"Damaged Goods"

The history of the first production of Eugene Brieux's great sociological drama, "Damaged Goods," which is at the Majestic this afternoon and evening has no counterpart in the annals of the American stage. After its initial production in Paris ten years ago, the French masterpiece had lain practically neglected until a Pennsylvania legislator, Senator Flynn, of Pittsburgh, found a copy of it in a book store and upon reading it, was impelled to introduce a bill in the Legislature providing for a health certificate with a marriage license in his State. While the bill was pending, Senator Flynn met Richard Bennett, the actor, and urged him to read "Damaged Goods." This was two years ago and since that time Mr. Bennett has devoted most of his waking hours and all of his dreams to the production of this drame.—Adv.*

"Robin Hood"

"Robin Hood," the celebrated comic opera by Messrs. de Koven and Smith, will be the offering at the Majestic next Wednesday afternoon and evening. This opera will be presented by the de Koven Opera Company an organization composed of grand opera singers. In this notable cast of vocal artists first mention should be given to Ivy Scott, the charming young Australian prima donna, who made such a success at the Century Grand Opera in New York. Miss Scott possesses a remarkable lyric soprano voice of dramatic quality, and sings the role of Maid Marian with an artistic beauty of the highest praise. The title role will be sung by Harold Blake, whose fine tenor voice is admirably suited to the part. F. J. McCarthy, who originated the part of the crying general in "The Merry Widow," will play the part of Friar Tuck. Mr. McCarthy's performance of the lovable old monk is said to be a classis.—Adv.*

"Il Trovatore"

The Boston English Opera Company will come to the Majestic theatre, Saturday, matinee and night, March 13, in a beautiful production of Verdi's immortal masterpiece "Il Trovatore" the world's most tuneful, picturesque opera.

So much has been said of the great artists that comprise the Boston English Opera Company and so well known is the opera of "Il Trovatore," that it seems almost useless to go into details. However, as there are many people who have a mistaken idea in regard to grand opera, it may not be amiss to say a few words on the subject.

Of all the world's operas "Il Trovatore" is the most popular and certainly the most tuneful. Many of the best airs in the leading comic operas are taken from its tuneful melodies. Almost every street organ depends upon "Il Trovatore" for its existence.

The anvil chorus is one of the most beautiful numbers ever put on any stage. This setting represents a gypsy camp, located in an old ruin in the mountains. In the clearing are numerous anvils, used in making the armor for the soldiers before going to the wars.—Adv.*

At the Orpheum

A big advance sale for the last performance of the Orpheum's current offering are reported at the box office. The splendid show with the delightful "Fashion Shop" as a headliner proved to be just the sort of a vaudeville bill that Harrisburg cares for most and accordingly the audiences were of unusual size. A bill calling in many vaudeville treats is being announced by the management for next week. The festivities are interesting in many respects and all is greatly enhanced by Miss Trixie Friganza, the celebrated musical comedy star, who stands in the lead of them all. Miss Friganza ranks with the most important bright lights that have been exploited at the Orpheum. She comes in a class with Kitty Gordon, Valeska Suratt, Irene Franklin and several others we have seen.

However, this will be Miss Friganza's first vaudeville engagement in Harrisburg. She comes here direct from tremendous successes she is winning this week at Hammerstein's theatre in New York City. Miss Friganza's offering consists of a routine of clever song hits, calling in special scenery and a gown for every song. Another interesting player on next week's bill will be the first local appearance of Helen Grayce in vaudeville. Miss Grayce has a big following here as a stock actress, and she will undoubtedly receive a big welcome from her admirers at the Orpheum next week when she and her capable company present a sparkling comedy called "Bill 999," which by the way, was written by Miss Una Clayton. A number of other interesting Keith hits are slated for next week.—Adv.*

At the Colonial

The splendid juvenile act called "Vacation Land," that is one of the best school comedies local vaudeville audiences have seen, will appear at the Busy Corner for its last engagements to-day. Pretty girls, clever comedians, loads of hilarious school pranks and tuneful songs, make this a very attractive playlet. Also Mr. and Mrs. Mark Murphy, the local comedy favorites, will appear for the last time at the Busy Corner in their great laugh ringing sketch called "Clancy's Ghost." Two other clever attractions combine to make this one of the very best vaudeville shows that patrons of the Colonial have seen.—Adv.*

Special Saturday at the Regent

"Springtime," in which Florence Nash stars, is a photoplay based on Booth Tarkington's successful legitimate offering of the same name. This play was filmed practically under the auspicies of the city of New Orleans. When Edward Roskam with his company of thirty, with the star, Miss Nash, reached the city to produce the photoplay in the scenes Booth Tarkington had written about, he was welcomed by the municipal authorities. The freedom of the city was given to the photoplayers and they were permitted to make all the exteriors they wished in the beautiful parks of the Southern city. These parks are so extensive that there were many secluded portions of the parks which were eminently suited for the purposes of "Springtime."

