ON HUNT FOR VIOLATORS
OF THE PURE FOOD LAWS

Pennsylvania Division Instructed to Be More Vigilant in Running Down Imposters in the Supplying of Eggs and Meats

Agents of the Pure Food Division have been instructed to be more vigilant than ever in the hunt for violators of the pure food laws, especially in the matter of eggs and meats and Commissioners Foust is receiving reports every day of offenders who are active all over the State. The cold storage eggs that have been in hiding since last April, are now being taken out to be sold during the cold weather when the hens among dealers is to dispose of them as "strictly fresh," after removing the label on the crate showing how long they had been in cold storage.

This morning prosecutions were ordered in forty-eight cases of violation of the food laws, half of which were against men who are selling cold storage eggs not properly labeled, and there were also violations of the meat laws, some of the dealers selling diseased meats of all kinds. Many arrests are being made in the larger cities, and it is said that the foreign-born dealers in foods in Philadelphia, are among the worst offenders.

Governor a Guest

Governor Brumbaugh will be one of the guests at the next annual banquet of the Lancaster Young Republicans on March 4.

To Print Books

Weidemann & Company, of Milton, was incorporated to-day to print school books and educational literature generally. The capital is $10,000.

The Governor's Staff

Governor Brumbaugh is expected to announce the members of his military staff in the near future. There are twenty-three commissioned and six non-commissioned officers on the staff, and because of long service many of them, it is said, will be reappointed.

No Penrose County

Senator Catlin, of Luzerne, is opposed to chopping off parts of Luzerne and Schuylkill counties for the purpose of creating a new county to be called Penrose, with the county seat at Hazleton. Senator Catlin says he will do his best to kill any measure of that kind should it ever get through the House and wander into the Senate, and he generally gets what he wants in the Senate.

Jones Wins Out

The Public Service Commission has also issued an order to the effect that the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad Company establish a passenger fare of 5 cents each way between Taylor and Scranton and provide adequate facilities, which means the installation of two day coaches in addition to the smoking car on the train leaving Scranton at 7:10 in the morning for Kingston and New York, for the accommodation of passengers desiring to travel from Taylor to Scranton. The complaint was brought by Gomer Jones, and the testimony showed that the fare had been five cents but had recently been advanced to 10 cents.

Railroaders Call

Among the callers on Governor Brumbaugh yesterday were a number of railroad men who discussed the workmen's compensation and full crew bill repeal. In the delegation were: S. R. Tanner, chairman State legislative board, Order Railway Conductors; N. H. Leavy, legislative representative, Division 449, Harrisburg; C. H. Smith, legislative representative, Division No. 143, Harrisburg; C. J. Hoffman, legislative representative, Division No. 617, Harrisburg; S. L. Curry, Philadelphia, vice chairman of Railroad Trainmen; M. C. Robinson, Harrisburg, State legislative representative; Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen.

OPPOSES HOTEL LICENSE

Charles F. Hoover files Remonstrance Against T. S. Fry's Application Because it is alleged Theodore S. Fry has not paid a bill for furniture with which he equipped his hotel, at Fifth and Short streets, Charles F. Hoover, of the C. F. Hoover Furniture & Carpet Company, to-day filed a remonstrance with the court claiming that Fry is not a fit person to run a hotel and that his liquor license should not be granted.

This was the first remonstrance actually filed in connection with the many applications for liquor license renewals. Hoover claims that he brought suit against Fry more than a year ago for the amount of the furniture bill, $200.42, and since that time the defendant has paid but $13.50.

Another allegation in the remonstrance is that Fry cannot now sell his place of business, for hotel purposes, in view of the fact that the building and ground is in the Capitol Park zone, and soon will be taken over by the State. If the hotel furniture were to be sold by the sheriff, Hoover asserts, it would not bring much more than the sheriff's costs.

SELLING OF NEWSPAPERS

Publishers Object to Certain Legislation Prejudicial to Their Interests

Reading, Feb. 10.—The Pennsylvania Associated Dailies held a meeting to-day to arrange for combating legislation prejudicial to the newspaper interests likely to come up at this session, with particular stress against the child labor law that prohibits boys and girls under 16 years of age selling newspapers.

