First Sumptuary Laws

First Sumptuary Laws

Laws regulating eating, drinking and dressing are almost as old as history itself. Nothing like exactness can be reached in the matter, but it is safe to say that it was in Egypt as far back as 3000 B. C. that the first practical sumptuary statutes were passed. Among the Romans they first appeared in the celebrated "twelve tables." In modern times Charlemagne was the pioneer in sumptuary legislation.

New York, April 13.—Wall Street.
—Establishment of another record by Bethlehem Steel which rose to 127, two points above its high price was the noteworthy feature of to-day's early market. This gain was soon lost, however, and the movement elsewhere was again indicative of selling for profit and renewal of professional operations for the decline. Rock Island rose over a point in recognition of the new interest in the board but it soon registered a material loss. Numerous specialties, including equipments and industrials rose 1 to 2 points. Trading was active with reactionary tendencies before the end of the half hour.

Bethlehem Steel held first place throughout the first hour, advancing 15 1-2 points to 139 1-2. In the second hour it rose to 142, an overnight gain of 18 points. Contrary to recent days the balance of the market was not adversely affected by the movement in Bethlehem Steel, but gathered greater strength, especially in United States Steel, Amalgamated and other leaders, where gains of 1 to 2 points were made. Peace rumors which had their origin i nofficial quarters at Washington, were used as a basis for the revival of activity. Bonds were steady.

Philadelphia Produce Market broken loose in the summer of 1914 and the ailles fell back from their first line in northern France to the Marne a good deal was said and written of "Fa-bian tactics." and when the Germans fell back from the line of the Marne to the Aisne more was said of "Fa-bian tactics." In this country when Washington and the heroic Continental army fell back before the English in superior force and of superior equip-ment and perhaps superior discipline, his tactics were called "Fabian." In fact General George Washington was called and by historical writers is still referred to as "the American Fabius." It is probably true that many American long parted from their school books have forgotten about Fablus, even though whenever an army makes an orderly retreat for the purpose of gaining time or reaching a more favorable position they speak fluently of "Fabian tactics." It is a phrase that comes trippingly off the tongue.

Fabius, as might easily be guessed from his name, was a Roman. He commanded the legions of Porne commanded the legions of Rome against the powers of Carthage 200 years before the Christian era. The tactics which came to be called after Fabius were no doubt employed centuries before Rome was born. Fabian tactics which came to be called after Fabius were no doubt employed centuries before Rome was born. Fabian tactics without doubt have been used ever since bodies of men made war, but it may be that Fabius so refined or systematized those tactics that it is just and worthy they bear his name.

Fabius in '217 B. C. stood opposite to the bots or hordes of Carthaginians under the brilliant leadership of Hannibal. In battle before Fabius Maximus was called to the supreme command of the Roman troops in the field the Carthaginians bad been victorious. Fabius, profiting by what had befallen his predecessors in command, avoided a pitched battle in the open and retreated, fighting as he fell back, holding off the enemy with what are now described as rear guard actions. Drawing the enemy farther and farther from base or the sources of supplies, wearying their troops more than he wearied his own and delaying a battle until he reached ground where his perition would give him a great advantage—a position delaying a battle until be reached ground where his position would give ground where his position would give him a great advantage—a position against superior numbers-where the loss in men and morale of the assailants must be great and where at the proper moment the counterstroke could be delivered with high promise of success, the tactics of Fablus won. In some ways the phrase "Fablan tactics" has been diverted from its original and proper significance and is made to comprehend any tactics of a particularly shrewd or "foxy" nature. In this connection it has been said that Napoleon employed "Fabian tactics" with brilliant success at Austrelian and the principles of equal justice to all.

"Maxico needs 'good religion.' Mexico's history shows that she will accept no other religion.

"Mexico needs 'good education.' Make every educational work free, under democratic and wise laws. See that the teacher is not penalized, his work destroyed, and his endowments seized by rapacious banditit. ciety Declares That Murder Is "One of the Minor Faults" in the Republic Torn by Revolutions Pittsburgh, Pa., April 13.—Declar-ing that "murder has been one of the minor faults of the revolution in Mexico" and that "its story is far worse than the story of the first revolution in France,' the Very Rev. Francis Kelly, of Chicago, president of Catholic Church Extension Society, today discussed "Mexico and the American Church" before an important gathering of clergymen here. The oc-gainering of clergymen here. The occasion was the dedication of the synod hall and chaneery building of the diocese of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Kelly said that present day difficulties in Mexico were largely because of three serious question: The rights of conscience, land and education. Mexico, he said, had been without anything like freedom of conscience for more than fifty years.

Church property had been confiscated Juarez and had never been returned. No outward manifestation of religion was permitted, even distinctive dress of clergymen being prohibited in the streets. In the large cities schools were supplied by the state but outside such communities Mexico practically has no schools. The state has never been able to supply them and the church was not allowed to do so.
