He began his career in the clothing business when ten-years old with Abraham Goldsmith, who for many years was a prominent merchant, doing business on Market street. Afterwards he clerked for Claster Brothers and also for his father, Benjamin Brenner, who had a clothing store at Fourth and Market streets, on the site now occupied by the Metropolitan hotel. Heleft his father's store to engage in business for himself on Walnut street, where for many years he successfully conducted "The Outlet Clothing Company" store. He has a wide circle of business and social friends who will wish him more success than ever in his new enterprise.

At the Oroheum

At the Oroheum

Two popular funsters of this week's bill at the Orpheum are Hoey and Lee, who have been almost as popular here in previous visits, but who this time seem to have struck a new comedy vein quite different from their former routine. In all the realm of Hobrew character arbists, that is of the song and dance variety, there are no two names that come higher than Hoey and Lee and they are favorites in the metropolitan cities just as they are in Harrisburg. The present season finds this duo in a departure from their customary routine of fun. In their first place they wear nice, neat dress suits instead of their comedy togs of yore. And the arrangement of their fun and songs is much different too.

All that remains is the same mirth producing duo, who never depended on togs to win laughs. Their comedy gage are all crisply hew here and their parodies just eyoke round after round of enthusiastic laughter. This duo will make you laugh in spite of yourself. They are one of the very clever teams appearing at the Orpheum this week supporting the Omar Opera Company in an excellent vocal act; Milton Polleek and company in a sereeching comedy called "Speaking to Father;" the Two Pucks in a nifty flirtation skit and several others of almost equal importance.

At the Colonial

What is promised to be the comedy treat of the Colonial's career is a playlet called "Isaac You Tell Her" that Harry Rapf and company will present there to-day as the big feature of unusual bill that comes to the "Busy Corner" for the last half of the week. Corner" for the last half of the week. An unusually capable east interpret the screeching lines and situations of this playlet that extices have declared one of the comedy gems of present day vaudeville. Another act of importance on this bill is the first local engagement of the Five Romeros presenting a potpourri of songs, dances and music. Billic Cree, the dainty songstress, and Joe Morse, the popular monologist, complete the vaudeville roster.—Adv. "

TO FIGHT ST. PATRICK'S DAY

But Johnson Has Yet to

Pittaburgh, Pa., Feb. 25.—John H. (Hans) Wagner was tendered a banquet last night at the Colonial Annew hotel by the Pittaburgh Stove League. Fully 200 admirers of the veteran ball player were in attendance. Wagner was presented with a set of fishing tackle costing $100, which came as a surprise to him. In response to a demand for/a speech Hans filled up and was unequal to the occasion.

John K. Tener, president of the National League, was the principal speaker. He culogized Wagner and termed him the greatest and cleanest ball player or of all time. Moving pictures of the last world's series were fished on a screen, as were pictures of Wagner in action on the diamond.

Barney Dreyfuss and Fred Clarke were at the speakers' table to honor their best player. There were not many ball players present, the majority of those in attendance being fans who have known Wagner many years.

BOWLING RESILITS change in date from March 6, and Curley said he was cabling Johnson at Havana for his consent.

Discussing the chances of Johnson signing in Havana with another promoter, Curley said the nego is firmly bound by contract to fight Willard in Juarez, and would be feolish to try to avoid it.

Curley announced last night that he would leave to-day for Havana, where Johnson remained yesterday. It was said the trip to Cuba did not necessarily mean the transfer of the fight to Havana, although no prediction was ventured as to the outcome of the situation. The announcement followed the receipt of a cablegram from Johnson, the contents of which were not given out. Willard will lighten his training work until something definite is received regarding Johnson's arrival for the fight, originally set for March 6, it was announced yesterday.

Physicians have pronounced Willard in good shape, but the indefinite postponement of the bout brought fear that he might overtrain.

Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston, however, found a suitable substitute in Johnny Dundee. The latter has been training for a month for the many matches he has on hand, and he will step into the ring in perfect condition.

Wolgast broke his arm again Tuesday afternoon at Brown's gymnasium, but it was not until yesterday afternoon that he knew it was serious. In his final work-out for the Cross fight he took on Freddie Andrews groggy, but a second before the end, the latter's elbow came in contact hard with Wolgast's forearm. Wolgast was so disgusted at his misfortune that he packed his trunk and left at 6 o'clock last night for Chicago.
