HIGH AND LOW COST OF EDUCATION

According to reports made by the 261 Yale seniors who are now preparing for graduation, their education, covering the period of the last four years, cost them a total of $1,079,111. That is, their entire expenses during that period reached that amount. Much of the cost of the actual education they received was met by the endowments of the New Haven institution, through gifts of its loyal alumni.

A great part of the amount spent during the four years by the Yale seniors must have been for their maintenance and amusements. High living expenses are included in the total, too, with the "high" modifying either word, "living" or "expenses."

The financial waste that goes with the higher education of high livers is shown by a comparison of the figures which represent the expenses of the most extravagant Yale senior and those of the most frugal. The largest amount spent in a single year by a student was $4,500, and the smallest $200. It is evident that the young spendthrift paid out much more for luxuries than the economist expended for actual necessities. What the former spent in one year would have supported the latter, at his present rate, for twenty-two years and six months. In fact, what it cost the former for a quarter of a bachelor's degree might enable the latter to study until he obtained practically all the academic de-

The Yale senior who is graduated after an average expenditure of $4,000 a year, or a total extravagance of $16,000 during his course, will have a hard time proving to the world that he received full value for eash paid. It is doubtful whether a college diploma is in every given instance worth quite $16,000. Henry David Thoreau, who was graduated at Harvard at a time when five dollars was charged for a diploma, refused to pay it since he considered five dollars an exorbitant price for a thing so useless to him.

The college graduate, at all events, who expends $800 during his four-year course may have just as good an education as the one who squanders $16,000. The former is indeed very likely to get a much better education, since he would be able during his course to devote time to the pursuing of his studies which the latter would have to give to the spending of his excessive allowances.

PRODUCING HISTORIC ATMOSPHERE

Down at the University of Pennsylvania it has been found recently that despite all the modern improvements, in fact because of them, there is something lacking,-an atmosphere of historic ssociations. The university has been at its present ocation little more than forty years, hence 'its buildings are comparatively new and the campus is not adorned with the relies of former days that ought to be there to furnish inspiration to the students.

The plan has been suggested of transferring to the campus from other parts of Philadelphia several of the old college buildings together with the home of Benjamin Franklin, who had a hand in the founding the university and various other institutions which are proud to use his name:

The idea is not a bad one. If the university has no ancient buildings on the campus with which to make a venerable appearance, it should get some. for it is justly entitled to them. Not many will be necessary. Several gray hairs in a woman's crowning glory are sufficient to indicate advancing age Historic associations are splendid things for institutions of higher learning. The institution in this state which, perhaps, is best supplied with such associations is Pennsylvania College at Gettysburg, whose campus was occupied by Confederate troops during the great Civil War battle, and whose principal dormitory building, which accommodates a big part of the student body and will continue to do so for many years, was used as a hospital for large numbers of wounded soldiers.

However, buildings from the days of the Civil War are of course not very ancient, and even structures which have survived since the time of Franklin are comparatively modern. In this country we cannot have structural relics of our own antiquity, for that is the antiquity of Europe. If we want to see really ancient ruins we must go over there.

THE CASE OF THE HINOJOSA TWINS

If the operation about to be performed on the Hinojosa twins, born two and a half years ago in Havana, Cuba, is successful, the little girls will be able for the first time in their identical lives to move about each independent of the other.

Joined together in much the same way as "those extraordinary' Siamese twins, the little girls, the good of the countries' cause, in the Guadalupe and Josephine, likewise extraordinary, have during these two and a half years been literally inseparable. No sisters ever were more closely attached to each other. Rarely is it that two persons, no matter how devoted they are, one to the Kitchener, Chancellor Lloyd-George, Sir other, are constantly side by side, but the little Edward Grey and other statesmen.

Spanish twins are two such persons, at least until "Part of the work of the committee surgery severs them.

There might be some advantages in the joint existence of connected twins, if the minds of the tries as well, a true perspective of the inseparable ones were united as well as their bodies, -if their inclinations were all the same, their tastes alike and their talents identical. They could, engaging in chosen pursuits unanimously agreed upon by them, accomplish perhaps more than could two England. I was glad to learn that some separate individuals, if they acted in perfect harmony at all times.

Minds are not the same, however, either in ordinary twins or in connected twins, any more than they are in other individuals. The Hinojosa children are said to be occasionally very loving and sisterly, but to have their quarrels, too, at times. When the disagreements come the twins cannot say naughty things to each other and then run away. They must stay close together and make amicable arrangements before either of them can go anywhere or do anything with the necessary permission and companionship of the other.

