ELECTION LAWS CHANGED IF THESE MEASURES PASS

Bills Having the Backing of the Republican State Organization Introduced in the Senate—One of Them Designed to Prevent Fusion

The Senate, after receiving a number of important bills bearing on election laws, last night adjourned to meet on Monday evening next at 9:30 o'clock. The proposed new election laws and election law repealers, if they become operative, will work a great change in the system in Pennsylvania. They were all prepared by the attorney for the Republican state organization, and are intended to work for the benefit of that organization.

Among the chief changes proposed is one which in the future will, if approved prevent any candidate nominated for office withdrawing from a party ticket. This bill, which was introduced by Senator Patton, is intended to prevent a repetition of action like that of William Draper Lewis last fall in resigning from a ticket, after he had been named as a primary.

Senator Smith, of Philadelphia, presented a bill to repeal the section of the election law of 1897 providing for the placing of candidates upon the official ballot by means of nominating papers. The effect of this legislation would be to eliminate the present provision, which enables independent candidates to run for State office upon the proper presentation of petitions signed by one-half of one per cent. of the largest vote received by any candidate for a State office at the last preceding election.

The effect of the bill would be to prevent the creation of all new parties after the primaries. Senator Vane presented a bill to prevent the expenditure of vast sums of money to nominate and elect or defeat candidates for judgeships, and to reimburse aspirants for the State courts. The measure was prepared by Attorney General Brown at the suggestion of Governor Brumbaugh.

The measure makes it unlawful "for any person or persons, committee or organization of any kind whatsoever to contribute or expend any money or other valuable thing for election expenses, or to promote the nomination at any primary election, of any candidate for nomination for any judicial office in this Commonwealth, or to defeat or prevent the nomination at any primary election of any candidate for nomination for any judicial office in this Commonwealth." It is provided, however, that contributions may be made direct to any candidate for nomination for a judicial office.

A bill introduced by Senator Tompkins, of Cambria, is a general repealer of the act passed two years ago for the non-partisan election of all judges and of officers of second class cities. The proposed repealer is to take effect on January 1 next, so that it will not interfere with any of the non-partisan elections this fall.

Another bill, sponsored by Senator Smith, provides that if two or more candidates for the same office have the same or a similar surname, the County Commissioners may, upon the request of any of the candidates, print the occupation of the rivals upon the official ballot.

Another bill presented by Senator McNichol seeks to change the fall registration dates in odd-numbered years so as to eliminate the present provision for qualifying in August. The changes call for the three registration days to fall on the ninth, Thursday, eighth Tuesday and eighth Saturday preceding the municipal elections, thus placing all of these dates in September.

REO EXHIBIT SHOWS CARS DISPLAYED AT NEW YORK

Company Largely Represented at Annual Show of Harrisburg Dealers' Association at Arena—Total of 157 Machines Delivered in 1914

At the sixth annual automobile show held by the Harrisburg Dealers' Association at the Arena, the exhibit of the Reo will be seen. A complete line of their products is being shown and consists of a six cylinder touring car, a four cylinder touring car, a four cylinder roadster, a four cylinder coupe and a four cylinder 1914 touring car as well as a six cylinder chassis that was shown at the New York show. A complete line of parts is also on exhibition. The wonderful popularity of this line of automobiles has been very forcibly demonstrated by the quantity of cars that the local representative, the Harrisburg Automobile Company have been handling in the last year. One hundred and fifty-seven cars were delivered in this territory during the season of 1914 which was considered a very good year's business. The 1915 business is still far more gratifying and up to the present time, George G. McFarland, of the Harrisburg Automobile Company, has delivered to his customers 140 Reo cars with four car loads on the road for immediate delivery. A total of 212 orders have been taken for delivery up until the first part of April. In addition to this business they have stored 51 cars in S. B. Romberger's storage warehouse on South Tenth street. These stored cars are all for delivery during the summer months for late buyers and were stored by this enterprising firm who knew very well that they would not be able to get enough cars during the summer months to supply the demand for this most popular car. The popularity of the car has grown in leaps and bounds.

Reo owners find they can drive their cars over all kinds of roads the year around, ten thousand miles at an average cost of between two and three cents a mile for all expenses outside of washing and storing, that the car is always ready to go. When it needs repairing it is of a most moderate amount. The Harrisburg Automobile Company keeps on hand at all times a large quantity of parts and are in position to supply Reo owners instantly what they want, even on cars that were made in 1907 and 1908. They practically have a factory branch at their establishment, Third and Hamilton streets. Nothing more can be wished for in an automobile than can be given in a Reo car and service supplied by the local firm.—Adv.*

Photo Play To-day

"The Hermit of Bird Island," special, three parts. The young Earl of Betzwood is forced, because of an injured arm, to give up racing his famous speed boat in the races of the next day. His fiancée, Viola Van Tassel, an American girl, insists that some one else must take charge of the boat and win the cup. The Earl demurs, but is overruled, and Viola goes away by herself to think it over. By accident she wanders into the fishing village and there becomes interested in Dave Hallow, a young fisherman, who though he owns a high-power fishing boat, has greater aspirations and longs to be the possessor of a real racing craft. Viola leads him on and Dave, who has never before known a woman of the upper classes, becomes infatuated.—Adv.*

Probably Fatally Injured in Runaway

Salunga, March 17.—L. L. Hensel, 20 years old, was probably fatally injured last evening when he was dragged by a horse several hundred feet, while the animal was running away. He held onto the lines and when the horse finally stopped he turned around and trampled him. The young man was driving the horse without being hitched to a carriage with the lines.

Joint Recital at Chestnut Street

The announcement made a few days ago that Maud Powell, the famous American violinist, and Evan Williams, the great Welsh tenor, were to appear in a joint recital in the Chestnut street auditorium on Thursday evening, April 8, was received with more than mere enthusiasm.

Among the musical artists in this country none are more popular nor esteemed more highly than Madam Powell and Mr. Williams, and it is seldom that one has such an opportunity of hearing two such great artists in one evening.

Of a recent recital in a large western city a critic says of the wonderful playing powers of Maud Powell: "She certainly is the greatest woman player." And it has been further said she plays as well as any man, even in consideration of that marvel, Fritz Kreisler.

Last month Mr. Williams gave a recital in Aeolian hall, New York City, and hundreds of people were turned away, and Mr. Henderson, the able musical writer on the New York "Sun," refers to him as one of the most interesting singers to be heard in recital. It is through the local management
