Are you going about harassed like an overburdened truck-horse with an ill-fitting harness or other makeshift contrivance always gouging into your flesh or slipping out of place, allowing your rupture to come down and be pinched beneath an improperly constructed or ill-fitted pad?

No Truss, Steel Springs, Elastic Bands, Leg Straps, No Knife or Operation. Enjoy Grand, Glorious Comfort While Your Rupture Heals.

Be Free From Truss Slavery and Rupture Misery

Hundreds of people who had tried all kinds of trusses and drug store appliances without success are now enjoying perfect ease and comfort—their ruptures held, supported, protected PERFECTLY and scientifically by the SCHULING RUPTURE LOCK.

Others declare that after wearing this remarkable Lock with glorious comfort for a few months, they found the ruptured parts entirely healed, the openings completely closed so that they could take off the Lock and go about without support of any kind.

Wearers Tell of Cures

Mr. S. J. Bryant, who lives at Garmond, Kansas, says: "In about two months' time the rupture was well." Mr. C. M. Black, Box 54, Marshalltown, Ia., says: "Not only has your rupture Lock cured me of that terrible rupture, but it has wonderfully improved my health."

W. R. Peterson, Euclid, Fla., in a letter says: "In a little less than three months' time I was entirely cured."

A Michigan telephone man says he can climb telephone poles without fear of the Lock slipping or rupturing coming down. A Montana ranchman writes us that he rides and "breaks" WILD horses, and that the Lock holds his rupture perfectly. BRITISH SHIP ALSO LOST AS GERMAN CRUISER SINKS ship, the Bluecher, while leading the British van was the great 32-knot battle cruiser Lion, Admiral Beatty's flagship.

Then for an hour or more ensued a battle of the stokers, every ship in each fleet forcing her boilers to every pound of steam. The Germans were racing desperately for home, and the British were straining every nerve to overtake the flying enemy.

It was 9.30, off the Frisian Islands, north of Holland, that the British ships finally drew near enough to the Germans for Admiral Beatty to give the word to fire.

For more than four hours the running battle lasted, the firing being plainly heard in North Holland where it was judged the fight took place north of the Islands of Ameland and Schiermonnikoog.

The Bluecher, which was slower than the other German cruisers, fell behind and succumbed to the heavier guns of the Lion, which was leading the British squadron. The other German ships got within the mine and submarine area, two of them in a badly damaged condition, and it was dangerous for the big British battle cruisers to follow.

Reputation For Sunday Fighting

London, Jan. 25, 12.35 P. M.—The news of the first battle between dreadnoughts, yesterday's naval engagement in the North Sea has aroused much more enthusiasm among the British public than either the light off Heligoland or off the Falkland Islands, although both of these engagements perhaps loomed larger in actual results.

To the English the combat of yesterday means the triumph of their long tradition confidence in their big gun fleet, and it calms the fear of the East coast of frequent repetitions of the Hartlepool and Scarborough raid. Sir David Beatty, the youngest admiral in the British navy, has become the most popular hero of the war.

The German official report on Sunday's fight admits the sinking of the cruiser Bluecher, but offsets this loss with the assertion "according to information available, the British cruiser was sunk." This statement has been directly denied by the British admiralty which says clearly: "No British ships have been lost."

This engagement keeps up the reputation of the present war for Sunday fighting, which has been so frequent both on land and sea that Sunday has now come to be a day of increased vigilance rather than of relaxation.

AUSTRO-GERMAN MOVEMENT IN BUKOWINA IS IMMINENT

Petrograd, via London, Jan. 25, 2 P. M.—There has been pronounced activity along the entire Austrian front of 300 miles during the last few days. This is regarded here as marking the initiation of the plan for an Austro-German offensive movement which is believed to have been adopted recently with the object of clearing the Russian invaders from Bukovina, Eastern Galicia and Northern Hungary.

In Galicia, between the rivers Vistula and Jasloka approximately thirty miles east of the Dunajec, General Brojevit, commander of the fourth Austrian army, has undertaken a forward movement in the direction of Przemyśl which has been under siege for several months, or to force the Russians to withdraw from Bukovina, is not yet clear. Simultaneous attacks are recorded on the Russian positions in Bukovina, in the vicinity of Kimpulung and in the south Polish provinces of Radom and Kielce, along the line from Kowlitz to Koniak, and thence to Sobkow, where heavy artillery engagements have occurred.

