

MOVIE MEN DENY CENSOR USE OF THEIR MACHINE

The hearing before the Judiciary General Committee of the House last night on the bill hacked by the motion picture exhibitors and film men of the State, calling for the repeal of the State censorship bill and the wiping out of the State Board of Censors, was enticed when J. Louis Breiting, chief of the Board of Censors, sought to use the picture men's machine—installed in the hall of the House for the evening—for the purpose of displaying alleged objectionable parts of films that had been submitted to the censors for approval.

The motion picture men said they were perfectly willing to let Mr. Breiting use their machine if he would display the complete pictures, including the censored parts, but they held that the showing alone of the censored parts, or "cut-outs," without the context would not be fair. They argued that often a part of a picture, when lifted out of the context, would appear immoral or improper in itself, when, if the whole film were used, it would be shown that the eliminated part was necessary in forcing home a moral lesson.

W. Stephen Bush of the "Motion Picture World," of New York, for the motion picture men, said that even parts of the Bible or Shakespeare, if lifted out and read by themselves, would sound improper, but that with the context they serve an uplifting purpose. Breiting would not agree to show the complete pictures, so Chairman Wilson, of the House committee, announced an abrupt adjournment of the hearing. This was after 11 o'clock at night and following a long session in which the bill was discussed, chiefly from the viewpoint of its opponents. The hall was crowded with spectators, including many legislators.

Among those who argued for the repeal of censorship were Samuel Wheeler, of Philadelphia; George W. Sahner, of Pittsburgh; chairman of the joint legislative committee of the exchange men and the recently formed Motion Picture Exhibitors' League of Pennsylvania, and J. H. Butler, Philadelphia manager of the Mutual Film Company. Those who spoke against the repeal bill were Charles E. Carpenter, a Philadelphia manufacturer, and Mrs. Sepale, of Pittsburgh, president of the State Federation of Pennsylvania Women. Yesterday afternoon the joint committee of movie men met in this city and decided to keep up the fight for absolute elimination of censorship, declining to consider a compromise. Among the members of the committee are Peter Magaro, of Harrisburg; Ben M. Zerr, of Reading, president of the State League; Frank A. Gould, a prominent Reading exhibitor and newspaperman, who is publicity representative of the league, and several others, including the men who spoke at the hearing last night.

M'NICHOE ELECTION BILLS DELAYED TILL NEXT WEEK

When the Senate to-day reached the several election bills introduced for the purpose of changing the manner of nominating candidates, formation of parties, and so forth, they being up for third reading and final passage, Senator McNichol asked that final action be postponed, but stated no reasons for the request. Under the existing laws, the Senate having agreed to adjourn to-day until then, and it is expected that McNichol will ask that a vote be taken on their final passage on Tuesday.

The House bill relating to the State registration of nurses was defeated on final passage, but the vote was afterward reconsidered and the bill laid over for the present.

The Snyder act for the establishment of free public non-sectarian libraries was defeated on final passage by 27 yeas to 3 yeas. The Dunn House bill regulating the manner of paying county employees in counties having a population of over a million was defeated, 28 yeas to 6 yeas.

CHILD LABOR BILL REPORTED

It Contains Several Amendments Made by the House Committee. The Cox child labor bill, prepared under the direction of Governor Brambaugh, was reported from the House Committee on Manufacturers to-day with a number of important amendments. The measure has been made more liberal in the employment of children between 14 and 15 years old, but more drastic for children between 15 and 16. The bill will be on the first reading calendar to-morrow and should come up for final passage next week. The bill may go through the House in its present form, but further amendments are expected in the Senate.

FIRST JITNEY BUS BILL TO REACH HOUSE IS LOST

The first jitney bus bill to come before the House at this session of the Legislature, received its death blow without comment this morning. The bill would have permitted traction companies to operate omnibus lines in connection with street railway systems. Not a member spoke on the bill and it was defeated by a vote of 81 for and 46 against, 104 votes being necessary to passage.