A number of the historic buildings in New Orleans which were standing in some form in 1812, the period of the story, are owned by the city. The municipality was very glad to have Miss Nash and her associates use these old mansions and buildings as settings for "Springtime."

Monday and Tuesday Tyrone Power appears in "Aristocracy," the famous society drama by Bronson Howard.

In order that you may not miss seeing "Springtime" your attention is called to the hours of its showing in our ad.—Adv.*

TOM MOORE AT THE PHOTOPLAY

Popular Kalem stars, Tom Moore and Marguerite Courtot, appears at the Photoplay Theatre to-day in a two-act Kalem drama, "The Secret Room." A two-act Selig, Western, "The Red Blood of Courage," with Bessie Eyton and Tom Santchi in the leading role, also a good Essanay Comery, "Ain't It the Truth," complete the bill. Coming Monday, "The Still Voice," in two acts. Special next Thursday, Francis X. Bushman and Miss Edna Mayo in a 3-act Essanay drama, "Stars Their Courses Change."

$2,000,000 RUSSIAN ORDER

Cambria Steel Company Furnishes Material for Shrapnel

Johnstown, Pa., March 6.—The Cambria Steel Company is now reaping considerable benefit from the European war in the shape of large orders for shrapnel steel and barbed wire. The largest contract was booked Thursday. It called for 46,500 tons of steel for the Russian government. The steel is what is known as bolt steel in long rods and will be shipped to Brooklyn to-day, to be cut up into shrapnel. This steel has been in stock for some time.

While no value has been placed on the metal by the officials of the company, it is said to approximate more than $2,000,000, the steel being valued at two cents a pound.

In addition to the bolt steel, a shipment of barbed wire aggregating 16,000 tons was made to Russia this week. This wire was sent to Vancouver, B. C., where it will be loaded on transports for Vladivostock.

Ten Years' Misery Ended

J. T. Chambers, merchant, Jonesboro, Ark., writes: "Foley Kidney Pills cured me of a ten-year standing case of rheumatism. I suffered miserably. A friend told me of being cured; so I used them, and they cured me, too." Most middle-aged men and women are glad to learn that Foley Kidney Pills afford a way to escape sleep disturbing bladder weakness, backache, rheumatism, puffiness under eyes, stiff and swollen joints, and other ills attributed to kidney troubles. HENSEL ESTATE $400,000

Franklin and Marshall May Eventually Get Quarter of Million

Lancaster, Pa., March 6.—Further information relative to the disposition of W. U. Hensel's estate became public yesterday, the value of the estate being estimated at about $400,000.

Instead of his only child, Mrs. John A. Nauman, receiving the bulk of the estate outright, it becomes a trust, the interest going to her for life. If she dies without issue, two brothers and two sisters of Mr. Hensel receive certain parts of the income for life. Upon their deaths the property of the trust passes absolutely to Franklin and Marshall College, which will probably get $250,000.

CHARGED WITH ARSON

Minersville Merchant Accused of Trying to Burn Store

Pottsville, Pa., March 6.—State officials took part in the prosecution of Isaac Diamond, on trial, charged with attempting to burn his clothing store at Minersville six weeks ago to get the insurance money. Assistant State Fire Marshall Quandrell testified that after the fire, which was extinguished before much damage was done, he found charred wood, soaked in oil, where the fire started. The wood had been broken up and paper placed underneath.

