Condition was the greatest factor in the recent heavyweight championship fight at Havana between "Jess" Willard, the new title holder, and "Jack" Johnson, the defeated negro, as the above pictures, the first to be printed here, will show. Reports that Johnson was fat, flabby and poorly trained, as was stated previous to the fight, are fully justified, as a glance at the negro will prove. Just how exhausted and near unconsciousness was Johnson is shown in the pictures, where his hands have been lowered, again where he is resting, relaxed, on Willard's shoulder, and in the other pose, where he apparently is standing, hopeless, waiting for his ultimate destruction. Willard, in contrast to the negro, exhibits no signs of distress or worry, proving that he was fit, mentally and physically, for this highest test in pugilism.

WILLARD DODGES CROWD

Heavyweight Champion Puts One Over on Fight Fans in Baltimore Station

Baltimore, Md., April 10.—Because he wanted to dodge some moving-picture people, Jess Willard, the new champion heavyweight of the world, also dodged a big mob of fight fans at Union Station shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon. The Florida special was more than two hours late, but this did not deter the crowd, which grew in numbers as the minutes sped by. Finally when the train did pull in it received an enthusiastic greeting from the crowd.

The passengers came upstairs and joined the crowd to watch the champion step forth. They had no other alternative, for they found themselves hemmed in on all sides by a yelling mob of fight fans.

The last man came up the stairs and still no Willard. Then slowly, but surely, the fact dawned upon the waiting mob that the new champion had put one over on them. He had walked back and gone up the St. Paul street steps, where his party quickly jumped into waiting autos and were whisked down to the Belvedere.

Willard carries his laurels lightly. He is cheerful and looks forward with pleasure to his platform engagements. Last night Willard gave an exhibition at the Lyric, which was jammed.

FEDS OPEN SEASON TO-DAY

President Gilmore Says Teams Have Been Strengthened As He Starts For First Game

Chicago, April 10.—Predicting a prosperous season, "the best so far," President James A. Gilmore left last night for Kansas City, where to-day he will watch the opening game of the Federal League campaign. Reports received at the league headquarters here were that fair weather and big crowds were expected at the openings at Chicago, where St. Louis plays; at Kansas City with Pittsburgh at Baltimore, where the team that won the pennant for Indianapolis will represent Newark, and at Brooklyn where Buffalo opens.

Most of the Federal League teams, their managers assert, have improved greatly over last year. St. Louis especially, President Gilmore says has increased in strength. Manager Fielder Jones having gathered a squad of veterans, including Charley Deal, who was a factor in the Boston Nationals winning the world's championship. A strong infield is the chief reliance of the Pittsburgh team, but reports from Kansas City are not optimistic.

The Newark club's loss of Benny Kauff, the league's champion batter, was recorded at headquarters as Brooklyn's gain, and the addition of Jack Dalton, one of the National's strong hitters last year, should help the offensive strength of Buffalo, it is said. In all departments Manager Tinker claims to have helped the Chicago squad. In Jimmie Smith he says he has a shortstop whose excellence may result in the manager adopting a utility role.

HOLD-UP MAN IN HOME

Foiled in Demand for $1,000 From a Montgomery Manufacturer

Montgomery, Pa., April 10.—Stating that he had an important business proposition to present, a well-dressed stranger asked for a private interview with William Decker, a wealthy manufacturer, at his home, and after entering the library, drew a revolver and demanded $1,000.

"I haven't that much money in the house, but I'll give you what I have in there," said Mr. Decker, pointing to a desk in an adjoining room. He was ordered to open the desk and get the money, the holdup man standing guard at a door.

Decker made a dash through a side door into the hall and got a revolver. When he returned the holdup man had disappeared.

IT WAS A "JIM" POEM

But That Was Not the Only Reason Why Riley Liked It

James Whitcomb Riley and Joel Chandler Harris figure in a story told by a writer in the New York "Sun." They had sought rest and recuperation in a hotel among the southern mountains and wished to avoid the attempts of the other guests to lionize them. Much against their will, however, they were constrained to appear at a "reading" from their own works, after having been routed from a secluded spot in the woods to which they had retired.

A young electioneer had the center of the stage when they got to the hotel. She led off by announcing a poem by Mr. Riley. She recited it. It was about somebody named Jim. Riley looked impressed.

"She had finished," he said when she had finished, "reciting that again?"

She did not mind, and went at it. Riley wiped a tear away as she finished. Then he said, "Please recite it again, if you will."

She did it the third time, and Riley was even more affected.

"Do you know," he said, after she had ended, "I like that poem. It's a Jim poem. I always like Jim poems. My own name is Jim. I always read Jim poems. I have written several Jim poems myself. But do you know why I like this Jim poem better than any other?"

The young woman eagerly asked why. The assembled guests leaned forward breathlessly to hear the answer. "I like it," said Riley, "because it always reminds me of my dear old friend, Eugene Field. Eugene Field is the man who wrote that poem, you know!"