The newspapermen decided that they will not object to a ten-year limit but that they cannot see any harm according to children selling newspapers when it does not interfere with their school attendance before and after school hours. They claim that if men must sell papers it will mean the increase of all daily papers up to two and three cents.

Among the members present were representatives from Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Pottsville, Harrisburg, Chester, Lebanon, York, Lancaster and from other leading cities of the State.

GERMANS IN BATTLE
LOSE THOUSANDS

than twenty-two violent attacks upon certain heights in the region of Kozniwka, occupied by us. The Germans came forward to this attack several ranks deep, presenting a full front line. Violent Cross Fire of Germans "Under our violent cross fire the Germans here twice took possession of a certain height, but they were dislodged by counter attacks delivered by our infantry. This success was preceded by long and violent hand to hand fighting with the bayonet which is without precedent in history. The losses sustained in this engagement by the Germans were exceedingly heavy.

"Attacks of the enemy in the vicinity of Wyeshkovo also were repulsed. In the Black Sea the former German cruiser Breslau (now a unit of the Turkish navy) bombarded Yalta, in the Crimea. Our cruisers on February 8, shelled a Turkish battery at Trebizond, and sank one steamer. Another steamer loaded with provisions and a two-masted schooner were sunk near Lerlos.

Attacks Made by Germans "In order to attack our positions near Kozniwka the Germans commenced their concentration of troops the night of February 7. Early the next morning they began the delivery of an irresistible offensive movement, and their attack was supported by a very violent fire from their heavy artillery. They were successful in gaining an important height occupied by us but they were promptly driven from this position before our bayonets.

"Attacks then followed without let up. Toward evening the Germans in very considerable numbers took possession of the highest position in our line from which they were dislodged only after a desperate fight. Before retiring they exhausted all their strength in a stubborn resistance to a general counter attack on our part, a feature of which was an unprecedented encounter with the bayonet.

1,000 German Dead Counted "At the side of this hill was covered by German corpses. In front of one of our battalions more than 1,000 German dead were counted.

"Among the trophies captured near Kamion are three mine throwers. At Rawaka, near the railroad to Skierniewice, Russian foot soldiers were successful in throwing eight bombs into the German trenches. These missiles caused great destruction.

"Russian aviators threw bombs on German troop trains near Wawa. The general staff of the Russian army in the Caucasus communicates under date of February 8 that there has been no engagement of importance to record."

Details of Desperate Fighting "Details of a desperate fight in the Carpathians with ferocious bayonet charges described as without precedent in history reached Petrograd to-day. According to reports, repeated German attacks were finally repulsed by the Russians, and the German dead in great numbers in front of the Russian positions. The losses are described as enormous.

The scene of the fighting was Belograd, 30 miles south of Sanok, in Galicia. It is estimated by the Russians that the Hungarian forces have been augmented by 300,000 Germans. The German plan seems to be to transfer their troops to points where there is greater opportunity of piercing the Russian defenses.

Fierce Attack of Germans Concentrating their forces the night of February 7, the Germans the following morning began what doubtless rapidly developed into one of the fiercest attacks in the history of the Carpathian campaign. With their first line almost annihilated, the Germans pushed forward their second line, under the support of heavy artillery, and gained strategic elevation. But from this they were driven back by a Russian bayonet charge. Attack and counter attack followed and towards evening the Germans, in great numbers, seemed to be in permanent possession of the heights.

The general counter attack by the Russians resulted in two hours of hard hand-to-hand fighting, which left the snow clad hills strewn with dead. After a stubborn resistance the German regiments were driven out. A Russian officer claims to have counted upwards of 1,000 German dead.

