Remove Ashes Often

Ashes should be removed immediately after raking. If they are allowed to accumulate they exclude the air from the ash pit and cause the grate bars to burn out.

Grate bars in a furnace should last a long time if the ashes are not allowed to pack up against them in the ash pit.

Ashes are disagreeable to handle at best and the coal that gives less ashes for a ton should have the preference.

Our Wilkes-Barre coal gives lots of heat and little ash.

WINDSTORMS AMONG TIMBER

They Are Indicated by Little Diagonal Streaks or Wrinkles Across Grain of Wood

Washington, D. C., Feb. 19.—Little diagonal streaks or wrinkles across the grain of a piece of timber not only betray weakness, but sometimes indicate periods of stress through which the wood passed when it was growing. They may even be taken as a sort of check on the official record of wind storms, as in the case of some lumber tested at the forest service laboratory at Madison, Wisconsin.

The marks are caused by what are called "compression failures," which occur when the fibers bend or buckle under a too heavy strain. In cutting up logs collected for experiments at the laboratory, it was noticed that these compression failures appeared on the north side of a number of trees which came from the same locality in Florida. By counting the annual rings of the wood and from knowledge of the time when it was cut in the forest, it was decided that the compression failures must have been caused by a severe wind from the south about the year 1898. Inquiries were made in Florida and it was found that a hurricane had, in fact, swept over the region at the time indicated.

The experiments have determined that the strength of a piece of wood may be seriously impaired by slight compression failures due to rough handling. Dropping a beam across a skid may cause a compression failure at the point at which the beam strikes the skid and it will be at this point that the beam gives way when it breaks under a strain too severe for the weakened fibers to withstand. Hitherto unaccountable breakage in hickory wagon spokes and other presumably strong material are now attributed to compression failures caused by wind storms in the period of growth or by fast usage in lumbering and manufacturing processes.

ARNOLD DALY

Arnold Daly, who through his work in "Candida" became in such a short space of time one of the most talked-of actors in America, has signed with Pathe to take the leading part in their new serial "The Exploits of Elaine." That Mr. Daly stands in the very front rank of the theatrical profession to-day is self-evident, and that he has been signed by Pathe for the new serial proves conclusively that "The Exploits of Elaine" will be a vastly different proposition from "The Perils of Pauline" in that the new story will require most artistic interpretation, and not depend so much upon sensational incidents for its interest.

Mr. Daly is an object lesson to the ambitious young American by proving that there is plenty of room at the top and that true ability will be recognized in spite of all handicaps. Some ten years ago he was office boy for Charles Frohman, surely a sufficiently humble beginning in the theatrical profession to satisfy the most ardent admirers of such works of fiction as "From Cabin Boy to President." Born in New York, he showed the average New York boy's sublime indifference to the favorites of fame, and they still tell stories along Broadway of young Daly's scornful attitude towards the famous playwrights and theatrical stars who called upon Mr. Frohman.

At an early age Mr. Daly was convinced that he could act and eventually prevailed upon Mr. Frohman to give him a chance in a small role. He soon showed that he possessed an intuitive dramatic sense and his rise was steady. He was fortunate to have a part in "Puddin' Head Wilson," under Frank Mayo, whose splendid experience and fine talent gave him much invaluable knowledge. After that engagement he played the boy in Wm. Gillette's farce "Because She Loved Him So," which was followed by the part of the mad lover in "Barbara Frietchie," with Julia Marlowe. Engagements in "When We Were Twenty-one," "Hearts Aflame," and "The Girl From Dixie" followed. All this time Mr. Daly's art had been broadening and taking on a finer quality. Unconsciously and gradually he had been fitting himself for his great success "Candida." It is interesting to note that this great production, which afterwards played 132 days in New York, was first put on for matinees only by Mr. Daly to demonstrate "a worthy play which could not be commercially successful in New York." Shortly afterwards against all advice, Mr. Daly decided to play as a stop gap, determined to try "Candida" on the New York public. It was done and each day saw a growth of receipts. Before long it was the most talked-of play in the city and Mr. Daly was famous.—Adv.

Photoplay To-day
"The Leopard's Lair" is shown today at the Photoplay, along with a two-act Vitagraph drama, "For Another's Crime," featuring Leo Delaney and Leah Baird. "Broncho Billy's Greaser Deputy," with Helen Holmes, the fearless girl, in the lead. "The Escape on the Fast Freight" is another thriller. This time Helen, the telegraph operator, fights with a fugitive on top of a fast moving freight train. Adv.

GIRLS BALK AT ROPE SLIDE

Radcliffe students object to college fire rules
Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 19.—Radcliffe's girls are kicking over the ropes in their endeavor to dodge the fire rules for college dormitories.

Fire Chief Marjorie Bridgman insists that every girl in college must learn to use the rope fire escapes, and in the next ten days must demonstrate to the satisfaction of Dean Boody that she has learned her little lesson.

At first it was intended that the college lasses should do the slide for life down the hempen cords from their rooms, but visions of college boys and "townies" watching the performance caused a sudden rearrangement of program, and ropes in the gymnasium are now used. Chief Bridgman says the mutineers will soon learn that rope sliding is a valuable as well as enjoyable pastime.

FIND NEW COAL VEIN

Twelve-foot vein discovered in the Agricultural Section
Shamokin, Pa., Feb. 19.—County Commissioner Frederick Dornisife and a number of more prospectors discovered a twelve-foot vein of anthracite near Dornisife yesterday.

The discovery will cause land for miles about that section to advance in price. For a number of months prospecting for coal had been pursued in the Dornisife region, which is an agriculture centre.

LUMBER MEN ELECT

Retail Dealers Choose Directors at Pittsburgh

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 19.—The following directors were elected at yesterday afternoon's session of the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association of Pennsylvania:

George N. Glass, Pittsburgh; C. C. Yone, Monongahela City; F. B. Kinzey,

Johntown; J. D. P. Kennedy, Beaver Falls, and Warren Stokes, Altoona. These, together with the hold-over directors, will meet next week and elect officers to serve for the ensuing year.

A banquet which was attended by the delegates was held last night, marking the close of the two days' convention.