Northward there appears to have been little change. Northern Bukovina, from Radzanow to Dobryn, on the Vistula, the Germans are still on the defensive. On the left bank of the Vistula, west of Warsaw and along the Rakwa the Germans are stubbornly attempting to advance. Between Borkow and Gumin, 25 miles west of Warsaw, desperate hand to hand fighting is reported.

The village of Borkow has changed hands several times as the armies surged back and forth. At last reports it was not occupied by either side neither of the opposing armies was able to hold it.

In this fighting the Germans put into use improvised steel shields which were moved forward for the protection of trench diggers. Behind these shields the diggers worked until two lines of trenches had been pushed to within a few hundred yards of the Russian position. So close and accurate was the firing that the last reports of the point of a bayonet invariably were the tidings of a shower of bullets from the opposing trenches. Fighting of this character went on for days with no noticeable advantage for either side.

NO DECISIVE FIGHTING IN FRANCE BATTLES, REPORT

Paris, Jan. 25, 2.50 P. M.—The report on the progress of the fighting given out by the French war office this afternoon refers to encounters of minor importance only. No decisive engagements have occurred anywhere on the line. There has been the customary artillery changes, coupled with the talking of a few prisoners, and the driving back of a counter attack. The statement follows:

"In Belgium we have made slight progress at a point to the east of St. Georges; on the rest of this front there were artillery duels yesterday. From the Lys to the Oise there was yesterday an intermittent cannonading."

"On the front along the Aisne there is nothing to report except that at Bery-a-Bac a counter attack of the enemy yesterday morning was repulsed and the disputed trenches remain in our possession. In Champagne we have demolished several field works and protections of the enemy."

"In the Argonne, in the forests of La Grurie, a very spirited fusillade was stopped by the efficient shooting of our batteries. On the Meuse, the destruction of the bridge of St. Mihiel was accomplished by our artillery. In Lorraine, at Embermenil, we surprised a detachment of Bavarian troops and took some of them prisoners. In the Vosges and in Alsace there has been very heavy fog."

RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF NEUTRAL TOLD

Secretary Bryan's Answer to Charges That U.S. Was Discriminating Against Germans

MISCONCEPTION IS SUMMARIZED

Is Business of a Belligerent Operating on High Seas, Not Duty of a Neutral, to Prevent Contraband From Reaching Enemy

Washington, Jan. 25.—Senator Stöwe, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, arranged to incorporate in the records of the Senate to-day the long reply which he received from Secretary Bryan defending the Washington government's interpretation of its rights and duties as a neutral in the present war.

The letter from the Secretary of State prepared after consultation with President Wilson, Counselor Lansing and the legal officers of the government constituted the administration's answer to those who have been charging in numerous letters to the State Department as well as in the press and public speeches that the American government's neutrality discriminated against Germany and Austria.

Summarizes Popular Misconception

Secretary Bryan summarized popular misconception on this point and explained that the superiority thus far of the British naval power had in reality been responsible for the inability of Germany and Austria to fare as well as their opponents in matters of ammunition and contraband.

"It is the business," he wrote, "of a belligerent operating on the high seas not the duty of a neutral to prevent contraband from reaching an enemy. Those in this country who sympathize with Germany and Austria-Hungary appear to assume that some obligation rests upon this government in the performance of its natural duty to prevent all trade in contraband and thus to equalize the difference due to the relative naval strength of the belligerents. No such obligation exists; it would be an unequal act, an act of partiality on the part of this government to adopt such a policy, if the executive had the power to do so. If Germany and Austria cannot import contraband from this country, it is not because of this fact, the duty of the United States to close its markets to the allies. The markets of this country are open upon equal terms to all the world, to every nation, belligerent or neutral."

Explains Administration Policies

While the letter was devoted largely to answering criticisms it revealed many features of the administration's policies hitherto unexplained.

