

MOTHER! GIVE CROSS SICK CHILD ONLY "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

If Peevish, Feverish, Tongue Coated, Give "Fruit Laxative" at Once

A teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in just a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move one of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

No matter what ails your child a laxative should be the first treatment given.

Timely Foods

Rhubarb pie and rhubarb stewed have appeared on most tables by now and the first keen enjoyment of them is somewhat dulled.

Rhubarb is rich in oxalic acid and when eaten freely does much to purify the blood and put the system in order for summer.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Question.—"Please tell me how to make cheese?"

Reply.—The process of cheese making is very long but interesting and you can secure reliable directions by writing to Agricultural Department, Washington, D. C., for bulletin number 166, called Cheese Making at Home.

Question.—"Please explain how okra is grown. It does not seem to grow well from seeds. Is it used in any dishes except Gumbo and other soups?"

Reply.—Okra does grow from seeds but you must secure the seed from some reliable dealer as they must be fertilized by special method.

Question.—"To what class of food do fish belong? Are fish as wholesome as meat? Are fish ever fat?"

Reply.—1st: Fish belong to the class of nitrogenous foods. 2nd: Fish are as wholesome as meat but not quite so nourishing.

CHAPTER XVII.

The Battle.

Next morning, when it became known among the bankers and foreign agencies that a letter of credit for ten thousand pounds had been lost or stolen, there was more than a ripple of excitement.

At half past ten Warrington, apparently none the worse for a sleepless night, entered the private office of the consul general who, gravely and with studied politeness, handed to him an unopened telegram.

"I rather preferred to let you open it, Mr. Warrington," he said. Warrington noted the lack of cordiality, but with passive regret.

"Read it," he said.

"If Ellison will make restitution in person, yes."

The consul general jumped to his feet and held out his hand. "I am glad, very glad. Everything will turn out all right now. If you wish, I'll tell Miss Chetwood the news."

"I was going to ask you to do that," responded Warrington. The mention of Elisa took the brightness out of his face.

Paul Warrington Ellison. After all, I'm so used to Warrington, that I may as well let well enough alone.

"I should use my own name, if I were you. Why, man, you can return to the States as if you had departed but yesterday. The world forgets quickly. People will be asking each other what it was that you did. Then I shall bid Miss Chetwood good-by for you?"

"Yes. I am going to jog it home. I want to travel first class, here, there, wherever fancy takes me. It's so long since I've known absolute ease and comfort. I wish to have time to readjust myself to the old ways. I was once a luxury-loving chap. I sail at dawn for Saigon. I may knock around in Siam for a few weeks. After that, I don't know where I'll go. Of course I shall keep the Andes advised of my whereabouts, from time to time."

"Another man would be in a hurry." It was on the tip of his tongue to tell Warrington what he knew of the Andes Construction company, but something held back the words, a fear that Warrington might change his mind about seeing Elisa.

"There are good men in this world, sir, and I shall always remember you as one of them."

"By the way, that man Mallow; have you met him yet?"

The quizzical expression in his eyes made Warrington laugh. "No." "I was in hopes..."

He shunted further inquiry by saying: "A letter of credit of mine was stolen last night. I had a tussle in the room, and was rather getting the best of it. The thug slipped suddenly away. Probably hid the letter in his loin cloth."

"That's unfortunate."

"I have sent out a general stop-order. No one will be able to draw against it. The sum will create suspicion anywhere."

"Have you any idea who was back of the thief? Is there any way I can be of service to you?"

"I really suspect Mallow and a gambler named Craig, but no court would hold them upon the evidence I have. It's my belief that it's a practical joke which measures up to the man who perpetrated it. He must certainly realize that a letter so large will be eagerly watched for."

"I shall gladly take charge of the matter here for you. I suppose that you will eventually meet Mallow?"

"Eventually suggests a long time," grimly.

"Ah... Is there... Do you think there will be any need of a watch holder?"

"I honestly believe you would like to see me have it out with him!"

"I honestly would. But unfortunately the dignity of my office forbids. He has gone up and down the settlements, bragging and domineering and fighting. I have been given to understand that he has never met his match."

"It's a long lane that has no turning. After all," Warrington added, letting go his reserve; "you're the only friend I have. Why shouldn't I tell you that immediately I am going out in search of him, and that when I find him I am going to give him the worst walloping he ever heard of?"

"I ought not to want to see you at it, but, hang it, I do!"

"Human nature. It's a pleasurable sensation to back up right by might. Four years ago I vowed that some day I'd meet him on equal terms. I may not see you again. If the letter of credit turns up, you know what to do with it. I'm keen to get started. Good-by, and thank you."

A handclasp, and he was gone. "I wish," thought the consul general, "I could have told him about the way the scoundrel spoke of Elisa." And Warrington, as he sought the cafe veranda, wished he could have told the basic truth of his fighting mood; the look Mallow had given Elisa that day in Penang. Diligently he began the search. Mallow and Craig were still in their rooms, doubtless sleeping off the debauch of the preceding night. He saw that he must wait. Luncheon he had in town.

Good Coal Proves Its Quality

Some coal is richer in carbon than others. The thing is to find the veins that supply it. The coal that's rich in carbon is going to burn satisfactorily and throw out plenty of lasting heat.

For the intensity of heat depends upon the amount of carbon. Kelley's Coal proved its richness in carbon years ago.
