SKATING STAR OWNS UP

Illinois Amateur Champion Confesses to Playing Professional Ball
Chicago, Jan. 28.—Harry Kaad, amateur ice skating champion of Illinois, whose amateur standing was challenged yesterday after his admission that he had played professional baseball, announced last night that he would not defend his title.

He will not participate in the International Skating Union championships at Cleveland January 29 and 30 and at Saranac Lake, N. Y., February 2, 3 and 4. He said, however, that he would retain the trophies he has won as an amateur.

According to the provisions of the International Skating Union code, Kaad did not sacrifice his amateur standing by playing with the Adrian club of the Southern Michigan League, but by the code of Central Amateur Athletic Union, it was said, Kaad had become a professional.

Kaad, who was selected as one of the seven best amateurs in the United States to compete at Cleveland January 29 and 30, and at Saranac Lake, N. Y., February 2, 3 and 4, in the national championships, said that he played professional baseball with the Adrian club of the Southern Michigan League last season.

KAVANAUGH IS WORRIED

Decision in Injunction Suit May Make Him a Free Agent

The impending crisis in the greatest baseball war in history is being watched by thousands of people throughout the United States, but there is no one in the player ranks to whom the final decision will mean more than to Marty Kavanaugh, the former York Tri-State League player.

Kavanaugh has come out flat-footed with a statement that under no conditions will he play for Hughey Jennings again in Detroit.

Differences between Kavanaugh and his manager led Kavanaugh to reach the decision. At present he is signed to a Detroit contract, which is binding but if organized baseball is declared to be a trust and short of its bulwark—the national commission—Kavanaugh's contract will then be illegal and he may sign with whom he pleases.

Marty has been hoping that he would be traded or sold, but nothing has been done in that direction. He states that he has an offer from a big manufacturing concern in Philadelphia to play independent ball next year, and he is considering it.

VINCOME FIVE FAST

Represent a Well Known Club in the Cage

The Vincome basketball team, of Philadelphia, who will oppose the Harrisburg Independents at Chestnut street hall Saturday night, is coming here with an excellent reputation and should be able to give a good exhibition. The Vincome Club is widely known for its athletes, having in connection with basketball, lacrosse, soccer, baseball and football teams.

This team defeated the St. Agatha, of Philadelphia, who won the undisputed championship of Philadelphia last year. The Independents realize the hard proposition they will be up against and Captain McCord has had his men practicing hard.

TALK OF REDUCING CLASS OF TRI-STATE LEAGUE TO 'D'

Allentown Starts Movement to Lower Individual Salary Limit $50 Under Last Year—Other Graham Circuit News

Max Erdman, one of the directors of the Allentown team of the Tri-State League, has come forward with a proposition to make a Class D league out of the Graham circuit with eight teams. His additional proposals are that a salary limit of $1,000 be fixed with an individual players limit of $100. The individual limit is reduced $50 a month over last season according to this plan which may cause a lot of dissatisfaction among the top notchers of last season who were not fortunate enough to go higher up in the baseball profession. Many of the stars were drafted but there are some men on all teams who got the limit and are on the reserve list for this year.

CHICHESTER'S PILLS

young players who are anxious to get a foothold on the baseball ladder. Reducing the class of the league may have a tendency to cause the major league managers to overlook the Tri-State organization in placing players out on the optional agreement, or in the drafting of players at the close of the season.

The change on the other hand may work out well and continue baseball in this circuit indefinitely without the annual winter talk of dissolution, salary limit, size of the circuit and all of that. What the baseball solons do at the annual meeting in Philadelphia, February 15, will be watched with interest.

Talk of the Federals entering Trenton with a minor league club as a farm, that club to be part of a New England circuit is not taken very seriously in Trenton. The following is from the Trenton Evening "Times":

"So far as can be learned Federal League officials have not yet conferred with any local promoters concerning the invasion of Trenton, but it is likely that nothing will be done along such lines until all details are completed for the new league.

"Should Trenton be included on the new circuit it would be necessary to establish an entirely new plant. "Trenton fans might take kindly to a Federal League club if it was of high calibre. However, a weak organization connected with the Federals would undoubtedly be ridiculed before it got well under way."

President Baker, of the Philadelphia National League Club, came out from under cover yesterday and gave his views of the Federal League invading a smaller circuit as follows:

"I notice this morning," continued the Philly resident, "that Ward says the Federal League is going to have two minor leagues. That to my mind is an admission of defeat in the courts, because they will be doing the identical things themselves for which they attacked organized baseball in the courts."

The York "Dispatch" seeks to show the feeling in the Tri-State for a salary limit which in regard to Harrisburg is unfounded as the directors of the local club have taken no action on a salary limit. The statement follows:

"Harrisburg also favors a similar ($1,000) limit. At Lancaster Jack Deal looks like the big man this season, and he will get into the game if the backers will stand by a limit of not more than $1,500, but believes that $1,200 would be sufficient.

Wilmington is not enthusiastic over the Tri-State game, but would come back if the limit is not less than $1,000 or more than $1,200. Trenton will come back at any limit less than $2,000; while Reading favors $1,800 limit. In the majority of the Tri-State towns a general opinion prevails that a low salary limit would prevent illegal tactics."

Patriot Duck Pin League

The Make-up men are leading the Patriot duck pin league race by a comfortable margin after winning yesterday afternoon's match on the Casino alleys by 95 pins. The Job Room defeated the Ad-men by 71 pins.
