Maude Adams

Maude Adams

Very few announcements have awakened more interest among theatregoers than the one that Maude Adams was to present J. M. Barrie's early comedy, ''Quality Street,'' at the Majestic this evening. This was shown by the demand for seats and it is a certainty that the charming comedy will be unfolded by Miss Adams and the members of her company before an audience that will fill the house. Some plays will never grow old, threadbare and worn and ''Quality Street'' seems to belong to their number. Barrie is purely a sentimentalist with a well developed sense of humor in this play and as sentiment-can never depart from the world and humor will.

as sentiment can never depart from the world and humor will always be en-joyed he gave to his work ingredients that will always keep it fresh and fasthat will always keep it fresh and fas-cinating.

Another thing that tends to permit the play holding its popularity is the fact that in it Miss Adams has one of the most charming and diverting roles that has ever been given her. It is a quaint, lovable, eerie little lady that she presents as Phoebo Throssell, trim and just as Puritanical as the little vil-lage in which she lived in the laws or and just as Puritanical as the little village in which she lived in the long ago. But Phoebe had a heart and she lost it to Valentine Brown. Barrie pictures their love as a garden. In the first act he shows one glimpse of the garden; in the second one sees how the garden grew; in the third a weed attacks the garden and in the fourth it is shown how the flowers drove the weed from the garden. Of course, Miss Adams will be seen as Phoebe Throssell. In the supporting company are Charles the supporting company are Charles Hammond, Morten Selten, Fred Tyler, Stafford Windsor, Willard Barton, Wal-lace Jackson, Angela Ogden, Elise Clar-ens, Leonora Chippendale, Sarah Con-verse and Byrd Rodgers.—Adv. *

At the Majestic next Wednesday "Within the Law," Bayard Veiller's tremendously successful melodrama, which ran for an entire season at the Eltinge Theatre, New York City, will be seen for two performances. This four-act play which made the fame of four-act play which made the fame of its author in a single night tells an absorbing story of modern conditions in New York life, and has received the public endorsement not only of the President, but of prominent men and women identified with literature, art, politics and the drama. Among those who have lent their names as a guarantee of the worth-while qualities of Mr. who have lent their names as a guarantee of the worth-while qualities of Mr. Veiller's up-to-date play, may be mentioned besides Woodrow Wilson, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Mrs. O. At the Orpheum

Because of the fact that the Orphe Because of the fact that the Orpheium's present season is rapidly slipping away, one of the best vaudeville offerings of the year is holding forth there this week. This season, as in former seasons, it has been the aim of the management to wind up the vaudeville term in a very excellent manner, making the last shows the best shows, so that vaudeville appetite will be kept in splendid tone all during the heated term. This year accordingly is no exception to the rule. The ideal works which vaudeville patrons on every hand are declaring to be one of the season's choicest.

Next week we are to see the famous actress, Henrietta Crosman, starring in a wonderful drama entitled "Thou Shalt Not Kill." Miss Crosman will be supported by a noteworthy array of big Keith names. For the next couple weeks headliners, just as interesting, are promised. So the slogan to vaudeville fans to-day, is get in line and see this week's show at the Orpheum, and don't miss any of the last few that are to follow. For the management promises these last few weeks to be the cream of the season. It will be interesting to note that the Eight Royal Dragoons, that Ralph Dunbar presents this week as the headline attraction, also sent the Nine Royal Hussars to the Orpheum last year as the theadline of the season's last bill. There is a striking similarity between these two acts and last year the Hussars were widely discussed as being the best headline attraction of the season. There's, a corking layout of Keith acts supporting this one at the Orpheum this week.—Adv.  supporting this one at the Orpheum this week.—Adv. *
