GRAIN SHIPPED AT ANTWERP IS SEIZED TO GERMANY

London, March 17.—Virtually all of the grain seized by the Germans in Antwerp has been shipped to Germany, according to dependable information reaching London.
The total value of this grain is about $6,000,000. The Belgian owners of it have been paid for their property in a new issue of paper money which the Belgian banks have been forced to issue, and which is not accepted outside of Belgium. The grain shipments on their way through the canals of the Netherlands to Germany are accompanied by receipts, although the money is not paid until the arrival of the grain safely in Germany. Once in German territory, the War Grain Company takes charge of it.
Russian Generals Dismissed
Berlin, March 17.—It is reported that 12 Russian generals have been dismissed as a result of the recent Russian defeat in the Maurian lakes region.

BRITISH CRUISER BADLY HIT IN DARDANELLES BATTLE

Berlin, March 17.—The Overseas News Agency yesterday gave out what they describe as a report from Athens to the effect that the British cruiser Amethyst sustained heavy damages, and had 28 officers and men killed and an equal number wounded during an attack on the inner forts of the Dardanelles, in which five British warships took part.
A newspaper at Athens has published a report that in the Dardanelles the Turks are making use of motor batteries, which they can move quickly. They are being very careful of their ammunition. In this regard the allies are different; already they have fired away ammunition to the value of several hundred thousand dollars.
The correspondent at Athens of the "Lokal Anzeiger" says the Turks have succeeded in placing new heavy guns in the Kum Kale battery, at the mouth of the Dardanelles, which have replied fiercely to the fire of a French squadron. He also says that two badly-damaged British cruisers have been taken into Malta. One of these vessels has been struck fairly no less than 20 times.

MANY CASES OF RHEUMATISM NOW

Says We Must Keep Feet Dry. Avoid Exposure and Eat Less Meat
Stay off the damp ground, avoid exposure, keep feet dry, eat less meat, drink lots of water, and above all take a spoonful of salts occasionally to keep down uric acid.
Rheumatism is caused by poisonous toxin, called uric acid, which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine. The pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed, thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.
At the first twinges of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.
Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink which overcomes uric acid and is beneficial to your kidneys as well.—Adv.

CALL RUSSIAN RESERVISTS, 25,000 MEN MUST REPORT

Seattle, Wash., March 17.—All Russian reservists in Washington, Oregon, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Alaska have been ordered home to join the colors in an order issued by Nicolas Bogdanovitch, Russian Consul General here. At the consulate yesterday it was said that approximately 25,000 men in the Pacific Northwest would be affected.
It is expected that a Russian steamship will be chartered to carry the reservists from the consular district to Vladivostok. The order applies to all classes of reservists, and it is said to be the first issued by the Russian Consul General since the European war began.
The reservists must report to their commands not later than April 13 under penalty of being declared deserters.
Americans Protest Sending Arms
Dresden, March 17.—The American Club, of Dresden, has prepared an appeal against the shipment of arms and ammunition to the nations at war. It will be distributed throughout the United States.
Much Smallpox in Czar's Capital
Petrograd, March 17.—Four hundred and seventy cases of smallpox were reported in Petrograd during January and February, as compared with 1,178 for all of last year.
Locating the Fire
"Where was the fire in town last night?"
"I think it must have been the library."
"What makes you think that?"
"Well, I heard the smoke was issued from there."

DACIA'S CREW AT HOME; DESCRIBE SHIP'S SEIZURE

New York, March 17.—How the steamship Dacia was seized while flying the American flag, with a cargo of cotton aboard from Galveston for Bremen by way of Rotterdam, was described yesterday by her 32 officers and sailors, sent home, by orders of the French government, on the steamer Rochambeau, which docked yesterday.
"The Frenchman which seized us," said one of the officers, "was the cruiser Europe. We had passed three warships without being molested before she bore down on us."
Accordingly it surprised us a little when we were stopped. The Europe halted us at 8 o'clock on the night of February 27, turned her searchlight on us and kept it there. Presently she sent aboard a prize crew, an officer and seven men. They treated the Dacia's officers and sailors courteously and took us into Brest, about 40 miles away."
Most of the party said they did not know why they were sent back, by whom or who paid their fares. They were under orders, they said, not to talk till after they had reported to Edward N. Breitung, who bought the Dacia, then a German steamship, and changed her to American registry.
It was stated last night that E. Novello & Co. had brought suit in the New York Supreme Court as minority owners of the Dacia against Mr. Breitung to recover their alleged investment of 40 per cent. of the value of the ship.