The House also defeated a bill requiring county commissioners to make appropriations to carry on extension work in agriculture in connection with the State College, by a vote of 87 to 129. Mr. Nissley, of Dauphin, spoke against the bill. There is already a law which permits county commissioners to appropriate money for this purpose.

Mr. Nissley also raised objection to a bill authorizing the appointment of a District Attorney, their salaries to be paid by the county. This bill was defeated by a vote of 94 to 64.

There was a small attendance in the house and members who had important bills to which there is opposition had bills postponed. The McNichol bill regulating the practice of optometry was postponed, and there was a special order of business for Tuesday morning at 10:30 o'clock. The Stein equal rights bill, which prohibits the exclusion of persons from places of amusement or accommodation on account of race, creed or color, was postponed. The measure reducing the tax on oleomargarine dealers from $100 to $10, was postponed.

Special orders of business were fixed on workmen's compensation and child labor, both administration measures. The latter measure will be taken up Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock and the former on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. Both will appear on second reading.

Bills passed finally this morning included: Increasing the salary of anthracite mine inspectors to $10 per day and expensing them.

Changing the meat inspection code by giving the powers to the State Livestock Sanitary Board.

Senate bill requiring the posting of election returns of primary elections.

Action on bills on final passage was stopped at 1 o'clock to allow the bills on first reading to be passed. The forty-six bills remaining on the third reading calendar will be taken up at the request of the House at 7:30 o'clock to-night.

The leaders of the House refused to agree to the overtures of the Senate to an adjournment this week over Easter Monday and the usual weekly adjournment resolution brings the House back into session again on Monday night at 8 o'clock. The Senate will adjourn over Monday after this week.

FIRST DOG ENTERS CAPITOL

"Donald" Passes Guards After Dismissal, Then Pleads for Antivivisection Bill.

Not since the famous pig invaded the State Capitol some weeks ago has there been as much excitement caused by any one animal on the Hill as that aroused yesterday when "Donald," a dog belonging to Adam Barby, 320 North street, appeared in the corridors of the building.

Capitol guards objected at first to "Donald's" intrusion, but his part was worthily taken by members of the S. P. C. A. who accompanied him, and he was accordingly admitted. He is believed to have been the first dog who has been permitted to investigate the interior of the Capitol.

The object of "Donald's" visit was to act as an exhibit before two committees of the House of Representatives. The Judiciary General Committee was having a hearing on bill 680, opposed to vivisection, and the Judiciary Special Committee on bill 927, the Hapgood dog bill. Before both these august bodies "Donald" gave exhibitions of dog tricks under the auspices of members of the State S. P. C. A. and of the Pennsylvania Anti-Vivisection Society. The purpose of the performances was to arouse interest in "Donald" in particular and, therefore, sympathy for dogs in general.

"Donald's" appearance on the way to the committee rooms aroused some curiosity, and the dog soon had quite a following. Large crowds witnessed his performances before the committees. "Donald" did not succeed in preventing favorable action on the anti-vivisection bill, which will soon be reported out of committee, but was influential in having the Hapgood bill buried in committee.

GALA NIGHT ENDS IN ARREST

Edward Schraudenbaugh Charged With Discharging Firearms in City Limits.

A gala time in one of the local hotels last night, nearly cost Edna Quigley, 203 Nectarine street, her life, when Edward Schraudenbaugh snatched a gun from her and discharged it. Schraudenbaugh was later arrested, charged with discharging firearms in the city limits.

The affair started when the couple along with the Quigley woman's sister, Mrs. Dessie Arker, with whom she lives, started over the McBerry street bridge. When about half way across the bridge, Mrs. Arker and Schraudenbaugh got into an argument, when, it is alleged, the latter felled the woman by a blow. A little further on he repeated the act, it is said.

According to the story of the women they then went home and were on the second story preparing for bed, when Schraudenbaugh called at the house, barged when refused admittance, he began banging at the door when the Quigley woman came down stairs with a double-barrelled shot gun when he took from her and instantly discharged it. When Policeman Schell has arrived on the scene a few minutes later, Schraudenbaugh still held the gun in his hands.

