NEWS OF STEELTON

CEDAR CANOE IS STOLEN THE OWNER HAS NO CLUE

E. O. Hendrickson, Member of Steelton Canoe Club, Is Latest Victim of River Front Thieves, Who Are Again Becoming Active

The annual breaking open of boat houses along the river shore in the vicinity of Francis street, which are owned by members of the Steelton Canoe Club, has again commenced, the latest sufferer being Edward O. Hendrickson, a clerk employed in the freight office of the Pennsylvania railroad at this place. Some time between Sunday morning and Tuesday morning his new Morris cedar canoe, 16 feet in length, was stolen and he can find no trace of it. In this instance no other thing of value was taken, but last year many houses were broken open and nearly all things of value were either removed or destroyed. The matter has been referred to the borough police, but no clues have yet been obtained.

The Death Train
An episode of the Hazards of Helen railroad series. The discovery the detectives are on their trail, causes Doyle, Broden and Elzer, counterfeiters, to pack their paraphernalia into a trunk and express it to Lone Point. Upon its arrival at that station, a corner of the trunk is smashed. Helen thus learns of its contents. The telegrapher immediately wires to Savage, a railroad detective. How Helen traps the counterfeiters and gets herself into great peril is graphically told in motion pictures at the Standard Theatre to-night.—Adv.*

HUSTLING WORK ON BRIDGE

Pennsylvania Steel Company Using Monster Derrick to Lay Girders on Mulberry Street Subways

One of the largest self-propelled derricks in the world—as large as the one used in the construction of the Panama canal—is being used by the Pennsylvania Steel Company in the work on the Front and Second streets subways at Mulberry street in order to hurry the placing of the steel in order to make way for the concrete contractors, who will construct the Cumberland Valley bridge across the river. In all 400 tons of the steel girders will be used in the two bridges over the streets. Two of the largest girders, which weigh 28 tons each, are already placed on the Front street bridge. Smaller connecting pieces were placed to-day.

The derrick has a capacity of 200,000 pounds. The work it is now engaged on taxes it to a little over one-third of its capacity. The derrick weighs 90,000 pounds. The steel will all be placed in about two weeks and most of the expert steel men now engaged in this work will be sent to Memphis, Tenn., where the Pennsylvania Steel Company is engaged in building approaches to the monster steel bridge there.

VASSAR GIRLS ON COP DUTY

Force Organized to Enforce the "Keep Off the Grass" Warning
Poughkeepsie, March 6.—Headed by Miss Lathin Marilla Folks, of Yonkers, as their chief, the students at Vassar College have formed a police squad to enforce the order to "keep off the grass" on the college campus. Provided with police whistles and wearing big glittering badges designating them as special officers the girls are protecting the young grass.

The girl police force will try to prevent the girls from taking short cuts across the now soft turf of the campus. A girl cop is stationed on each walk and whenever a fellow student attempts to cut across she is halted by a shrill blast from a police whistle. Thus reminded, the offending student is expected to hurry back to the nearest concrete walk.

Miss Folks, who is one of the leaders in the Students Association, is a daughter of Homer Folks, secretary of the New York State Charities Aid Association.

PROWLER AT POWDER PLANT

Guard Shoots at Man Near Du Pont Works
Paterson, N. J., March 26.—Harry D. Pipher, a guard at the du Pont Powder plant at Haskell, N. J., fired at a man who was prowling near a big powder magazine before dawn this morning when the man refused a command to halt.

The prowler dashed at Pipher and in the struggle ensuing Pipher shot himself in the left wrist and dropped to the ground. Other guards hastened to the spot, but the man had escaped.

Since the war began the du Pont Powder Company has been working a day and night shift and has employed a special guard of 150 men. Three weeks ago a 100,000 pound powder magazine was exploded and five men were killed. Superintendent O. W. Bierwith thinks the magazine was exploded by a spy.

WINS $10,000 FROM WIDOW

Common Law Wife Successful in Alienation Suit
Mineola, L. I., March 26.—Mrs. Sarah Murdock, of Rockville Center, was awarded $10,000 damages by the jury which heard her suit for $75,000 against Mrs. Matilda Avery, a widow of Blue Point. Robert S. Pelletreau, counsel for Mrs. Avery, at once moved to set aside the verdict and argument will be heard later.

Mrs. Murdock admitted there had never been a religious or civil ceremony between herself and Charles Murdock, but said their common law marriage had existed for twenty years prior to 1913, when the plaintiff claimed, Mrs. Avery alienated the affections of Murdock.
