GERMANS BRING BIG GUNS INTO PLAY IN EFFORTS TO PENETRATE RUSSIAN LINES

Petrograd, March 4, 11 A. M., via London, March 4, 2 P. M.—The German forces in Northern Poland are concentrating their efforts in the endeavor to break through the Russian fortified lines near the Prussian frontier by capturing the fortress of Ossowetz. This battle, the outcome of which is regarded as of high importance, is proceeding with increased violence. The Germans on this occasion have succeeded in bringing up some of their heaviest and most effective guns, including the great 16-inch field pieces.

The opinion of Russian military officers is that, the Germans have been expelled from Przasnysz, their only hope of successful execution of their plan which include securing the position of their left flank by breaking through the Russian line of fortresses, lies in taking Ossowetz. From the character of the fighting it is evident that the Germans have determined to exhaust every effort to win this point.

The Russian occupation of Kerjen announced officially here, shows a slight advance on the northern front. Kerjen lies on the left bank of the Amouloff river, twenty miles northeast of Przasnysz. The capture of this town is of more than local importance, since it signifies failure of the German attempt to cut off the communications of the Russian forces operating in the Przasnysz district from those proceeding from Myszyniec toward Kojno, along a line parallel with the Prussian border. This the Germans strove to accomplish by occupying positions along the Amouloff.

Although there is a close correlation between the German advance from East Prussia and their operations in conjunction with the Austrians in the Stanislaw-Beskid region of Galicia, at the other end of the front, Russian critics regard the activity of the Germans in the north as relatively of the less importance. It is regarded more as a diversion for the purpose of engaging the attention of the Russians while the Austro-German army is preparing for an important campaign in Galicia. In this region, it is said, the bulk of the Austro-German forces is concentrated.

NO HOPE FOR ENTOMBED MEN

State Engineers Find Evidence That Explosion in West Virginia Mine Was Very Violent

Hinton, W. Va., March 4.—High up on Quinimont mountain scores of anxious persons, the families and friends of the miners entombed by the explosion in Layland mine last Tuesday, still waited anxiously to-day for news from the rescue crews. They knew in a general way that the main entry of mine No. 3 had been cleared of after-damp and the rescuers were gradually working their way through cross entries and rooms in search of bodies, but with what success they were kept in ignorance.

There was a push toward the shattered opening of the mine when word came that five more bodies had been found, and a rumor spread that other bodies had been located and likely would be brought out before evening. Eight bodies will be brought here for burial to-night.

There was still much confusion as to the number of men who entered Tuesday morning. After canvassing the situation the company made known the names of 177 who were employed in the workings affected. Whether all of them were at work when the explosion occurred, officers of the company admitted they were unable to say, but the opinion prevailed in the crowd of spectators that perhaps twenty had escaped the disaster.

Little hope is now entertained that any of the buried men are still alive. Engineers of the Bureau of Mines and State Mining Department have found evidence that the explosion was very violent and the entries badly choked with debris.

The rescue parties made rapid progress during the morning and fresh air was forced far into the workings. At noon it was announced that 35 bodies had been recovered, and it was thought that rapid progress in exploring the mine would be made during the afternoon. A strong force of deputy sheriffs kept back the crowds.

MANY ANARCHISTIC PLOTS

Their Existence Made Known To-day in Statement by New York Police Commissioner

New York, March 4.—The existence of many plots on which the police have been working was made known to-day in a statement by Arthur Wood, Police Commissioner, in commenting on the indictment by the Grand Jury of Frank Abarno and Charles Carbone, charged with attempting to explode a bomb in St. Patrick's Cathedral on Tuesday. Commissioner Wood said that so far as this case is concerned it does not go beyond Abarno and Carbone but that there were other plots and other men which the police were watching. The Commissioner indicated that Amodeo Polignani, the young patrolman responsible for the arrest of Abarno and Carbone, would have a part in exposing other bomb plots.

Justification for placing the bomb in St. Patrick's was summed up by Abarno when arraigned yesterday with the brief statement that "we wanted to put a bomb in some rich neighborhood so that the rich would understand the sorrows of the poor."

"I plead guilty to the act," Abarno said when asked to plead, "but I did not mean to do any harm. I was there, but it was all the idea of this other man," referring to Amodeo Polignani, the patrolman. Carbone entered a plea of not guilty.

District Attorney Perkins stated to-day that he would move to have Abarno and Carbone tried as soon as possible. The men will be brought into court again to-morrow when their pleas will be formally entered and counsel assigned to them if they have not made other arrangements for their defense before that time.

The House Committee on Military Affairs had the new bill up for consideration to-day, but beyond making a few changes in construction it left the bill as it was introduced by Mr. Adams, and in which shape it will very likely pass.