AUDIENCE APPLAUDS FINE
PICTURES OF ANTARCTIC

In Lecture at Majestic Sir Douglas Mawson Tells of Thrilling Experiences in Newly Explored Regions—Governor Is Appreciative

The beautiful scenery, the queer land and sea animals, and the unusual climatic conditions of the South Polar regions were all shown in four reels of unusually distinct moving pictures at the Majestic theatre last night, and commented upon in the course of his talk by Sir Douglas Mawson, famous Antarctic explorer, who was brought here through the efforts of the Harrisburg Natural History Society.

The pictures, taken at many times under difficulties, with the photographer hanging from ropes or facing great wind storms, showed clearly the nature of the land newly discovered by Mawson's expedition, leaving only the intense cold to be imagined. The hut erected by the explorers was shown, almost completely covered over by the drifting snow and thus kept comparatively warm—"almost up to the freezing point in fact."

Comfort Inside Hut Of particular interest were the pictures of the interior of the hut, which was in two sections, work shop and living room. Here were small libraries, an electric light plant, an acetylene plant, a wireless apparatus which was in continual use, and numerous microscopes and other scientific instruments. The stock of food was sufficient to last the party which stayed at the hut for over a year.

While the house lights were turned on between reels, the explorer told in a halting manner of the death of his two companions, Lieutenant Ninnis and Dr. Merz, while they and he were on an exploring expedition, and of his own narrow escape from a horrible death in a crevasse into which he fell, and was suspended by a rope. During this recital the speaker nervously fingered the electric signal which he held in his hand, winding the cord into knots and then untangling it, and looking at the floor when he mentioned his dead companions, or his own hazardous experience.

Narrow Escape From Death "While I was dangling at the end of the rope over the crevasse," he said, "and seemed to have no more strength left to make a last effort to escape, I thought of a lot of strange things. Everything seemed different from the way it did on the earth, for I felt that I was no longer on the earth. I thought of things that never occurred to me in just the same way before, and I—I can't describe at all how it felt to face death like that."

Sir Douglas made his escape from his perilous position by exerting the strength of despair, and when he reached the firm ice at the edge of the crevasse he swooned away. He had been living on small quantities of dog's meat for many days, and was able to return to the hut only with the greatest difficulty. He had left improvised crosses to mark the graves of his two dead companions.

The pictures of the penguins, snow birds, seals and sea elephants of the South Polar region were very attractive and there was much in the actions of the queer animals that was genuinely comical.

Audience Applauds Pictures The audience heartily applauded pictures of unusual beauty during the exhibition, a rather unusual procedure. The applause was probably meant for the skillful photographer who succeeded in getting so many odd pictures under great difficulties.

Governor Brumbaugh, who introduced Sir Douglas to the audience, occupied a box during the lecture and bowed his appreciation to the explorer at the conclusion.

BILL READJUSTS AFFAIRS OF THE NATIONAL GUARD

Measure Introduced in the House To-day Embodies New Military Code Providing Divisional Organization Urged By War Department

A new military code, based on the requirements of the United States War Department in relation to a divisional organization of the National Guard, is proposed in a bill introduced into the House this morning by Representative Adams, of Luzerne.

Under the terms of the measure the maximum number of companies of infantry has been reduced from 180 to 150. The artillery maximum has been increased from five batteries to twelve, which will provide for two regiments of field artillery of six batteries each. The bill also provides for one regiment of cavalry, which is now organized. The necessary complement of engineer and signal corps organizations is provided for, as well as field hospitals and ambulance companies necessary to form a properly balanced division.

The only State having such a division is New York, and it is held that the only other one that can possibly furnish a division is Pennsylvania, but whether or not a division can be organized in this State will depend on the increase to be made in the appropriation.

Another feature of the bill is the change in the method of selecting commissioned officers. Heretofore field officers of regiments have been elected by the line officers. The bill provides for their appointment by the Governor. It provides for the appointment by the Governor of captains and first lieutenants of companies, the men of the company to elect second lieutenants. It is believed this method will secure a higher degree of efficiency, as officers before being appointed will be required to undergo examinations to prove their fitness for commission.

Staff officers of regiments will be appointed by regimental commanders, as heretofore. The quartermasters and subsistence departments will be consolidated and known as quartermaster corps. In all other respects the new law will be practically the same as the present law. The Adams bill, it is held, would place the National Guard in an advanced position, and practically conform to the requirements of the war department as to organization, training and discipline.

