awaiting the Court's decision on a mo-tion for a new trial and an arrest of judgment. W. L. Loeser, of Harrisburg, was Bonadio's counsel.

The defendant is the man who eloped with the wife of a Washington, D. C., man, married her in Harrisburg, and then, with the woman's five children, beat a hasty retreat to Missouri. There he opened a shoe store and two weeks later found himself in the toils, the victim of an alleged trumped up charge victim of an alleged trumped up charge preferred by the wife. By the time he regained his freedom he was a deserted man.

Subsequently a Dauphin county jury acquitted him on a charge of unlawfully marrying a married person. The Grand Jury in Dauphin county ignored an indictment against the woman, which charged her with bigamy.

Calvin Klopfs, a farmer of Myerstown, this county, was convicted of stealing cattle feed and was sentenced last evening by Judge Henry to a sixty day jail term. A similar sentence was imposed upon John Brehm, of Palmyra, convicted of stealing harness.