The accounts of the peculiar attachment between the Spanish twins may excite the curiosity of a own point of view and literary style. large part of the general public to see the little From my committee's standpoint it girls, appealing to the same part of human nature French army should be brought that responds to the attractions of the ten-cent museums of freaks. It is surely a source of satis- ple, and to that end a strong recommen faction to know that the parents of Guadalupe and Josephine, instead of arranging to put the little girls on exhibition, are planning to have them separated and converted into normal human beings.

Neither Root nor Borah seems very eager to cast his hat in the ring against President Wilson in 1916. But there is the Colonel!

It is reported that President Wilson will not be opposed in the next national convention of his party. Is it possible that the Democrats for once are agreed on something so important as the presidency?

AVOID SPRING ILLS

Purify and Build Up the Blood With Hood's Sarsaparilla

In the spring your blood needs cleansing and enriching. You feel poorly, and there is more or less cruption on your face and body. Your appetite is not good, your sleep is broken, and you are tired all the time.

You need Hood's Sarsaparilla. It is the one safe and effective tonic that has stood the test of forty years. It makes the pure red blood that will make you feel better, look better, eat and sleep better. It is the old standard tried and true all-the-year-round medicine for the blood and the whole system.

Ask any druggist for Hood's Sar-saparilla, and insist on having it. Nothing else acts like it, for nothing else has the same formula or ingre-dients, and so there is no real substi-tute. Get it to-day.—Adv.

Must Appeal to Imagination

"What we all feel on the foreign mmittee," said M. Franklin-Bouillon, is that our own communiques are too spire our people with that enthusiasm so necessary to maintain them steadily until victory is won. The English eye witnesses, one with the English army and one with the French, are certainly doing fine work; but to get at the great masses of people, things must be dished up and presented in all sorts of different ways by trained writers, each with his a supreme need that the doings of the to the imagination of the English peo dation has been officially made that a newspaper correspondents be attached to the headquarters staff. If that is done, it will perhaps be the beginning of taking the public in England and France more into the confidence of our governments than is the case at present."

"Neutral" Estimate of the Kaiser

"The German Emperor's popularity has been undoubtedly increased with the war," writes "a neutral correspondent" to the London "Times" from Germany. "He is considered to be the only man fit to serve as an example to his subjects and he is at the same time the embodiment of all they most admire. His outward appearance, his mind, his piety and almost all his undertakings are in accordance with the taste and wishes of his people. That he is clever, active and in many ways brilliant even his worst enemies admit; most of his subjects in their idolatry, think him infallible. Among the military caste, however, though nothing is openly said against him, he does not possess the same influence in directing strategical operations as he unquestion ably had in the early stages of the war. His generals seem to have found a way of preventing him from seriously inter-

QUIT MEAT WHEN

Take a Glass of Salts Before Breakfast if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Is Troubling You

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

British Cost of Living Jumps

The cost of living continues to advance slowly in London. Prices of meat during the last week of March reached a point higher than at any time in twenty-five years. The wholesale prices of all grades of beef, mutton, pork adval showed on the quotation board a range of one to fifteen per cent. above the high water mark of all records since 1890.

"Not a butcher in London is making a profit to-day," declares one of the trade journals. In other lines the inreases have generally been made moderate. Glassware of all kinds has gone up ten per cent. Window glass, which was made almost exclusively in Bel-Linen sheeting is ten per cent. dearer and shoes are about fifteen per cent. more expensive. Butter and cheese show a rise of four cents a pound; bread twenty-five per cent., poultry twenty per cent. Gas and electricity have gone up about ten per cent. and all the London laundries have added ten per cent, to the total amount of each assert, because of increased prices of coal (100 per cent.), soap (forty per cent.) and labor (50 per cent.) Insures Against Damage in War

A Whist Story
When Lord Thanet was imprisoned in the Tower of London for the O'Counor riot, three of his friends, the Duke of Laval and of Bedford, the Duke of Laval and Captain Smith, were admitted to play whist with him and remain till the lockup hour of 11. Early in the sitting Captain Smith fell back in a fit of apoplexy, and one of the party rose to call for help. "'Stop!" cried another. "We shall be turned out if you make a noise. Let our friend alone until 11. We can play dummy, and he'll be none the worse, for I can read death in his face."
