CONGRESS CONTEST HALTED

Sudden Adjournment of York-Adams Hearings at Gettysburg Supposed to Mean Collapse

Gettysburg, Feb. 4.—Congressman Brodbeck sprang a surprise here yesterday afternoon, when he had the hearing in his election contest against Congressman C. William Beales abruptly adjourned. Thirty of those subpoenaed as witnesses in his behalf in Gettysburg are yet to be heard.

While the Congressman denied that this action was preliminary to withdrawal of the contest, rumors persist that this is about to occur. To some prominent Adams county Democrats with whom he conferred yesterday Brodbeck said that he had been misinformed about conditions there, but he stated that his present purpose is to hold more hearings both in Gettysburg and York.

Charles H. Wilson, the Adams county detective, who recently swore out a warrant for the arrest of Congressman Brodbeck, charging him with having given money to a federal employee in the Hanover postoffice, in violation of the criminal code, was a witness yesterday. He admitted under questioning of counsel for the contestant that he had no personal knowledge of the crime he charged, but had brought the prosecution on information furnished him by Robert C. Miller, Republican county chairman, had paid the poll taxes of 110 votes, both Republicans and Democrats. Miller was called and admitted that he paid some poll taxes, but said it was done as an accommodation to the collector as well as the voters during a rush of men to qualify to cast ballots. Some of them, Miller said, had later reimbursed him.

Frank Penn, Republican inspector at the Third ward polls, declared he saw nothing of the bottled beer said to have been brought to the polls in flour sacks on election day for the board.

Dave Wilson, a negro witness, gave the big crowd assembled in the court house for the hearing a laugh when he demanded his pay before testifying. He was handed the $5 cents and glanced at it scornfully. "I'm a $2-a-day man," he protested.

He was told that Congress had fixed that pay for an election contest witness.

"Don I yields to Congress," he said grudgingly, and took the stand.

TAKE LIBERTIES WITH FATHER

Kin Beat Him Up When He Applies to Own Child

Mifflinburg, Pa., Feb. 4.—In an effort to kidnap his young son, Lionel Hall, a druggist, had a battle with his estranged wife's relatives, which resulted in Hall being wounded and retiring from the scene in a battered condition.

Hall, it is said, applied at the home of his wife's rich uncle, Oliver P. Rockefeller, where she and the two children are staying and asked to see the boy.

It was then alleged he picked him up and rushed away, but was intercepted by Mrs. Rockefeller and John Haupt, the child's uncle.
