"I was given some advice and told to get green soap and use it. I did that for a while and it went away but came back just as bad. Last spring I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Ointment. My face stopped itching and in three weeks it began to clear up. I would wash my face with just a hot water as I could stand and use the Cuticura Soap, and I applied the Cuticura Ointment every afternoon and evening before going to bed. PLAYED DRUNK AND GOT FREE RIDE ON THE TRAIN

Passenger, to Carry Out Role of Inebriate, Smashed Window, Then Fled As Constable Was About to Nab Him

Waynesboro, April 16.—A passenger coming here by train from Gettysburg Wednesday evening led other persons on the train to believe that there are some "weisenheimers" who can set up a stall and appear to be just as intoxicated when they are sober as when they actually have an extra large quantity of booze beneath their belt.

Such was the case with this particular individual and strangely enough, neither the police, the train crew nor other passengers were able to identify the supposed "drunk." Anyway the staggering John pretended that he couldn't walk the chalk line, fell into a seat, appeared to be "snoring" when the conductor sought his ticket and would not pay his fare.

And to make certain the belief that he really was drunk, the supposed inebriate smashed the window with his fist. Then the conductor wired ahead to have a constable on hand by the time the train arrived here. The "copper" was on the job "lying in wait," so to speak and so was the "rummy." As the train rolled into the station the "drunk" jumped out of his seat, made a dash for the door and was off with the wind, having left the train from the side opposite where the policeman stood ready to nab him. He made good his escape.

For Catarrhal Deafness and Head Noises

Here in America there is much suffering from catarrh and head noises. American people would do well to consider the method employed by the English to combat this insidious disease.

Everyone knows how damp the English climate is and how dampness affects those suffering from catarrh. In England they treat catarrhal deafness and head noises as a constitutional disease and use an internal remedy for it that is really very efficacious.

Sufferers who could scarcely hear a watch tick tell how they had their hearing restored by this English treatment to such an extent that the tick of a watch was plainly audible seven and eight inches away from either ear.

Therefore, if you know someone who is troubled with catarrh, catarrhal deafness or head noises, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you will have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. The prescription can be easily prepared at home for about 75c and is made as follows:

From your druggist obtain 1 oz. of Parmitin (Double Strength), about 75c worth. Take this home, and add to it 1/4 pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take a tablespoonful four times a day.

Parmitin is used in this way not only to reduce by tonic action the inflammation and swelling in the Eustachian Tubes, and thus to equalize the air pressure on the drum, but to correct any excess of secretions in the middle ear, and the results it gives are usually remarkably quick and effective.

Every person who has catarrh in any form should give this recipe a trial and free themselves from this destructive disease.—Adv.

EYEWITNESS TELLS HOW FRENCH GAINED VICTORY IN LES EPARGES BATTLE

Paris, April 15, 9.20 P. M.—"The action by which we gained the military ascendancy of the entire crest of Les Eparges on the evening of April 9 was the culmination of a prolonged and violent effort," says a French eyewitness in giving an account of the desperate fighting which took place in that vicinity. "It was a victory," he continues, "analogous in the intensity of offensive to that which took us to the summit of Hartmanns-Wieskopf and more important if one considers the forces engaged."

"The crest of Les Eparges is a long spur with an altitude of 346 yards, dominating to the east heights of the Meuse and the immense plain of the Woëvre. Its sides are abrupt and slippery and it is surrounded by numerous streams. It frequently becomes, therefore, a mountain of mud. The crest is particularly important on account of its situation and in connection with the developments of our future operations its capture was indispensable."

A Long and Savage Fight "At the beginning of the forward movement the French were at the edge of the villages of Les Eparges. A long and savage fight to gain ground followed. The Germans at one time placed two heavy batteries on the plains. A number of successful actions finally brought the French to the point of trying a decisive offensive. This began at 4 o'clock on the afternoon of April 5, with the capture of the western summit as the object. It was raining and the fighting began in a sea of mud."

"In spite of a heavy fire from the enemy's artillery and the fact that our infantrymen hardly could lift their legs out of the mire, the French advanced steadily. After hand to hand fighting the French installed themselves every where in the German trenches except to the east where they were stopped by aerial torpedoes which some times mowed down entire ranks. The French who had been fighting without cessation since the preceding day, finally stopped but resumed the attack the next night when they charged with fixed bayonets and threw back the enemy."

Order to Carry the Summit "On the seventh, covered with mud and soaked to the skin, but victorious, the French realized that since the fifth they had gained 500 yards of trenches and taken a hundred prisoners, including several officers. The French now approached their goal but when this was near on the seventh the enemy counter attacked with heavy reinforcements. The French artillery was waiting for them however, and they were moved down as they debouched from their trenches."

"When daylight came the order was given to finish the task. 'We must carry the summit,' was the word it contained. Rain was falling, rifles were clogged with mud and the use of bayonets was necessary. By midnight, after most furious fighting, which lasted uninterruptedly for fifteen hours, almost all the positions belonged to us, although the enemy still held a small triangle on one side. Finally at 10 p. m., on the 9th the entire summit was in the possession of the French and Les Eparges now belongs to us."

TERRA COTTA The Ancient Greeks Used It, as Did Also Michelangelo Terra cotta means literally baked earth. It is usually employed as though it meant only architectural ornaments made of baked clay. Yet Michelangelo made statues of it, the Japanese use it cleverly painted as "imitation bronze" for basins, tea jars and bowls, and the ancient Greek children had terra cotta in their doll's movable legs fastened by wooden pegs.

In the trade to-day pieces of clay work for architectural ornament over eight inches square are called terra cotta. Under that size they are called ornamental brick.

The famous Della Robbia ware of Italy was of terra cotta covered with opaque enamel and painted. England used it much. From the time of Henry VIII it was popular in large buildings, and since Queen Anne's day it has been used for ornamenting smaller houses.

Terra cotta can be produced in a variety of colors, and, while rains leave stone surfaces dingier, they brighten surfaces made of the clay. It is as durable as stone; it can be produced in more shades and colors; it can be molded into a great variety of designs; it can be given more delicate outlines than stone; it is lighter than stone.—New York Telegram.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Out Your Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, sealding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a sealding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, effervescent lithia-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.—Adv.

SENSORS SMOTHER NEWS ABOUT A RUMORED FIRE

(Correspondence of Associated Press) London, April 7.—There was a rumor in London the night of January 31 that a serious fire had broken out in the big government dock yards at Portsmouth, but the government smothered all inquiries with a prompt denial and the censor eliminated all mention of the matter from press dispatches.

It now appears that the fire was of a very serious character and came near wiping out the docks and other valuable properties at Portsmouth. The real extent of the damage is still carefully concealed. It is the common belief in official circles that the fire was the work of incendiaries, presumably German spies.

To-day a carefully worded notice was issued by the dock yard authorities offering a reward of $500 "for the discovery of the incendiaries responsible for the fire at the building slip sheds the night of January 31."
