THE HEART OF POLAND

Oracow, Its Buried Patriots and the Hill of Kosciusko

Oracow is the ancient capital of Poland, the city around which cluster most of the glorious memories of that lost but not forgotten kingdom. There for more than 400 years the kings of Poland were crowned and buried, and for more than 300 years it was their seat of government.

There lie buried Jan Sobieski, who delivered Vienna—and thereby all Europe—from the Turks; Poniatowski, the famous general who became one of Napoleon's marshals; Michewicz, the poet of Poland, and Kosciusko, the patriot hero of the Poles. The tombs of all four are in the Stanislas cathedral, a beautiful Gothic church built in 1359, that crowns the Wavel, a rocky hill that rises on the edge of the town.

There are other fine churches in the city, the Augustinian and Dominican among them, and the castle, which was long the residence of the kings of Poland, and fell to the uses of a barracks after the kingdom was divided and which has within the last fifty years been restored.

The city also contains a very famous old university, which dates from 1364 and in age is second only to Prague among the universities of Europe.

Cracow itself was founded about 700 A. D. More than once it was destroyed by the Tartars, rebuilt and recolonized by Polish, German and Bohemian settlers. From 1305 to 1610 it was the capital of Poland. Later it was part of the grand duchy of Warsaw, and from 1815 to 1846 it was, with its immediate neighborhood, a free and neutral state, a distinction it lost when internal disorders gave Austria an excuse to step in and take possession of the town.

One of the most interesting things in Cracow in Kosciusko hill, a mound of earth on the top of the Borislava hill. It is made up of handfuls of earth brought by Poles from every corner of the kingdom and thrown together to form a memorial to the Polish patriot, composed of the soil of the country he loved so well. Across the river Vistula on Krakus hill there is a similar mound, which is said to be almost 1,200 years old. It was, so tradition says, raised in the same way to the memory of Krakus, the Slavic prince who founded the city.

To the patriotic Pole Cracow is always the spiritual center of his fatherland—the "heart of Poland." Youth's Companion.

A Gallon of Gasoline will do wonders almost anywhere, but no where has it been applied to better purpose than on the farm. Here are some of its stunts. It will milk 300 cows, bale four tons of hay, mix thirty-five yards of cement, move a ton truck fourteen miles, plow three-fifths of an acre of land and make enough electricity to keep eight lights going in the farm house for thirty days.

His Punishment

"I had a horrible dream last night," said Huddlestone when he came down to breakfast the other morning.

"What was it?" asked his wife.

"I dreamed that I was in purgatory and was made to do all the things I had told my friends I would do if I were in their places."—Brooklyn Life.

Leroy, Talma and Bosco
The days of the "hocus pocus" magician and of the circus conjurer with his three shells and illusory pea have long ago been disapproved. The Leroy, Talma, Bosco company of magicians, that are at the Majestic this afternoon and to-night, is declared to be one of the few magical aggregations with an all new repertoire of tricks and illusions.

The tendency of the modern theatre-goer is to demand something new in the shape of novelties and mysteries. Notwithstanding the fact that magic is an art, dating back to an age greater than that of the Pyramids, yet the up-to-date magician has kept abreast with the times. To-day one no longer sees the time-honored egg trick with the proverbial red bag, but, instead, feats and illusions built and worked out along scientific lines. Adv.

Sousa a Good Mixer
The prime business of the artist is to entertain, to delight and to bring laughter and color in a gray and joyless world. Sousa has been criticized at times for mixing the bright with the serious in his concerts, but he knows what people like to hear, and he is proud of the fact that he has been called "the Kipling of music," for Kipling is a great man—a purveyor of infinite pleasure. The serious numbers on Sousa's programs are given in a way that makes them instructive as well as effective, but enough bright music is interspersed throughout to make his concerts irresistibly enjoyed. The appearance of Sousa and his band here to-morrow evening, with Miss Virginia Root, soprano; Miss Margel Gluck, violinist, and Herbert L. Clarke, cornetist, as soloists, will be warmly welcomed. Adv.

David Warfield
Of particular interest will be the presentation at the Majestic Thursday evening of David Warfield in "The Auctioneer," a comedy in three acts by Lee Arthur and Charles Klein. This is the play in which Mr. Warfield made his first deep impression on the theatre-going public thirteen years ago. His impersonation of Simon Levi will always remain in the memory as a supreme interpretation, and one harks back to it perhaps as the best thing this beloved and universally admired actor has done. At all events, Mr. Warfield has never been seen in a more human or appealing character, so that this revival is all the more timely and interesting. Adv.

"Little Mary Mack"
When "Little Mary Mack," a new musical comedy, comes to the Majestic theatre next Saturday, local playgoers will see an unprecedented policy in the production of musical comedy that probably will prove startling. There will be a noticeable absence of all European flavoring in "Little Mary Mack." The entire action of the piece is laid in America and the players and music are American. In short, the authors of this production have defied tradition to give American theatre patrons an American show. After its engagement here, "Little Mary Mack" will go to Philadelphia. After an engagement there it will go to New York. The producer of the play also is the author of the book and lyrics. Newton Ashenfelder and Sigmund Romberg provided the music, and the dancing is under the direction of Fred Fishop, who staged "The Three Twins," "My Best Girl" and "The Debutante." Adv.

The Regent
Audiences which filled the Regent theatre greet every production of "The Sign of the Cross" yesterday and today. The film, with William Farnum, the man with the $90,000 expression, in the stellar role, is among the best ever brought to Harrisburg. Taking part in the great play are more than 500 people and the principals in the cast are among the notables in the "movie" world, who were gathered together especially for the stupendous production. When Wilson Barrett wrote the story of "The Sign of the Cross" he little thought that every detail which his mind's eye conceived could be pictured on a screen, but, nevertheless, this is just what has been done. Nothing has been left out of the production and even the descriptions of hills, gardens, etc., which are noted in the book are faithfully told by the pictures. "The Sign of the Cross," in five reels, will be shown at the Regent theatre to-night for the last time.

For to-morrow and Thursday, Manager Megraw has engaged the remarkable film "Cameo Kirby," with Dustin Farnum in the leading role. This film tells a pretty story of romance and adventure and gives the star an ample opportunity to display his ability. Adv.

Girls at Colonial
In "The Haberdashery Girls," a musical comedy act that opened yesterday for a three-day engagement at the Colonial theatre, Busy Corner audiences are being offered one of the best vaudeville features that ever worked beyond the footlights of the popular Market street playhouse. This act combines all of the features that go to make an act of this kind popular. The music is catchy, the scenery is elaborate, the comedy is good, and above all, there is a bevy of pretty maidens well drilled in the art of dancing. The act smacks in some respects of one of the most popular headliners offered at the
