

AUSTRIAN OPERATIONS IN CARPATHIANS COLLAPSE; RUSS TO INVADE HUNGARY

Petrograd, April 9, 12.15 P. M., via London, 2 P. M.—With the Russian forces in possession of all the main summits and slopes of the Beskid mountains, army officers here assert the Austrian operations in the Carpathians have collapsed. The Russian general staff is now considering the best approach into Hungary.

The operations centering about Mesolaboroz, including the important points of Bartfeld, Lupkow and Uzook, appear virtually to have ended with the Austrians on the defensive along the whole line and perceptibly weakened. The deep snow which still covers the Carpathian ridges stands in the way of a rapid advance into Hungary. Once this difficulty is overcome and the Russians reach the southern slopes, where signs of spring are beginning to appear, the most serious obstacle to a further advance will be the artificial defenses which it is assumed have been erected.

The country between the San and Laboroz rivers is considered to provide the best route. The Russian staff is of the opinion that the Germans already have transferred all available troops from other fronts to defend this region and that therefore they would be unable to offer any more formidable opposition than heretofore.

On the other hand it is expected that the German answer to Russian offensive will be the development of a new movement in Poland, starting from Thorn or Cracow. But the invasion of Hungary is regarded in Petrograd as a foregone conclusion unless the Germans are able to transfer a formidable force of first line troops to stiffen the Austrian armies.

In view of these conditions, the talk of a separate peace for Austria-Hungary has been revived. Such a possibility is discussed widely in the Russian press and in diplomatic circles. It is based largely on the report that the attempt of Emperor Francis Joseph to enlist the influence of the Pope in this direction.

From the first, it has been maintained here that the only terms Russia would consider would be the unqualified concession of all Slavic demands. Russian officials have never conceived the possibility of such concessions unless a decisive victory should be won by the Slavic nations now at war.

LATE WAR NEWS SUMMARY

Continued From First Page. is not announced. Otherwise there is no change along this front. Russian staff officers regard the Austrian operations in the Carpathians as having collapsed and are considering the best route for an invasion of Hungary. It is said in Petrograd that all the main summits and slopes of the Beskid mountains are now in the hands of the Russians. On both the western and eastern fronts battles are in progress which may affect vitally the future course of the war. In the French territory between the Meuse and Moselle rivers, the allies are attempting to force back the German wedge. The Paris war office claims a large amount of ground has been won, but Berlin contradicts this. The loss of life is probably heavier than that in any other engagement in the west since the battle of Soissons.

WOMEN DISCUSS PLANS TO FURTHER SUFFRAGE CAUSE

Members of Party in State Convention Here Advance Practical Methods of Gaining Publicity in Campaign to Win the Franchise

"Shall we wear the black and white veil and gain publicity through this method?" was one of the many problems that confronted members of the Pennsylvania Woman's Suffrage party at this morning's session of a two-day convention in the Board of Trade building.

Some time ago an enterprising New York manufacturer suggested that an admirable way in which the women might gain their cause would be to wear a black veil, on the bottom to be inscribed the words, "votes for women." The suggestion, however, after much discussion by a number of county chairmen, was rejected, not being in accord with the truly educational and sincere methods that have marked the progress of the campaign thus far.

Means of furthering publicity in carrying out the future work of the campaign occupied all of the session, when many suggestions as to what could be done as well as what has been done were vigorously discussed. Principal among these was publicity through the newspapers, posting of bills at conspicuous places, public meetings and through many other social mediums.

The flower garden publicity method, which has been in vogue in many of the counties, was also strongly endorsed. These gardens are planted with flowers of all descriptions, but always in the party's color, bright yellow. It is believed by members that this morning's discussion will be instrumental in establishing many more of these gardens throughout the State.

During this afternoon session ward and precinct work was the principal topic discussed, largely by the president of the state association, Mrs. Frank M. Roessing.

A large delegation will attend a motion picture exhibition to-night on "Your Girl and Mine," and a reel of pictures taken at the casting of the women's liberty bell at Troy, N. Y., last week.

The women's liberty bell, which the suffrage party hope to ring on election night at Independence Square, Philadelphia, was a wide campaign feature discussed at the session yesterday afternoon. According to the plans now formulated the bell will be carried all over the State on an auto truck in a carefully mapped out itinerary. The trip will start May 15, at Towanda, Bradford county. It will then proceed westward through the northern counties, covering the towns of Canton, Wellsboro, Conduitsport, Smithport, Bradford, Warren and Dubois.

From there a jump will be made to Clearfield, after which the party will go in a southwestern direction to Allegheny.

The bell will reach Pittsburgh, July 4, when the big suffrage demonstration will take place. From Pittsburgh it will take a zigzag course, passing through nearly all of the remaining counties, Johnstown, Huntingdon, Lewistown, Harrisburg, York, Lancaster and Reading, will be among the places to be visited.

The party will reach Philadelphia October 30, when it is believed a large street parade of the suffragists there will welcome the bell.

Those who took part in the bell discussion were Mrs. Katherine Ruschberger, who has just given the auto truck besides giving the bell; Mrs. Frank M. Roessing, president of the State Association; Miss Hannah J. Patterson, chairman of the woman suffrage party; and Mrs. George Pierce, county chairman of Philadelphia.

A big lot of extraordinary bargains are announced in an advertisement in another part of this paper.

SATISFIED WITH BUILDING RULES

Jackson Not Likely to Seek Mandatory Laws for Theatre Construction. No legislation in the matter of the regulation of the building of moving picture theatres has as yet been prepared in the Department of Labor and industry, which has supervision of such matters, but if, after examination, such legislation is considered necessary, Commissioner Jackson will have it prepared and introduced. The rules made by the Department regarding moving picture buildings at present are considered by him as sufficient to cover everything necessary, and it is not certain that new legislation will be required so long as the department's rules are adhered to by the owners of picture theatres.