This morning the two women called at the Mayor's office and wanted Schraudenbaugh released, but instead of having their wish granted they were ordered to attend a hearing this afternoon and testify against him.

MAKES FINAL ELECTIONS POSSIBLE IN PRIMARIES

If a political organization is strong enough in the primaries to poll fifty-one per cent of the vote for Mayor and City Commissioners in third class cities there will be no contest for the general election under an amended Senate bill reported out in the House this morning from the committee on Municipal Corporations.

The bill, introduced in the Senate and passed by that branch, provided that in the event of a candidate for Mayor of a third class city polling fifty-one per cent of the votes in the primaries he would be declared elected without a contest at the general election. This measure was amended in the House committee to include also candidates for City Commissioners.

As the Clark commission form of government bill now stands, two candidates for Mayor and eight for Commissioners must go before the electors at the general election, the men running being those having received the highest numbers of votes in the primaries.

While the election is on a non-partisan plan and all candidates are voted for at the primaries irrespective of their political affiliations yet it would be possible for political parties to get through a slate for all the offices at the primaries and do away with a contest at the general election.

The bill as amended in the House will, if it passes the House, will have to go back to the Senate for concurrence in the House Committee's amendment before it goes to the Governor for his signature.

LATE WAR NEWS SUMMARY

Continued From First Page. A statement from the French Marine Ministry indicates that the submarine may have been sunk, as oil rose to the surface.

The British steamer Flaminius was sunk in the English channel by the submarine U-28. The crew was permitted to take to the small boats and was rescued.

After a brief lull in the fight for the possession of Dukla Pass, in the Carpathians, the Russians have brought up reinforcements and resumed the attack. At Vienna it is stated that the Russians have not been able to gain their objective at any point along the Carpathian front for the invasion of Hungary, and that they were defeated in Bukovina yesterday.

Whether the present Board of County Commissioners is required to pay constables back fees alleged to be due them under the act of 1911 because a former Board of Commissioners agreed to pay them if the county was held by the court to be liable, is a question Judge McCarrell will be asked to decide, so it was announced to-day.

The increasing pressure of the Russians on this front, together with the fall of Emsburg, may have an influence on the operations of the west, it being spread in Holland that the Germans are contemplating the abandonment of their present line in Belgium in favor of a less extended front.

A Russian victory in the campaign against Turkey is announced from the headquarters of the Caucasian army. In the fighting in Turkish Armenia, along the coast of the Black sea, the Russians captured the town of Arsenik. German warships have again bombarded the Russian port of Liban, on the Baltic. Three persons were killed during two attacks.

As the result of an investigation of the fire on the steamship La Touraine on March 6, the Paris police have arrested a passenger described as Raymond Swoboda, who was listed on the ship's record as "An American subject." A Paris newspaper says the man is suspected of having "close relations with the enemy" and having been charged with the task of blowing up the Touraine.

TEACHERS TO GET HEARING

State League Convenes April 6 to Meet State Representatives.

A feature of the Pennsylvania State Teachers' League, which meets in Harrisburg for the sixth annual convention Tuesday, April 6, will be public hearing before the State Legislature. All teachers throughout the State are being urged by the president of the association, Miss Margaret M. Sullivan, of this city, to try and attend the hearing or at least to write to both Senators and Representatives, insisting that the provision of the school code of 1911, raising the minimum salary to $45 and $55 be carried out and that an appropriation be made to provide for the same.

NELSON-GANZ CONCERT

Board Opens April 7 for Big Musical Event.

A diagram for the concert to be given by Alice Nielson, the prima donna soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and Rudolph Ganz, the eminent Swiss pianist, at Chestnut street auditorium on the evening of Monday, April 12, will open at Sigler's music store, 32 North Second street, on Wednesday, April 7. There is already a big demand for seats, which will be sold at the exceptionally low figure of 30 cents for the lowest price and $1.50 for the highest. It is believed that because of the magnitude of Nielson and Ganz have been induced to appear on the same platform at so low an admission charge.

