by exposing their stock deliberately to mild cases in the hope that this will result in an immediate mild attack and immunity for several years thereafter.

Great Britain and Norway and Sweden, on account of their comparatively interest. make haste to be done with it by exposing their stock deliberately to mild cases in the hope that this will result in an immediate mild attack and immunity for several years thereafter. Great Britain and Norway and Sweden, on account of their comparatively isolated positions, have been more successful in keeping out the disease. The outbreaks in these countries have been more sporadic and ha more sporadic and by resorting to im-mediate slaughter the authorities have been able to stamp them out. In the outbreak near Dublin in 1912, indeed measures were adopted which were more stringent than any used in this country. As soon as the existence of the disease became definitely known so-called "stand-still" restrictions were lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—Adv.

Moreover within each of the affect-ed districts, known as "scheduled dis-tricts" were two smaller areas in for example, which appeared in Germany in 1888, increased steadily until 1892 when it diminished gradually for a few years but again reached great proportions in 1899. Thereafter it continued to exist to a greater or less extent until in 1911 it attained a virulence unequalled before. In that year 3,366,369 cattle, 1,602,927 sheep, 2,555,371 hogs and 53,674 goats were affected. At that time the total number of cattle, sheep, swine and goats in Germany was only 51,319,000, while there were in the United States 172,572,000, or between three and four times as many. He was, moreover, prohibited from caring for any animal which was not diseased or suspected. On farms adjacent to the 'infected place' the owners of live stock were ordered to stop all move-ments of their animals, and these or-ders, together with the other reguladisease was affected.

Since the mortality in the disease is comparatively low, ranging from only 3 per cent. in mild forms to 30 or 40 per cent. in malignant cases, the have caused by the pestilence is sometimes underestimated.