The bill, should it become a law, will become effective on June 1, next.

he legally proceeded with at once, and that said resolution was offered by the Superintendent of Public Affairs as one more of his numerous efforts for political buncombe only.

The Views of the Mayor During the debate on the Royal resolution yesterday the Mayor said the question raised by his measure is one of "humanity and dollars and cents," and besides saying that it is a difficult problem to deal with and probably would mean added expense to the city, he stated:

"Under the circumstances it seems to me it should be done to give work to the unemployed who do not care to depend upon charity. The Republican Commissioners, both at yesterday's meeting and before to-day's special session, declared themselves in favor of any feasible plan to put the city's unemployed at work, but they asserted they are at their wits' end to know just what to do to carry out the purpose without putting the city to a great amount of expense.

The prevailing freezing temperatures, they argued, make it inadvisable to order paving contractors to start, work since experts advised them, they say, that paving work done now would be very unsatisfactory and would cost much more than if it was done in the hot weather season.

The same is true with the building of sewers, they said, because the contractors would be put to an extra expense in order to protect his men from the dangers of the ground caving in.

"UNCLE HENRY" MUCH PLEASED

Points to Fact Senators of All Parties Voted Against Abolishing His Post

The summary death of the project to abolish the office of Secretary of Internal Affairs, at present held by Henry Houck, of Lebanon, was a source of great gratification to "Uncle Henry," who was in the Senate yesterday at the time Senator Snyder, of Schuylkill, wielded the suiknesses that separated the cervical vertebrae of the bill, and consigned it to an early grave.

One thing that seems to have been forgotten in the plan to abolish the Department of Internal Affairs was that it would also have abolished the Board of Pardons, that last refuge and hope of every man convicted in the State. The Constitution says that the Board of Pardons shall consist of the Lieutenant Governor, the Attorney General, the Secretary of the Commonwealth and the Secretary of Internal Affairs. In the abolition of any one of these offices, it was held by eminent attorneys in the State, the Board of Pardons would be disintegrated and it could not do business; but that has been averted by the killing of the proposed constitutional amendment to abolish "Uncle Henry" Houck's job. Speaking of the defeat of the measure Secretary Houck said to-day:

"I won the fight to defeat that resolution by a great majority. Every Senator was for me and against the measure. Republicans, Democrats and even the Progressive Senator, were for me. It was a wonderful victory, and I am deeply grateful to my friends for their interest in the defeat of the resolution."

During this morning a large number of friends called on Secretary Houck and congratulated him on the defeat of the project that would have abolished his office.

$41,000 NEEDED TO MEET BANK'S LOSS

pointed before the end of the week, President Horst said.

Of the 250 shares of stock issued by the bank at $100 a share, 176 shares were voted in the organization of the meeting of which A. S. Brendle, solicitor and a director of the bank, was made secretary.

A motion by Mr. Brendle that each of the 250 shares of stock be assessed $146 found no favor with most of the stockholders and they lost no time in leaving the meeting. As they were filing out President Horst called out that there would be another meeting held this evening.

Bank Examiner Logan and T. E. Harris, an auditor from the Treasury Department, are still engaged in endeavoring to straighten out the tangle in which Binner's accounts have been found.

Hoover Passes Night in Jail Arthur J. Hoover, prominent life insurance agent, who was arrested and committed to prison last night on a charge of aiding and abetting Binner in misappropriating funds of the bank to the amount of $18,582, passed the night in the Lebanon county jail. Hoover had hoped to obtain the required $10,000 bail for his release this morning, but by noon to-day no bondsman had appeared for him and he still was in prison.

As Hoover was led to prison last night he greeted the Sheriff cheerily: "How are you, Sheriff?" he said. "I am here to spend the night with you."

Hoover has nothing to say for publication. In his prison cell he seemed self-possessed and not much worried about his plight.

At the meeting of the bank stockholders and directors this morning it was intimated that there may be no more arrests made.