Alice Nielson, who is one of the leading sopranos of the Metropolitan and Boston Opera Companies, has had one of the most varied careers of any artist on the grand opera stage to-day. Beginning in her teens at the famous old Fivoli in many memories, she joined the Bostonians at the opera house in a very short time was so popular that she was at the head of her own opera company, touring the country. Taking her company to Europe she there decided to devote herself to grand opera, relinquishing the fame and fortune that had come to her in the light opera field and beginning all over again as a student. Since then she has sung continually in the great cities of Europe, London, New York, Boston and elsewhere in company with such noted artists as Melba, Destina, Caruso and others. At present she has as many return dates as any singer before the American public and delights her audience wherever she goes.

There will be nothing monotonous about the program during the concert here, for Miss Nielson will be accompanied by Rudolph Ganz, a pianist as famous in the world of instrumental music as the great soprano is among vocalists. Ganz is one of the all too few players to whom the piano is an instrument of tone and expression, and added to this he has a technique that is the wonder of all who have heard him and embraces the compositions of all the famous composers for the piano, Haydn, Liszt, Schumann, Chopin and Kerengold. Mail orders for tickets, accompanied by check or cash, will be filled in the order received.—Adv.

IS CHARGED WITH FIRING TOURAINE

"Oh, that isn't the only war zone that would be dangerous; Germany is strong enough to do what she wants. This ship herself, even before she reaches the war zone, might be obliged to have recourse to the doctors and nurses aboard to care for the passengers."

Only passing heed, however, was given to this assertion when it was made, but in view of subsequent events it appeared that the investigating attorney to have considerable importance.

Listed As American Subject. The passenger in question, who was quoted as having boasted of Germany's power, was listed on the ship's records as "Raymond Swoboda, 38 years old, an American subject; profession, financier; destination, Paris."

Commissioner Dubert, attached to the Secret Service Department of the Ministry of the Interior, undertook the task of tracing Swoboda. He found that the man was fairly well known in Paris financial circles and had been connected with several more or less important transactions. He was supposed to be a Russian, for he often spoke of his family connections at Petrograd and Moscow. He had served as a foreign representative for a broker named Morrison, who conducts one of the large brokerage houses in Paris.

One of Swoboda's business associates had seen him after the arrival of the Touraine at Havre, where she docked safely on March 8, but Dubert traced him to a hotel in the Avenue Kiebler, only to find that he had left ten days before after a brief stay. He registered there under the name of Raymond Swoboda and professed to be an American of independent means who had come from New York on the Touraine. He had told the story of the fire in the hotel drawing room, but the secret service operative says he told that Swoboda's manner had aroused some suspicion and the other guests kept aloof from him.

JUDGE TO DECIDE ON FEES

McCarrell Will Rule as to Whether Constables Who Did Not Sue Will Get Them.

Whether the present Board of County Commissioners is required to pay constables back fees alleged to be due them under the act of 1911 because a former Board of Commissioners agreed to pay them if the county was held by the court to be liable, is a question Judge McCarrell will be asked to decide, so it was announced to-day.

The opinion is to come as an interpretation of a decision which Judge McCarrell recently filed in the case of Constable George W. Charters. Charters, acting for a dozen or more constables, brought a test case to have the court determine whether the county was liable for the fee increases provided by the act of 1911. The court held that the constables should receive that money and the constables who contributed toward staging the legal fight did receive it. Now those who did not sue want the back fees.

Forty-six permits were issued during the month as against forty-four for buildings—costing $7,800 during the corresponding period of a year ago.

ROUNDS UP SENATORS WITH CLUB

Continued From First Page. mace, went forth. In but a few minutes enough Senators were rounded up to make a quorum, and the sergeant-at-arms was bidden to unbar the doors and business proceeded.

A call of the roll showed that thirty-one were present, and then the question was on the McNichol motion to adjourn, which could not be voted on originally because of a lack of a quorum. Mr. Thompson denied the President's ruling and contended he was in order in moving to send the Catlin bill back to the Committee on Mines, but the Chair ruled against him, and the McNichol motion to adjourn.