Washington government has now announced itself as opposed to legislation prohibiting the export of munitions of war. Other than the belief that the passage of such legislation would be unneutral if passed during the progress of a war, high officials here contend that such a law even after the conclusion of the present conflict would in reality foster the growth of militarism. They point out that weak nations which might have depended in emergencies on purchasing war supplies from the United States would be compelled to keep their armies constantly on a war footing in respect to supplies, involving tremendous expenditures.

The letter reveals also that the United States has taken the position that it cannot permit belligerent vessels to use high seas as a base for operations, even though they be Germans or Austrians, nor can promises be exacted from them not to participate in the war. Such a protest has been sent to France as a result of the search of American ships plying between two ports in Colombia.

Canadian Request Refused

Officials explained to-day that the request of the Canadian government for permission to transport "war equipment" across Alaska which had been refused, as disclosed in Secretary Bryan's letter, referred to a shipment of guns from Northern Canada.

The fact that both Japan and Great Britain had been asked to remove their warships from proximity to Honolulu and New York, respectively, and that they acquiesced in the requests, attracted attention here, in view of the possibility that such requests might be refused because of reports that belligerent ships were again hovering near to the American coast.

The Washington government's pronouncement in Secretary Bryan's letter on the question of loans was received with much interest because of the many constructions which had been placed on the administration's position. The letter states that so far as the State Department is advised no war loans have been made by foreign governments since President Wilson announced his disapproval of such transactions. The purchase of supplies through the establishments of credits are regarded by Secretary Bryan as purely commercial transactions and not objectionable. Great Britain, France and Russia are understood to have established many million dollars worth of credits for war supplies with American firms.

"Are They Born or Made?" at the Victoria

"In this powerful picture," says Ella Wheeler Wilcox, "Jack Rose has preached a greater sermon than I have ever heard from any pulpit." It is a faithful portrayal of facts and a startling indictment of modern conditions. Not only is the story itself of absorbing interest, but the great vital question which it so impressively presents is one that is bound to start everyone who sees it to serious thinking. "Are They Born or Made?" treats with candor and knowledge of the making of criminals, written with a complete knowledge of metropolitan politics by Jack Rose. And all through runs the theme are criminals made, or are they born as such? This film will be shown at the Victoria on Tuesday.

To-day's show embraces: "A Life at Stake," an Apex three-part mystery; "A Cross of Fire," in two parts; "Romiette and Julio," a Pathe comedy and probation.—Adv.

CIVIC CLUB ANNOUNCES ITS FOURTH ENTERTAINMENT

The Panama Canal and the Panama-Pacific Exposition Will Be Superbly Illustrated in the High School Auditorium To-morrow Evening

The fourth and what will likely prove to be the best of the present Star Course of entertainments by the local Civic Club will be held in the High school auditorium to-morrow evening. This entertainment will consist of over 200 views of the Panama canal and the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco which will soon open. A versatile lecturer has been engaged to illustrate the views and an expert operator will be in charge of the machine.

The idea in presenting this lecture to the local public is to convince them that this exposition will celebrate the greatest engineering feat of man, the completion of the Panama canal, an event of great importance to all the world.

The exposition will be an epoch-making celebration and will be held by America at the golden portal of the nation where it looks out on that ocean of to-morrow—the vast Pacific. It will be held at that capital where the tides of life, the Orient and the Occident, meet.

The greatness of this exposition cannot be overestimated from whatever angle we may view it. Its setting is the scenic playground of America, under the nation's fairest skies; in a city fully equipped to entertain its guests, and its occasion is not a dim historic event, but a living achievement, civilization's greatest triumph of peace.

It is a national event in which the honor of the nation is at stake, and every State and citizen is equally and vitally interested. It is more, it is a world event, and America is host of all nations and peoples. It will be housed in palaces, each architecturally an honor to the nation, and amid flowers and sparks whose foreground is the sea and background, hill and forest, the delight of the artist.

It will gather from the ends of the earth the achievements of men, and not only the achievements, but the process which produced them will be seen. What only could be procured by years of travel and study will lie spread out before us—a world of the present.

The local Civic Club requests a liberal support at this entertainment for the proceeds will be devoted to worthy public purposes.