FORMER PAGE'S SECRETARY KILLED ON FRENCH FRONT

New York, March 17.—William L. Breese, former secretary to Ambassador Page in London, was killed Sunday in the fighting on the French front, according to cable advice received yesterday. Mr. Breese was an officer in the Royal Horse Guards and it was while in action with his regiment, which participated in the recent British offensive movement, that he fell.
Mr. Breese leaves a widow, who was Miss Julia Fish, daughter of Hamilton Fish, the banker, and two children, Lady Alister Innes-Ker and the Countess of Ancaster are sisters of Mr. Breese.
Mr. Breese, who came of an old New York family, had lived in England for the past six years. He became a naturalized British citizen in order to take a commission as lieutenant in the Royal Horse Guards.
Another secretary of the American Embassy, Harold Fowler, formerly of New York, took a commission in the British army at the same time as Mr. Breese. A report was published that Mr. Fowler had also been killed. This is erroneous. Mr. Fowler is still in England.

Queer Pronunciations
There are many names of places in England that puzzle the stranger. Hapsburgh, in Norfolk, for instance, is pronounced "Haseburgh." Abergavenny simply drops a syllable and becomes "Abergenny," and it is alleged that St. Neots sounds more like "Snoots" than anything else. Cirencester seems to vary from "Sister" to "Sizeter." In Suffolk Waldringfield is "Wuanerful" and Chelmondiston "Chimston," while in the adjoining county of Norfolk Hunstanton is "Hunston," and in the west county Badgworthy is "Badgerly" and Cornwood "Kerwood." Huntingdonshire claims the purest English, but they call Papworth "Parpur." And not far from there a motorist turned upon a rough road and asked the intelligent laborer where it would take him. "That road," said the honest countryman, wiping his brow, "will take you to 'Ell, sir.' The courageous motorist went on and found Ellsworth, which is pronounced "Ellser."—Manchester Guardian.

Widespread notoriety, and in some cases criminal prosecution, has followed the many recent cases of attempted evasion of payment of duty upon articles brought into this country by wealthy and prominent Americans returning from abroad and these alleged "society smugglers" have provided one of the hardest problems the agent of the United States secret service attached to the customs department have been confronted with. This problem forms the basis for "Under Cover," Roi Cooper Meigrue's thrilling new melodrama of love, laughter and mystery which is now playing to crowded houses in both New York and Chicago, and which Selwyn & Company are to offer at the Majestic this afternoon and evening.
The author, with an intimate knowledge of the workings of the secret service in its quest of lawbreakers, has in "Under Cover" fashioned an adroit and consistently entertaining narrative of a pretty young woman, of gentle birth and high social position, who is forced by circumstances to aid the government's agents in tracing the person suspected of smuggling a $200,000 necklace into the United States. In the development of the plot she finds not only her sister, who has been emmeshed in a financial tangle, but the man with whom she is in love, regarded as suspect, and she battles to save both from the clutches of the law. A solution wholly unexpected comes at the final moment of the play which is replete with thrills, laughs and ingenious surprises.—Adv.

Etta Bayuk Speaks
"I tell you a being a chorus girl isn't what the ticket buying public thinks," said Etta Bayuk, of the "When Dreams Come True" company, who comes to the Majestic to-morrow afternoon and evening. "I guess I know something about being a chorus girl after six years in stuffy dressing rooms with all kinds of girls, dissatisfied and queer languages. But we never mix with the girls unless we want to and like them especially well. One can take dreadful chances chumming with chorus neighbors.
"Like most girls, I was stage struck and my one desire was to become an actress. My father declared he would never hear of my going on the stage in any capacity. After his death I coaxed mother into letting me join Sam Bernhardt's company, one of the girls was taken sick or was discharged, and I applied for the position and got it; I had just two days to rehearse before I went on, and oh, what a couple of days.
"You know when a new girl goes into a chorus all the other girls declare they will show her a thing or two and hate her before she ever shows her scared face in the unwellcome atmosphere, at least that is what happened to me."—Adv.