McNichol Outnumbered. On that motion Mr. Thompson, having counted noses, demanded a "yea" and "nay" vote, and it was lost by 15 "yeas" to 16 "nays." Then Thompson renewed his motion to refer the bill to his committee, and in the renewal of the motion he made a fiery speech, in which he denounced the attempt to refer a bill to a committee which had no right to it and the effort to "railroad" it through the Senate. He denounced it as sharp and underhand practice.

McNichol denied that he meant his action to reflect on anybody, but he insisted that unless a bill of this character was passed at least 150,000 miners in Pennsylvania would be deprived of the benefit of the workmen's compensation law. This was denied by Thompson, who said that he was assured that the administration workmen's compensation law will take care of the austriac miners.

After some few remarks regarding the effect of the bills, the motion of Thompson to refer the bill to the Committee on Mines was adopted by a viva voce vote, McNichol being the only one to vote against it. The Senate then, on motion of Thompson, adjourned to next Tuesday night.

The incident created the liveliest scene witnessed in the Senate for many a day, and Thompson was congratulated for having won after a hard struggle against the powers that usually control things in the Senate.

AMERICAN LOST AS FALABA SANK

Continued From First Page. ama Railroad Company from 1909 to 1913 and in 1914 he worked in Ecuador on the staff of C. E. Roberts, chief engineer of the Guayaquil Quito Railroad.

Traded With New York Bankers. New York, March 31.—Leon Chester Thrasher, who was among the Falaba's passengers who perished, lived in Hardwick, Mass., before going to England. His mother, Mrs. M. L. Thrasher, lives there now.

The Eastman Dillion Company, bankers of this city, transacted business with Mr. Thrasher and received from him a number of letters from time to time, the last being written at Plymouth, England, February 16. The firm did not know whether he was an American citizen but thought he was.

Some of Mr. Thrasher's letters to his mother, it was said, were forwarded to her through the firm. In one of these letters, written early in the year, Mr. Thrasher said he had finished with the Gold Coast and thought he would return to Hardwick within a short time.

Informing Mother of Home Coming. "You can expect to see me within two or three months," was the word he sent his mother, as recalled by a representative of the banking firm.

Little is known here of Mr. Thrasher's personal affairs. The bankers had corresponded with him at intervals, they said, while he was out of the country and on one occasion had transmitted to him money sent from abroad for him to go to the Gold Coast. It was thought that he was unmarried.

In his last letter to the firm, Mr. Thrasher wrote: "You can write me at 27 Cartwright Gardens street, Panama, London, W. C." This was the address given by Thrasher when he filled out the passport form in England.

Washington, March 31.—No report of the death of Leon C. Thrasher, an American mining engineer, one of the victims of the destruction of the steamer Falaba by a German submarine, had been received by the State Department to-day from Ambassador Bryan in London. Secretary Bryan said that no inquiry had been sent by the department.

DO GOUGH'S WORK AGAIN; WANT $410

Continued From First Page. lowance. No decision was reached up to 3 o'clock. It was said, however, that the auditors propose to sue for their money.

Reigel said Cassel put his name to the report following the close of the work last evening. Cassel was not to be found when the report was filed this morning.

"Did Cassel not aid in compiling the report and making the audit?" Reigel was asked.

"He was here a couple of times, and looked at it, but that is all he did," was the reply.

Cassel is credited by County Controller Gough, who was the auditors' official timekeeper, with having paid eight visits to the room in which the 1914 audit was made, his stays ranging from 23 minutes to 1 hour and 54 minutes.

Cassel Not Paid for 1913

Cassel has not yet been paid for services he rendered on the 1913 audit. The County Commissioners several months ago decided to allow him a little more than $30, but he never gave an assurance that he would accept that amount, having previously submitted a bill for a larger sum.

The days Huston and Reigel spent on the audit, according to Gough, averaged between six and seven hours. When they presented bills for services on the 1913 audit the County Commissioners paid them upon the basis of eight hours constituting a working day. The totals on the report to-day correspond with those of the first annual statement of County Controller Gough, which was issued within a week after the close of the new year.
