ONE TREE BRINGS $100

Single Sugar Pine Yields Enough Lumber to Build Suburban House

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—The government has received $99.40 in settlement for a single sugar pine tree which was cut in trespass in the Stanislaus national forest, in California, and which yielded more than enough actual lumber to build a good-sized suburban frame house. The tree scaled 18,933 board feet and was valued at $5.25 per thousand feet.

Not many trees contain enough lumber to build a two-foot board walk nearly two miles long, and this is believed to be the first case on record in which a single tree felled in a national forest was valued at almost $100 on the stump, although national forest timber is frequently sold at considerably higher rates.

STANDARD HOSE COUPLINGS FOR PUBLIC FIRE SERVICE

Great Boston Conflagration of 1872 Showed Impossibility of Fire Departments of Adjacent Towns Acting in Unison to Fight Blaze

Washington, D. C., Feb. 3.—An account of the advance toward a national standard for hose couplings and fittings for public fire service is contained in Circular No. 50, just issued by the Bureau of Standards of the Department of Commerce.

The movement for the adoption of standard fire hose couplings dates from the great Boston fire of 1872, which showed the impossibility of the fire departments of adjacent towns acting in unison when provided with the diverse sizes of hose fittings then prevailing.

The matter was taken up at the first convention of Fire Engineers in 1873, and was discussed at various conventions in succeeding years. The resolutions gradually became more definite, although little was accomplished toward bringing about the desired changes until the agitation received a new impetus from the Baltimore fire in 1904, when neither the Washington, Philadelphia nor New York fire engines on their arrival, could make connection with the local fire hydrants.

Federal Investigation of Conditions
This condition led the Merchants and Miners' Transportation Company, in April, 1904, to request the Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor to investigate the subject of fire hose couplings. The secretary referred the matter to the Bureau of Standards, and in the investigation which followed, it was found that there was a great diversity in sizes and threads of couplings throughout the United States. It was evident that considerable expense would be involved in changing from one standard to another, and, therefore, at the conference of the committees of the National Fire Protection Association and American Water Works Association, held in New York City Aug. 24, 1905, the Bureau of Standards proposed the adoption, either of the thread which could be shown to be most extensively used, or that thread which possessed the greatest advantages in other respects. Following the latter course, the conference resolved that 7/8 inch threads per inch should be recommended for 2 1/2 inch fire hose couplings. This thread was not regarded as an ideal standard, but was considered the most practicable basis for unification under prevailing conditions.

Fast Adopting National Standard
At the annual convention of the International Association of Fire Engineers at Duluth, in 1905, this standard was adopted after lengthy discussion, and at Dallas, in 1906, the convention reaffirmed the action taken at Duluth, and made its record complete by adopting the national standard specifications covering couplings of 3 and 3 1/2 inches inside diameter, each to have six threads to the inch, and a 1/2 inch coupling having four threads to the inch.

Since then a dozen large organizations have adopted the national standard. The report of the committee of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, adopted December 3, 1913, treats its present status in a very clear and comprehensive manner, with suggestions for converting non-standard couplings to the standard. Up to 1913 the national standard had been put into service in 73 cities or towns, either as new equipment or by adaptation of non-standard couplings to interchange with the standard.

DON'T USE SOAP ON YOUR HAIR

When you wash your hair, don't use soap. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is just plain, muscified coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy, and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.

BURGLAR TWISTS HIS VICTIM

Tells Senator "I Ain't Got the Heart to Keep This Stuff"

Albany, Feb. 3.—Senate Leader Robert F. Wagner, whose New York home a burglar entered Monday, received a small package yesterday afternoon containing a watch, a stickpin, a roll of greenbacks and a sheet of paper, on which was written:

"I ain't got the heart to keep this stuff, Senator. When I jimmied my way into your house I didn't know who I was robbing. Afterwards I read in the papers that I had actually stolen from a Tammany Senator. Now that you Tammany men are on the outside looking in instead of on the inside looking out, as you were last year, I know that times must be pretty hard with you. So, as I said before, I ain't got the heart to keep this stuff, so I'm sending it back."

The watch was a toy one and the stickpin not worth more than 10 cents; the greenbacks were "stage money." "This is certainly adding insult to injury," was Wagner's good-natured comment.
