The Voice of the People

Postal officials are authority for the statement that the volume of mail received at Harrisburg during the last two weeks, as the result of the campaign of education now being conducted by the railroads of Pennsylvania and New Jersey in an effort to show the people the vital necessity of having the Full Crew-"excess man "-Laws repealed, smashes all previous records.

Over 300,000 communications have been sent, each Senator and Assemblyman having been buried beneath an avalanche of letters urging repeal. These figures do not include the great number of persons voicing their sentiment through the medium of hundreds of petitions.

That the great majority of the people of Pennsylvania realize the great benefits and advantages to be derived by the Common-wealth through repeal of this law is unmistakably indicated by the almost unified endorsement of the press. Of these editorials, 305 favor repeal, while only 19 are against it.

The voice of the people also is heard in the prompt and vigorous general action of boards of trade, chambers of commerce, city councils, industrial clubs, and other business organizations. Indicating the great preponderance of public opinion voiced by such associations, the action of Williamsport Board of Trade members is striking. Here the question has been submitted to a referendum vote. To date, this vote stands 155 for repeal, 6 against it.

Action by the Media Civic Association rested on a vote of 213 for repeal, a solitary vote being registered in opposition.

Further emphasis of the overwhelming trend of public opinion is given by 213,000 names already signed to petitions calling for repeal of the Full Crew—"excess man crew"—Law. This also shows what the mass of people want.

Have YOU written to or communicated with YOUR elected representative? If not, do so TODAY, that he may know your wishes and thus be able to intelligently reflect your judgment when the question of repeal comes to a vote.

HOW SHIPS CAN AVOID THE DANGERS OF A SUBMARINE

THE ADVANTAGE OF SHOWING A CLEAN PAIR OF HEELS AND OTHER DEVICES FOR CHECKMATING

Several methods of checkmating a submarine are shown in this diagrammatic drawing, prepared especially for this newspaper, the New York Herald and the London Sphere. In the foreground are the enemy's periscopes, to which a merchantman is turning his tail. This position throws the wake of the vessel toward the oncoming torpedo, and may succeed in deflecting it to right or left. In every case it is necessary for the merchant skipper when in dangerous waters where a submarine may be encountered to drive his ship at full speed and at the same time steer an irregular course. In previous cases the enemy's "under sea boat" has appeared abeam of the ship about to be attacked and in such a position that the merchantman could not suddenly turn and ram her, but should two or three craft be in company when attacked then there might be a chance for one of them to ram while their enemy was engaged with the others, for it must be remembered that no fighting craft can be put out of action quicker than a submarine if it is touched either by the bows of its foe or by a shot from a light quick firer. In every case the merchant captain will have to think and act quickly immediately he sights his sinister foe. The map in the left hand bottom corner shows the area of Germany's so-called "blockade" with the "open" channel to the north of tha Shetlands and extending down to Holland.