Carlisle Elks' Big Frollic
The advance sale of seats for the show to be given on Friday and Saturday, with Saturday matinee, at the Majestic theatre by the Carlisle Elks, indicates that this year's visit of the home talent actors from Carlisle will surpass in many respects the engagement of a year ago. The seat sale is large and the reports that have come to Harrisburg from Carlisle where the show has sold out solidly for three days, are to the effect that last year's show fades materially in comparison with the musical comedy in three acts that the Carlisle boys are now giving. The show consists of the latest songs and whirlwind dances, and the gowns worn by the female impersonators are a show in themselves.—Adv.

Maudie Adams
The coming of Maudie Adams to the Majestic next Friday evening in J. M. Barrie's charming comedy, "Quality Street," brings to mind that it was in Barrie's dramatization of his own novel, "The Little Minister," that the actress first stepped forward as a full fledged star. Her success since that time has been of wonderful volume and most of it has been in connection with plays from the pen of the gifted Scotch dramatist. Following "The Little Minister" came "Quality Street," which is now being revived, and after that "Peter Pan." The latter play was revived two years ago and proved to be more popular than ever. "What Every Woman Knows" was the next long play from Barrie's pen and this was followed by "The Legend of Leonora."

It is a fact regarding Barrie's plays that they possess enduring qualities not to be found in the works of so many authors. "Peter Pan" is revived each Christmas in London, and Charles Frohman has arranged for another revival of "The Little Minister" in England. The revival of "Quality Street" is meeting the same measure of success as did "Peter Pan" upon its revival. There has always been a call for the play since it was laid aside, and Miss Adams has been anxious to bring it back into the light. It was only during her present tour that she saw her way clear to again present the comedy. Those to whom the comedy is new will find it full of Barrie humor and sentiment that is charming. The role played by Miss Adams is that of Phoebe Throssell and the story deals with her love affair.—Adv.

At the Orpheum
It has been many a long day since as much clever talent was crowded into a single vaudeville offering as the one that the Orpheum management presents this week. This is not alone true of the fourteen clever participants of "Safety First," the gigantic musical comedy that heads the bill, but it is true of each supporting attraction. For there is pretty "Bobby" Smith and her sister, Irene, who bid fair to score the biggest hit of any sister team that ever appeared at the Orpheum. Their act is original, "classy" and brim full of dash. They rank just as high as either the Courtney girls or the Farber sisters in local favor and deserve to. Then there is Bert Levy, the very interesting cartoonist, who draws from the ridiculous to the sublime, in very clever fashion. Sometimes he will draw an excellent likeness of some great man, again he may draw a beautiful dog head and every now and then inject some comedy vein.
His way of presenting his drawings is his own patent and it is easily the most entertaining in vaudeville. Mr. Levy will interest the most blasé; he will interest the most intelligent and stop at all the way stations. Speaking of neat and wonderful whirlwind dancers, it's good to think of Burns and Fulton, the young man and woman who are delighting Orpheum audiences immensely on this same bill. Burns and Fulton are recognized as vaudeville's most clever whirlwind dancers and their neat, clever and pretty turn attracts to the fact.—Adv.

At the Colonial
The Colonial theatre is in for two more days of unadulterated mirth, while the Five Komical Kops with their irresistibly funny comedy and songs remain there. And three other Keith attractions of merit are grouped with them, including Lesley and Lipson, the Prima Donna and the Count; Wopman and Horton, singing and talking comedians, and Hazel Moran, the girl with the Jarlats. For the Country Store on Wednesday evening, somebody is going to come into possession of a pair of chubby twins, the nicest little twins you ever saw in your life. "The Song Doctors," a big musical comedy with pretty girls, clever comedians, special scenery, good songs and comedy will be the special feature of the bill for the last half of the week.—Adv.

At the Regent
Today and to-morrow at the Regent Theatre, there will be paramount program productions, by Daniel Frohman, the great theatrical producer. We will show Wednesday and Thursday, "Mrs. Black," the famous stage star, in "Mrs. Black," her first hit in years. "The Song Doctors," a big musical comedy with pretty girls, clever comedians, special scenery, good songs and comedy will be the special feature of the bill for the last half of the week.—Adv.

Byron at Ostend
At one time Ostend was a great fortress looking out over the North Sea through her menacing loophole upon the sails of Vikings. A century ago Byron made his memorable flight, not from, but to Ostend, in terror of vengeful bailiffs who were laying siege to his mansion in Piccadilly. The poet made the journey to Dover in his magnificent 500 pound coach, but had to wait until a storm abated before the mail packet felt it safe to set sail. That Byron was far from seasickness in his crossing "Ostend Harold's Pilgrimage" testifies.—London Standard.