Diamond denies that he took any part in starting the fire.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson X.—First Quarter, For March 7, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. ix, 17, to x, 1. Memory Verse, x, 1—Golden Text, I Pet. ii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

These three chapters, in which we find today's lesson (viii to x), tell a sad yet beautiful and wonderful story, the sad part being Israel's rejection of God as their king and their desire to be like other nations; the wonderful past, His most gracious dealings with them and, the beautiful part, the way He overruled ordinary events to bring to Samuel the right man. It seems strange that Samuel, knowing so well Eli's failure to govern his sons, should have failed himself in the same way (chapter viii, 1-5), but perhaps some who may read this are not qualified to throw any stones. The desire of the people for a visible king, like all other nations, hurt Samuel, for he was now an old man and had all his life judged them righteously; but, knowing that he was only the Lord's representative, he told Him all about it, as we should always do in all things. The Lord reminded Samuel that he was not the rejected one, but that the people had rejected Him and that Samuel was only sharing His rejection (chapter viii, 6-9). It is so still, for our Lord Jesus counts all treatment of His messengers as done to Himself (Matt. x, 24, 25, 40).

The Lord told Samuel to heed their request, but to protest and show them what manner of man the king would be. This he did in the six times "He will take" of chapter viii, 10-18. Notwithstanding the warning the people insisted that they must have a king. Samuel told the Lord their decision, and He told Samuel to make them a king (chapter viii, 19-22).

Whether it be in answer to our right or our wrong requests, it is often His way to do beyond our desires, and so He selected for them the finest looking man in all Israel—a choice young man, none goodlier and head and shoulders taller than any other (chapter ix, 1, 2; x, 23). Samuel did not need to look for him nor to have any anxiety as to finding the right man, for the Lord told him in his ear one day, "Tomorrow about this time I will send thee a man out of the land of Benjamin" (chapter ix, 15, 16). I like that expression "told him in his ear," for it is a great thing to have an ear for God, an anointed ear to hear His voice, His only. The commonplace events which the Lord used to bring the unsuspecting man to Samuel are fully told in chapter ix, 3-14, and, if He thus wrought for an unbelieving man and a rebellious people, how much more will He work on behalf of His own, who truly desire to please Him! (Rom. viii, 32; Isa. xlviii, 17.)

The special lesson portion assigned us today begins with Saul approaching Samuel by the direction of the young maidens whom he met going out to draw water. How many Bible incidents there are associated with women drawing water, and how these maidens must have rejoiced a few days or weeks later that they had been used to direct the king to Samuel! There is a lot of comfort in the assurance that God worketh all things after the counsel of His own will and a whole lot more when we are willing to have Him work in and through us the good works He has prepared for us (Eph. i, 11; ii, 10). As Saul drew near to Samuel again the anointed ear heard the Lord's whisper: "Behold the man whom I spake to thee of! This same shall reign over my people" (verse 17). The words "Behold the man!" make us think of Zech. vi, 12, and John xix, 5, 24, the God-man, the King who shall yet rule over all Israel and over all nations forever. As the maidens were used to direct Saul to Samuel, so may we all be used to direct many "whosoevers" to Him who is ready to save them and share His kingdom with them.

Now we find Saul in the kind hands of Samuel at a surprise party, where he hears wonderful things which he never expected to hear and which all came to pass. He is the most honored guest. Samuel, knowing that God would do as He had said, had made every preparation and had invited these thirty people to meet him. After the feast Samuel communed with Saul, then cared for him overnight, in the morning again communed with him alone. The servant, having passed on, showed him the word of God, kissed him and anointed him captain over the Lord's inheritance. Saul's humility (verse 21) reminds us of that of Gideon (Judg. vi, 15), and well would it have been for him if he had continued thus humble. Note also his wise conduct toward his enemies in chapter x, 27, "He held his peace," or, as in the margin, "He was as though he had been deaf." Compare Ps. xxxviii, 13.

Chapter x, 7, is one of the most restful verses I ever found, "Do as occasion serve thee, for God is with thee." And the context teaches me that each morning, as I start the day, the Lord knows every one I shall meet and all that shall come my way. He orders all the circumstances, and I have only to fit in, not counting my own will or pleasure, but, seeing His hand in everything and saying a hearty "Even so, Lord," aim to glorify Him by patience and long suffering with joyfulness. As Joseph was able to say to those cruel brethren, "Not you, but God," so may we by His grace (Gen. xlv, 8).

Origin of the Name Automobile.

The word automobile comes from two words, one Greek and the other Latin. The two words are auto and mobile. The former is derived from the Greek autos, meaning self, and the latter from the Latin mobilis, adverb, movable. This is originally derived from the Latin verb moveo, movere, movi, motus, meaning to move. We are unable to say who first suggested the name for self propelled vehicles.
